How Can We Curb Russia?
Perhaps She's Too Smart.
AE Comes to Talk.
Toplitzky Says Don't Cry.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE WORLD is indignant, Uncle Sam and Canada especially so, because Russia sells wheat to Europe 10 cents below the market price.

It is said Russia can undersell the world's wheat market because Russia uses "slave labor," taking wheat from the farmers on any basis that suits the government.

THAT MAY BE, but even so, if Russia cuts Europe's price 10 cents, and sells for 70 cents a bushel, that is 10 cents a bushel more than the Kansas farmer gets on his farm. And Kansas farming is not slave labor.

CONGRESSMAN FORT, of New Jersey, comes from Europe, with a budget of information and sorrow.

All Europe worries about Russian dumping of wheat, and other things, as we worry, and Europe, like ourselves, doesn't see any way of fighting the Russian menace.

You can say to Russians: "You shall not sell or buy in our wheat market." But you can't keep Russia from cutting prices in Europe, which means that our farmers' surplus cannot sell abroad.

POSSIBLY WE underestimate Russia, and her ability. The great Agassiz, quoted by Dr. Appleton in his "Basis of All Life," said:

"Every scientific truth passes through three stages. First, men say it is not true. Then, they declare it is hostile to religion. Finally, they say that every one has always known it."

FIRST OUR high financial minds said that Russia's government couldn't possibly last. Then, they said, which was quite true, that Russia was hostile to religion. By and by they may be saying "Every one always knew that Russia was certain to succeed, and teach the world things that the world did not know."

GEORGE RUSSELL, known as "AE," arrived in America yesterday, to lecture throughout the United States on agricultural life, possibilities of cooperation, and, above all, the art of making that life ideal, one of true happiness, as opposed to a life of sordid, endless labor.

MR. RUSSELL, an intensely patriotic Irishman, is a brilliant poet, and an artist of ability.

He comes, as he says, "to talk with us, not to teach us," and is much interested in the 89,000 abandoned farms in America, with their unused 19,000,000 acres, saying that the vitality of a nation "dies when its farms are brought to the point of exhaustion."

Good citizens, including Jane Addams, President Angell, of Yale; President Butler, of Columbia; Owen D. Young, and Elihu Root, are interested in Mr. Russell's tour of the United States, arranged and underwritten by Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman.

Joseph Toplitzky, of Los Angeles, and the whole Pacific Coast, is in New York and tells Easterners that they "cry too much and plan too little."

Things on the Coast are improving. And across the Pacific, in Shanghai, there is a genuine real estate boom. Chinese that got millions out of China's upheavel, learning that the National City Bank in Shanghai, wouldn't even give them 1½ per cent on their deposits, decided to buy real estate, and up went prices.

WE ARE TWENTY per cent below normal now, average normal, not 1929 normal. We shall recover that 20 per cent soon and then start going up again.

So says Toplitzky, which is better, as he says, than "crying."

A MYSTERIOUS "gun tragedy" causes excitement in Baltimore. President Byers of the Western Maryland Railroad and Vice President Gray of the same road were found locked in the president's office after what seemed to have been a fight with pistols.

The railroad president died instantly, a bullet through his heart. The vice president, rushed to a hospital operating room, where a priest performed the last rites, died four hours later.

Whether it was murder and suicide, a quarrel suddenly started, or a duel to the death, deliberately planned, no one may know.

IN LOWELL HOUSE, at Harvard, a portrait of Professor Smyth, graduate of 1878, Eliot professor of Greek literature, was found slashed with a knife, the face cut out.

University authorities starting an investigation, will find, if anything, bootleg whisky, acting on a half-baked mind.

DISPATCHES FROM Vienna predict early war in the Balkans.

Hatred between Jugo-Slavs and the Italians may start trouble at any moment, and material for another disaster is ready. Standing armies are bigger than before the big war. The "little entente" alone could bring 5,000,000 men to the battlefields.

President Von Hindenburg isn't worried about conditions in Germany.

He fears no "putsch" anywhere in Germany, is satisfied with his government's ability to take care of itself and attend to Germany's problems.

The courage of that old fighting man would be useful here, where so many of us are shivering.

NO VOTE MACHINES FOR ELECTION

BOB JONES, VON ELM WIN MATCHES

Atlantan Defeats Canadian Champ, 5-4, in First Round; Gunn, Local Star, Loses

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 24.—(AP.) — Shooting sensational golf, Bobby Jones began the match play battle for the national amateur golf championship today by crushing Ross Somerville, the Canadian titleholder, 5 and 4, in the first round.

Jones was two under par for 14 holes and Somerville remarked:

"There was not much chance for me against that kind of golf."

The triple champion had his putter working almost miraculously as he finished the outgoing nine with three birdies, 3-3-2 to become 4 up.

Somerville put up a game fight, but he was able to win only one hole, the twelfth, when Jones three-putted. The cards:

VON ELM ADVANCES

George Von Elm of Los Angeles, playing a brand of golf as spectacular as that of Jones, overwhelmed Chuck Hunter, 6 and 5, but favorites and "seeded" stars as Francis Ouimet, of Boston, T. Philip Perkins, of New York, the former British champion, and Dr. Oscar F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., the 1829 runner-up, were apruptly eliminated from the competition.

Ouimet and Willing were the victims of upsets sprung by youthful stars, the former losing to George Kocsis, 18-year-old Detrotier, 3 and 2, while Willing, in a desperate fight, was beaten at

DUN CLARA BOW IN GAMBLING LOSSES

Resort Claims 'It' Girl Stopped Payment After Giving $13,900 in Checks

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—(AP.) — Having issued a statement denying anyone had a "rightful claim" against her, Clara Bow, film actress, remained silent while attorneys for a resort proprietor today sought to collect alleged gambling debts totaling $13,900 which they said were incurred by a girl with flaming red hair who had been introduced as the "It" girl of the screen.

Miss Bow issued the statement after attorneys for James McKay, operator of the gambling resort on the Nevada shore of fashionable Lake Tahoe, announced they had appealed to B. P. Schulberg, production manager of the studio employing the actress.

FOUR CHECKS STOPPED

McKay said the girl, introduced by a man known as Will Rogers and accompanied by a woman assumed to be Marie Dressler, gave four checks for losses at roulette and other games last week and that the checks had been returned to him marked "payment stopped."

The checks were said to have been given in amounts of $6,000, $7,300 and two for $300 each, drawn on a Hollywood bank.

The actress, after hearing of McKay's statement, issued the follow-in statement yesterday:

"If anyone in the world feels he has a rightful claim against me for any sum of money whatsoever, which I deny, I will gladly accept service of any legal documents. I always pay every honest debt promptly."

"CANNOT COLLECT"

Immediately afterward she was not to be found and no elaboration of the statement was obtainable.

Schulberg said yesterday he had received no communication from McKay's attorneys. It was pointed out, however, that the letter probably had not yet reached Los Angeles.

Certain forms of gambling are legal in Nevada, but attorneys asserted checks given in games of chance could not be collected by court action.

T. A. T. PAYS $1 TO USE COUNTY AIR FIELD

'Ready by Spring,' Babcock Told, Reporting Lack of Progress During Month

With announcement today that the county airport would be ready for early spring flying, the county commissioners voted to give the Transcontinental Air Transport Corporation for $1 the privilege of landing at the field for one year.

Commissioner E. V. Babcock presented a letter in which he contends no progress has been made on the airport in the last month.

Commissioners J. G. Armstrong and Babcock joined in approving the lease with the Transport Corporation, the first aviation line to seek the right, over protest of Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who held all concessions should be awarded by competitive bidding.

P. R. R. SUBSIDIARY

McGovern declared the transport concern was a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad and should not be favored.

Armstrong and Babcock asserted that all air lines would be given equal rights at the same terms, which included compliance with national air laws and such regulations as the county might impose.

Discussion of the airport followed presentation of the letter from Commissioner E. V. Babcock to Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong.

The letter dated September 22, stated:

"Yesterday (Sunday) I visited the county airport. To the best of my belief, after observation as careful as possible, there has been no progress made on this airport since we were out there a month ago.

"In other words, the best month of the year has faded away with no material advancement. I have called Director

Report Mellon Buying $800,000 Russian Art

JAN VAN EYCK'S "ANNUNCIATION"... SOLD TO A. W. MELLON?

Secretary Denies Purchase Of 'Annunciation,' Painted By Noted Van Eyck.

Andrew W. Mellon has purchased "Annunciation," said to be one of the finest of old-master paintings, and ascribed to Jan Van Eyck, at a cost of $800,000, unconfirmed Paris dispatches announced today.

The painting was purchased from the Hermitage Museum at Leningrad, the report says.

Mr. Mellon, through a secretary at his Washington office, denied the purchase. The secretary said:

"Mr. Mellon said he has not purchased any Russian paintings. That is the best information I can obtain in the matter."

He said he could not say whether Mr. Mellon was negotiating for any of the rare Russian paintings that are understood to be en route to this country.

"The Annunciation" was painted in 1433. It was purchased by the Hermitage Museum for £518 in 1850 in Holland at the end of the monarchial reign of King William, II.

Only one other canvas by Jan Van Eyck is in America, that being "The Portrait of a Man," belonging to the Johnson collection in the Philadelphian Museum.

Woodside Won't Authorize Money Pending Ruling On Contract Litigation

October 6 was fixed today by the court for the hearing in the attack of Francis S. Guthrie upon the contract of Allegheny County with the Poole Engineering and Machine Company for 1,000 voting machines, Guthrie asks that the contract be voided, and that an injunction be issued.

This action apparently relieves the Poole company of the necessity of delivering the first 70 of the machines by October 1.

The date of hearing was set by Judges James B. Drew and Frank P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court at the request of Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, for Guthrie; Oliver K. Eaton for the Poole company, and Solicitor M. B. Lesher for Allegheny county.

HOPE DISAPPEARS

In the entire tangled situation regarding voting machines, one fact seemed to be clear—that the possibility of using voting machines at the November election had reached the vanishing point.

Controller Woodside, after the court action, said:

"Until the legality of the vote machine contract is determined, I will not pay out any money for voting machines, even if they are delivered."

Acting County Solicitor Lesher, expressed the opinion that there will be no delivery of vote machines here until after the legality of the contract has been determined.

ATTORNEYS PUZZLED

Besides today's court action, the whole voting machine question seems so involved that even astute attorneys profess to be puzzled. With it all is the secrecy with

SISTER CLAIMS MANSON BODY

The body of David C. Manson, 55, an engineer, who killed his 22-year-old wife, Helen, and committed suicide in their apartment, 44 Academy avenue, Sunday, was claimed at the County Morgue today by his sister, Miss Jean Manson, of Chicago.

Miss Manson said she would have her brother's body cremated and send the ashes to Chicago.

Disposition of the wife's body awaits word from her relatives. A letter to the dead woman arrived at the Academy avenue address yesterday. It was postmarked San Antonio, Tex., and signed "Mother."

Miss Manson said her brother told her last December that he was going to apply for a divorce. Later the couple came to Pittsburgh.

RAIL TRAGEDY LAID TO FEUD

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24—(AP)—Back of the slaying of Maxwell C. Byers, president of the Western Maryland Railway, and the suicide of Dudley G. Gray, the traffic vice-president, was years of antagonism, but fellow officials expressed amazement today that business differences had developed into the double tragedy.

Locked in his office in a downtown office building, Byers was shot by Gray yesterday and the latter then took his own life. There were no witnesses, though Dr. Otto M. Reinhardt, acting coroner, gave a verdict of murder and suicide, he emphasized he had not completed his investigation and today interviewed Mrs. Catherine Leonard Gray, the vice-president's widow, who arrived from Columbus, O., where she had

WOMAN SHOOTS FOE IN COURT

ENID, Okla., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dolly Douthitt, eccentric 60-year-old widow, shot and seriously wounded H. C. Wedgwood, attorney and United States commissioner, and fired another shot at Judge Arthur G. Sutton, of Alva, in court here today. The second shot did not take effect.

Wedgwod was defendant in one of seven suits which Mrs. Douthitt was involved as either plaintiff or defendant. The suit in which Mrs. Douthitt sought damages from Wedgwood had just been dismissed by Judge Sutton.

The 20-odd court attaches, attorneys and spectators were thrown into a panic when Mrs. Douthitt, who had been acting as her own attorney, arose from the counsel table, whipped a pistol from her dress and fired.

In her damage suit against Wedgwood, Mrs. Douthitt claimed the commissioner had "persecuted" her.

BIG COUNTY BIDS PREPARED

Bids on projects involving $2,250,000 that will give work to many hundreds, will be ready for advertising within a few days, Public Works Director Norman F. Brown informed the county commissioners today.

These include the masonry contract for the new South Tenth Street Bridge, estimated to cost $908,000; masonry for Boston Bridge, $205,000; steel work for West End Bridge, $893,000; construction of Flaughtery Run road, Moon and Findlay townships, $319,000, and McNeeley avenue, Mt. Lebanon, $188,000.

Pittsburgh Coal Rates Held Unfair

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Rates on ground or pulverized coal shipped from Charleroi, Rillton, Irwin, Pittsburgh, Yukon and Wyano, Pa., to northwestern destinations on the Ann Arbor Railroad were held to be unreasonable yesterday by Examiner Haden, of the Interstate Commerve Commission. He recommended reparation.

Stubenrauch, Lavery Are Arrested

Herman J. Stubenrauch and Joseph (Bozo) Lavery, automobile detectives, whose activities in and out police circles have resulted in their several appearances before police trial board, were placed under arrest today, charged with disorderly conduct.

They were arrested by Police Captain Anthony Block in the corridor of the City-County Building just outside Police Superintendent Peter Walsh's office, where Stubenrauch had a moment before appeared.

The arrests were the outgrowth of an argument between Block and Stubenrauch. It was reported that upon emerging from the hearing, Stubenrauch accused Block of "giving him a raw deal."

Pardon Asked for Youth 'Fagan' Kept Intoxicated

HARRISBURG, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Claiming that his client had been under the influence of a "Fagan" and had been intoxicated for three days prior to committing the crime, D. W. Holmes, of Hattiesburg, Miss., asked the state board of pardons today to pardon Chester Benton Miley, of Allegheny county.

Miley was convicted of robbery on September 4, 1925, and was sentenced to serve eight to ten years in the Western Penitentiary.

Holmes said Miley was 22 years old at the time and was under the influence of an older man who was a criminal. He added that this man had Miley intoxicated continuously for three days prior to the perpetration of the robbery.

Because the two accomplices of Frank Cardone, also of Allegheny county, drew suspended sentences in June, 1926, while he was sentenced to serve five to 10 years in the Western Penitentiary, a pardon was sought for him.

Harry Fink, convicted in Allegheny County in June, 1929, of conspiracy to commit a statutory offense, sought a pardon to remove him from parole on the ground that he was the victim of a political controversy in the Third Ward of Pittsburgh.

Wheat Prices Lowest in 24 Years

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—(INS.)—New low prices for wheat were recorded on the Chicago Board of Trade today as brokers in a nearpanis unloaded their holdings.

The price of wheat sank in the first two hours to the lowest in 24 years.

As the market continued to tumble, three prominent Chicagoans left for Washington for what was understood to be a conference with President Hoover on the wheat situation. They are Attorned Silas H. Strawn, Siebel C. Harris and Peter B. Carey.

Borah, La Follette To Stump for Walsh

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—An appeal to Republican voters who three times previously have assured the election of Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, to the United States Senate in a normally Republican state, is to be made in his behalf this fall by Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, independent Republicans. A statement from Walsh's headquarters said today Borah and La Follette would stump Montana for their colleague in his campaign against Justice Albert J. Galen, Republican nominee.

Man Fined for Carrying Slot Machine in Street

William Berger, 41, of 138 Lincoln avenue, Millvale, arrested while carrying a slot machine in East Ohio street at Madison avenue, early today, was fined $50 with the alternative of 60 days in the workhouse, in North Side Police Court.

He testified he was moving the machine from the second floor of 800 East Ohio street at the request of John Buettner, proprietor of a fruit store on the first floor. Police said that $25 in quarters, dimes and nickels had been found in Berger's pockets, and that they confiscated whisky and moonshine from the place Berger had taken the machine.

Buettner, 36, of 824 Concord street, taken after Berger's arrest, told Magistrate Ray Schneider a man named "Smith" operated the moonshine place. He was held in $1,000 bail while police look for "Smith."

J. & L. SPENDING $8,400,000 TO IMPROVE PLANTS HERE

CORPORATION EXPANDS MILLS

Officials Regard Additions As Company's Indication Of Faith in Pittsburgh

The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation is spending $8,400,000 for improvements to its plants within the city proper, it was revealed today. Company officials regard this as their indication of faith in the industrial future of Pittsburgh. The improvements to the Pittsburgh plant are a part of the $21,000,000 program announced several months ago.

FURNISHES WORK

The construction activities are requiring the services of several hundred men.

Principal among the Pittsburgh works' improvements is a new electrically-driven rolling mill, which will be the last word in efficient production of high-quality steel bars.

Another improvement in the Pittsburgh works is a modern boiler and power plant, designed to furnish ample power for operation of the new bar mill and other units on both sides of the Monongahela River. This plant is located in the Eliza Furnace group, and when completed, will represent an outlay of several million dollars.

Still another major improvement is an extension to the Hazelwood polishing mill, involving the expenditure of a large sum of money.

All these plants when in operation will furnish employment to many hundreds of men and will add materially to the prosperity of the city.

NEW BAR MILL

Excavation work for foundations for the new bar mill has already begun. It is located on the site of the former bee-hive coke ovens in the Hazelwood district. The new by-product system of coke production made the old coke ovens obsolete, and their abandoned site furnished ample room for a modern mill. The excavating is being done by the steel company.

The new bar mill will have a capacity of about a quarter million tons of steel bars a year, ranging from 1 to 3 inches in size. Th. Morgan Construction Company, of Worcester, Mass., has the contract for construction of this mill.

The balance of the $21,000,000 for improvements has been or will be expended in the company's Aliquippa works, 20 miles down the Ohio River below Pittsburgh, or in its iron ore and coal mines, stone quarries and other subsidiaries.

N. Y. AIR LINE PERMIT ASKED

Application of the Pittsburgh Air Transport Corporation for permission to establish a regular passenger air service between this city and New York was opposed before the Public Service Commission today by the Pittsburgh Airways Corporation, which operates a "call and demand" service.

Maj. H. S. Martin, of the Air Transport Corporation, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, testified planes would be operated daily, except during "cyclones and tornadoes," along what is known as the central route, flying south of Altoona, with stops at Harrisburg and Philadelphia. The fare would be 10 cents a mile, he said.

According to testimony, the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries has a paid-in capital of $1,000,000.

The opposing air line operates along what is known as the "southern route." It uses Bettis Field for landing. The new corporation, if granted a certificate, will use both the Bettis and Butler landing fields, Maj. Martin said.

T. Taney, operating manager of Pittsburgh Airways, testified his concern had operated between Bettis Field and Newark, N. J., almost daily since April 15, without a permit of the Public Service Commission. They carried 133 passengers in May and 164 in August, he stated.

Daniel M. Casey, secretary of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce urged that the new company be given a permit as the state capital has ample facilities for landing.

Brown's attention to this once and certainly cannot understand it."

Armstrong announced that hereafter on the first Tuesday of every month Public Works director N. F. Brown will be required to give a detailed report on progress at the port.

OFFERS PLANS

Brown submitted his first report today, producing numerous plans for the hangars, administration building and the general working plan of the airport and said that surfacing of the field can be continued throughout the winter and the port finished early in the spring for flying.

The commissioners granted an extension to the Vang Construction Company for excavating and grading that part of the site comprising the farm of Charles Lutz, who is opposing condemnation of his land, until 60 days after the county has obtained the right of way.

5 MEN, 4 GIRLS HELD IN KILLING

Five men and four young girls, arrested in connection with the murder of Charles Hammond, 22, Liberty Bell Service station attendant, Boggs and Warrington avenues, Saturday night, were held for further questioning after a hearing before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today.

The men are Conrad Staub, 34, 508 Natchez street; Ollie Girwood, 40, 57 Dilworth street; Adolph Romana, 18, 526 Griffin street; Arthur Phillips, 18, 154 Southern avenue, and Edward Staub, 508 Natchez street.

Because of their youth the Sun-Telegraph will not publish the names of the girls involved.

Arrested by homicide detectives early Sunday morning, they were said to have been engaged in an all-night party near the filling station on Boggs and Warrington avenues Saturday night.

"BAERING" DOWN ON THE NEWS WITH ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Ten million bushels of Russian wheat have been dumped on the Chicago grain market and we have to learn a new language in order to read bread labels.

The Soviet has a queer method of showing antagonism. It hates us so much it wants to make us fat. If your biscuits explode this morning you will know that a little international yeast got mixed up with the flour.

The next time you see the neighbor waving a red flag out of the kitchen window you will know she is making muffins and that you will have to turn your appetite over to the custodian of alien property.

Grain speculation is only an imaginary transaction. Brokers never see the grain they buy. And when you purchase bread you see very little of it for a dime.

When you hear the food speculators hollering wolf you know the ultimate consumers are the pups.

The trouble with the brokers is that they have been overcharging so much they forget there is such a thing as underselling.

But, if that Soviet wheat is the stuff that makes that black bread we are going to have a tough time shoveling aside ten million bushels in order to get [illegible] good to eat.

TARRED, TAILOR TAKEN TO JAIL

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Chief of detectives L. O. Scarboro said today that David Weinberg, 44, a tailor, who was tarred and feathered and dumped from an auto in the downtown section last night by unidentified men, had been removed from a hospital to Dade County Jail "for his own good."

Scarboro declined to amplify his statement, but said he did not fear violence.

Weinberg was thrown from an automobile into a street in the downtown district of Miami early today after being kidnaped, beaten, bound and gaged and covered with tar and feathers and then wrapped in a white, hooded garment.

Police believe his study and frequent discussions of Communistic doctrines was the basic cause of the attack upon him.

Weinberg told questioners at the hospital last night that presence in his home of a number of tracts on Communism, race equality and religion might be responsible for his having been beaten and tarred.

Sight Restored, Joy Proves Fatal

HOOVER OPENS HOME OWNING CONFERENCE

Easier to Borrow for Auto Than House, He Declares; Wants Financing Studied

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — (AP.) — President Hoover today told the initial meeting of the planning committee of his conference on home building and home ownership that it should be possible for anybody of sound character and industrious habits to provide himself with adequate housing and preferably to buy his own home.

The committee held its first session at the White House. It was set up at the suggestion of Mr. Hoover to study the problem of home ownership with a view to making it easier for the average citizen to own a home.

HOME VS. AUTO

The President told the committee the financing of home building, especially through second mortgages, is the most backward segment of the whole credit system. He added it was easier to borrow 85 per cent on an automobile and repay it on the installment plan than to buy a home on that basis—and generally the house requires a higher interest rate. The President said:

"I appreciate very much the high sense of public service which has brought you here today. I would not have asked you to come if I had not felt deeply that there was a real need.

"For some years the business community, our municipalities and great numbers of associations devoted to the promotion of public welfare have interested themselves in the problems of more adequate housing and home ownership.

LAG BEHIND IDEALS

"I wil say at once that we have a larger proportion of adequate housing than any country in the world, but we still lag far behind our national ideals for homes for all our people. Substantial advances have been made in some parts of the country; great experience has been gained and it has been the wish of many of these groups that there should be a thorough national inquiry with view to a summation of this experience, the mobilization of existing movements and the possible developments from it of a new state of thought and action."

Irene-Dague Reward Cash Soon Available

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 24.—The $200 reward offered by the Pittsburgh Automobile Club and the $500 offered by the Keystone Automobile Club, of Philadelphia, for the apprehension of Irene Schroder and W. Glenn Dague are expected soon to be in the hands of the County Commissioners. The local reward money, $2,500, has all been paid in.

As soon as all the money is on hand it will be forwarded to Phoenix, Ariz., for distribution among the deputy sheriffs and others who captured Irene and Dague after the killing of Highway Patrolman Brady Paul.

Hoover to Parade Cleveland Streets

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(INS.)—President Hoover will parade down Euclid avenue, Cleveland, upon his arrival there next Wednesday, it was announced here today.

After luncheing with civic leaders, the President will spend the afternoon on a motor tour of the city and its suburbs. At 8:30 p. m. he will address the American Bankers Association at the Auditorium and depart later for Washington.

been visiting. Dr. Reinhardt said Mrs. Gray was able to shed no light on the tragedy. Friends accompanied her and had to use restoratives when she collapsed at the railway station.

DENIES INTERVIEWERS

Mrs. Gray declined to be interviewed by reporters. Mrs. Byers collapsed at the hospital yesterday when told her husband was dead.

A statement issued by the company said:

"Mr. Byers and Mr. Gray have been officials of the Western aMryland Railway for 15 years or more. While they frequently differed sharply on matters of policy in connection with the company's affairs, we never knew them to have any serious personal differences."

Aside from expressions of opinion that the antagonism was over the traffic department of the road, of which Gray had charge, fellow officials could shed little light.

When Byers was made president, arrangements were made, it was said, whereby Gray, an older man, would be responsible only to the board of directors in matters of traffic. Byers was known as the youngest railroad president in the country when he took office in 1920. But in 1926 Byers became also chairman of the board, as well, and Gray became subordinate to him in all matters.

IN GOOD SPIRITS

Fellow officials said Gray apparently was in good spirits when he reached the office shortly before noon yesterday, and went into conference with Byers. They believed, however, that he had become obsessed with the idea that he was not being treated fairly.

There was no movement to retire Gray, his position being secure. Neither did Byers contemplate resigning, it was said at the Western Maryland headquarters.

Relations between the two were strictly on railroad matters. They never met socially their associates said.

Milton Byers, a brother of the slain railroad president, was expected today from Point Pleasant, W. Va., and later the body was to be taken to Point Pleasant, his old home, for burial.

Pending the completion of the coroner's investigation, the body of Gray was denied relatives. Gray was a native of Columbus, O., and it was expected the body would be taken there.

Byers was 52 years old and Gray nine years his senior.

P. S. C. HEARS BUS FARE PROTEST

Adjourns Hearing Until October 15 as Coach Line Asks for Longer Delay

Decision on whether the rates charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company are too high again was delayed when S. Ray Shelby, Public Service Commissioner, adjourned today's hearing until October 15.

The Allied Boards of Trade is waging the fight for lower rates after the Sun-Telegraph's survey of fares in other cities revealed that Pittsburgh pays more for bus service than any other municipality in the country.

OBJECTIONS OVERRULED

The coach company put up a determined fight for a long postponement and the suppression of testimony tending to show excessive charges. Shelby overruled all objections and said the commission wanted to dispose of the case as early as possible.

Attorney P. A. Pfleger, for the coach concern, raised objection to a report on the bus situation prepared by John M. Rice, for the allied boards, on the ground that Rice was not an expert on traffic matters. W. G. Negley, attorney for the trade boards, told the commissioners that Rice was an authority on mass transportation, and Shelby ordered the report accepted as part of the record.

READS STATEMENT

Rice then read his 32-page report, which was compiled as a result of engineering conferences sponsored by the trade boards.

Rice said in part:

"The subordination of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company service to financial interests of the Pittsburgh Railways Company results in unfair treatment of the public. The coach company should give competent service at reasonable rates without consideration of its effect on other utilities."

3 YOUTHS HELD IN ROBBERIES

Three youths arrested early today charged with breaking into the store of Catherine Kelly, 2001 Windgap road, were turned over to McKees Rocks police in Morals Court. They are John Mysliwic, 19, of 1142 Twelfth street; Joseph Tonneleck, 18, of 813 Eighth avenue, and Michael Glassner, 17, of 157 Hiland avenue, all of Stowe Township.

McKees Rocks police arrested the boys when they surprised them in the store, according to the police report, and turned them over to West End police for investigation.

C. B. Mason, 43, of 1876 Morningside avenue, told police that while walking in Baker street, near Butler street, two men strong-armed him and robbed him of $180.

Coolidge Urges Leisure Be Profitably Employed

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 24.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Oftentimes leisure can be profitably employed. While there are some people out of work who are well educated, there are many others who were displaced because they were not sufficiently trained to hold their places. When the time comes to reduce the force, those go first who cannot compete with their more skilled fellow workmen. As our industrial life becomes more complex and requires more and more technical knowledge, it will be increasingly difficult for the unskilled to find and hold employment. High wages require a high earning capacity.

Calvin Coolidge

With the present school facilities for the young this situation will come to take care of itself. But the condition would be very serious for those who have already reached maturity without such advantages, except for the opportunity that is afforded by the night schools and university extension.

These are practically free, and correspondence school courses cost but little. But people will find not only their present earning capacity, but their chance for further permanent employment greatly increased by serious application to some of these sources for intellectual training. The main value of a wage earner is his mind.

Motorist Rides Unharmed As Bomb in Auto Fails

STUART, Neb., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—A dynamite bomb wired to the spark plugs was found last night under the seat of Jay Wefso's automobile. It had failed to explode because the bomber had not grounded the wires properly.

A garage mechanic, to whom Wefso had taken the car when the starter failed to function, found the bomb—two sticks of dynamite wired together.

Wefso, who had driven the car at least twice with the bomb under the seat, said he knew of no one who might wish to seek his life. He said, however, that a young woman of his acquaintance had told him of receiving an unsigned letter warning her of danger that threatened Wefso.

Bolt Sinks Ship, Kills 10; 6 Drift 3 Days, Saved

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 24.—(INS.)—A tragedy of the sea which claimed 10 lives and subjected six survivors to the horror of 75 hours without food or water in an open boat was revealed today with the arrival of the schooner Viginette at North Sidney, Cape Breton Island.

The Viginette carried the survivors of the Newfoundland schooner Carranza, which sank off the Atlantic Coast after being struck by lightning in a terrific storm last Thursday night.

The Carranza had wallowed for hours in a raging sea while thunder roared and streaks of lightning split the black sky. Suddenly a bolt of lightning ripped the Carranza open from stem to stern.

The vessel sank almost immediately, the 16 occupants being hurled into the water.

Eight passengers and two members of the crew were drowned. Three passengers and three of the crew saved themselves by clambering aboard a lifeboat that floated away from the wreck.

Facing death by thirst or starvation even if the sea spared them, the six survivors drifted aimless for three days and a half, hoping against hope some vessel would wander across their path.

When hope had been virtually abandoned, sharp eyes aboard the Viginette sighted the tossing Cockleshell 100 miles off the Island of St. Pierre Miquelon. The occupants were rescued and landed safely on Cape Breton.

A misunderstanding developed between Purnell and Attorney Crawford, of plaintiff's counsel, as to the witness' answer regarding his knowledge of any error in the Price Waterhouse compilation. When Purnell said "it depends on what you call errors," Crawford asked:

The invitation was proposed by President A. J. Cermak. It was quickly concurred in by the commissioners. Mr. Cermak was requested, empowered and authorized" to transmit it to Mr. Hearst and to appoint a committee to represent the board in the reception and entertainment."

PUBLIC TRIBUTE

The board also agreed with its president that the reception be held in an auditorium or arena where the largest percentage of our population may participate and share in the tribute to this foremost American.

Commissioner Nettelhorst said:

"We ought to make this one of the most memorable events in Chicago's history. I believe we can not do enough to show the appreciation of the people for the great services Mr. Hearst has rendered the nation.

"I want this reception to be not only a magnificent tribute to Mr. Hearst for his sturdy Americanism, but also to serve as a protest against any foreign government according to an American citizen such treatment as was accorded by France to so distinguished a citizen as William Randolph Hearst."

MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Mayor Thompson followed up the Council's invitation of Monday with a telegram to Mr. Hearst. It read:

"September 23, 1930 — Hon. William Randolph Hearst, New York Journal, New York City:

"I have just returned to Chicago from my vacation spent at Nantucket, Mass., in the vicinity of Boston. I thought I might have the pleasure of meeting you while you were in Boston as the official guest of honor of that city, but you returned to New York earlier than I had expected. I take this, my first opportunity after my return to Chicago, to congratulate you on the compliment the French government paid your Americanism. I congratulate you, too, on the statement you issued when, by diplomatic request, you retired from France.

"You gave the world a laugh, and the laugh is on the French officials. They pushed you higher up on the ladder of fame.

"In line with George Washington's policy, we desire friendly relations with all nations, but entangling alliances with none. France, however, as United States Senator Robert F. Wagner said, in welcoming you back to New York, puts a severe handicap on international friendship when it resorts to such unchivalrous conduct as a means of attempting to influence the free expression of public opinion from an American standpoint. It was astonishing to me that the present French government would penalize an American for expressions made in America.

FRENCH HONOR

"I regret that since the days of Lafayette, the policy of the French government has so changed that it decorates some Americans whose Americanism is questionable and attempts to punish some whose Americanism is sound, being based on the principles of the founders of our republic. The French officials have indeed honored you in singling you out of all our people for their denunciation.

"Appropriately the people of Boston presented you with one of the three canes from the famous elm that stood for 200 years on the battlefield of Lexington. I agree with what Mayor James H. Curley said in making this presentation, that you are indeed 'a real, worth while defender of American principles—yes, the foremost of such in our country through your power to speak to 20,000,000 persons, readers of your publications daily.

"In accepting the 'constitutional big stick' you are quoted as saying what cannot be reiterated too often: 'The liberty born at Lexington was not only for America, but for the world.'

"Fundamentals of this liberty are a free press and free speech, with the right of peaceable assembly and repetition for redress of grievances. The French government of today seemingly does not understand this; the people of other nations have indicated that they do."

NON-PARTISAN EVENT

Cermak said he would confer with the mayor with a view to having the reception "a non-partisan and non-political event." He added:

"The mayor and I differ politically, but this is above politics. Mr. Hearst is a foremost American and all citizens want to join in demonstrating their appreciation of his great services in their behalf.

"The action of France against him was a direct attack on the people of this country. Our country was founded upon free speech and a free press. Mr. Hearst has ever kept alive the protection of those safeguards for our liberty."

Text of Cook County's Invitation to Hearst

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Here is the resolution inviting William Randolph Hearst to visit Chicago, as unanimously adopted by the Cook County Board of Commissioners, following similar action by the Chicago City Council Monday:

"Whereas, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, distinguished American citizen and leader in public affairs, was signally honored in all but one country he visited on his recent European trip, and

"Whereas, because of his unfailing devotion to American traditions and principles and his patriotic services to the United States two years ago in revealing for the protection of his country a secret treaty on Anglo-French naval relations, the French government recently requested him to leave French soil, and

"Whereas, the people of Germany, England and other nations registered their disapproval of the action by the French government and lauded Mr. Hearst's consistent stand for a free press and his devotion to the cause of his country, and

"Whereas, the citizens of other great cities by resolutions and public receptions have voiced their approval of Mr. Hearst and his stand against foreign entangling alliances and secret diplomatic treaties and pacts, and manifested in frank terms their resentment of the treatment accorded the distinguished American publisher, because he dared to reveal to the people of the United States the truth on international affairs vitally affecting their safety and welfare, and

"Whereas, the Board of Cook County Commissioners, representing the people of Chicago and Cook County, wishes to make formal recognition of the services rendered this nation by Mr. Hearst through his newspapers and magazine publications, and record their opposition to foreign entangling alliances and secret treaties, and voice their support to the cause of a free press and free speech in the interest of the United States and its citizenship.

"Now, therefore be it resolved, that the Board of Cook County Commissioners, in behalf of the people of Chicago and Cook County, does hereby extend an invitation to Mr. William Randolph Hearst to be the official guest of Chicago and Cook County, and that the City Council of Chicago and the Board of County Commissioners of Cook County join in welcoming Mr. Hearst at a public reception to be held in an auditorium or arena, where the largest percentage of our population may participate and share in the tribute to this foremost American.

"Be it further resolved, that the president of this honorable Board of County Commissioners be requested, empowered and authorized to transmit such invitation, and that the president of the board shall appoint a committee to represent the Board of Commissioners of Cook County and its citizens at the joint reception and entertainment for William Randolph Hearst."

URGES U. S. GIVE CITIZENS JOBS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—A recommendation that government construction contracts carry a stipulation that preference be given American citizens and former service men in employment of labor has been made to President Hoover by Representative Bacon (Rep.), of New York.

His letter was made public today.

In a separate communication to Secretary Mellon, Bacon said he had heard of instances in the Middle West, Pennsylvania and on Long Island where contractors recruited labor from remote points for work on postoffices and veterans' hospitals, brining it to "an already demoralized labor market and leaving the local supply in the rather sorry position of spectators."

P. R. R. Subsidiary To Issue Bonds

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Authority has been granted the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad by the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue and deliver to the Pennsylvania Railroad $711,000 general and refunding mort age four and one-half per cent bonds. The Pennsylvania has a 999-year lease on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh. February 1 and August 1 are interest dates of the new bonds which would mature February 1, 1972.

Fall Down Steps Causes Man's Death

Injuries received in a fall down a flight of steps at his home Sunday resulted in the death of Peter Zievobish, 42, of 37 Thirtieth street, in the St. Francis Hospital today. He suffered a broken neck.

NINE ARRESTED IN LOTTERY CLEANUP

North Side and Woods Run Places Raided; Pads And Equipment Seized

Two sporadic attempts to clean up the numbers racket in the North Side and Woods Run districts were made by North Side police today with nine arrests of alleged clearing house numbers writers on suspicious person charges.

Lieut. Harry Moore and a squad swooped down on a restaurant at 1322 Federal street. James Henderson, 28, alleged proprietor, who police say, admitted writing numbers, was arrested. Slips found in his establishment, Moore said, showed that amounts aggregating $100 for today's play had been written.

A short time later the squad raided a pool room at 1606 Beaver avenue, where eight men were arrested.

They were Raymond Rawie, 30, of 1433 Orchlee street; John Yeager, 69, of 1413 Juniata street; William Boyd, 28, of 948 West North avenue; O. M. Pifferman, 40, of Adams street; Albert Goetz, 30, of 1256 Lake street; August Pfalzgraf, 35, of Woods Run avenue; George Rafferty, 23, of 904 Kirkbrid street, and Cecil Clay, 22, of Charles street.

SUIT HOLDS UP VOTE MACHINES

which the Poole company surrounds its operations. Every effort to find how many machines have actually been built has met with failure.

The company's officers at the Baltimore plant, including President Proctor S. Brady, and Vice President Dudley Shoemaker refuse even to see inquirers. They refuse to answer questions or to make a statement regarding progress of manufacture.

President Brady refers inquirers to H. D. Hirsh, the company's Pittsburgh attorney. Hirsh declares several hundred machines have been manufactured although none have been sent to Pittsburgh.

LAW'S PROVISION

One point, which so far has received little attention, is the right of the state to take the purchase of voting machines out of the hands of the Allegheny County Commissioners. The state law provides:

"If the County Commissioners shall not, within one year, have executed their contract or contracts for the purchase or procurement of voting machines for use at the next general, municipal or primary election, occurring at least one year and 60 days after the referendum, then the secretary of the commonwealth shall forthwith, in writing, notify the said County Commissioners that, after the expiration of 30 days, he, under the authority of this act, on behalf of the said county, will award, make and execute such contract or contracts, unless the said County Commissioners meanwhile shall have made and executed the same."

The law continues:

"If, upon the expiration of 30 days, the County Commissioners still shall not have made and executed the contract or contracts aforesaid, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, on behalf of the said county and upon the approval of the Attorney General as to form, shall thereupon award, make and execute a contract or contracts for the purchase or procurement of one voting machine, approved as required by this act, for each election district within each such county, city, borough or township."

The law directs the county shall pay the bill.

GUTHRIE'S CHARGES

The election at which the adoption of voting machines was approved by Allegheny County voters took place November 5, 1929.

In his complaint to the court Guthrie charges among other things, that the Poole bid was not inclosed in the proper envelope; he questions the form of bond; he denies the Poole company ever demonstrated in Allegheny County a voting machine built to meet the specifications. He charged that the Poole company did not submit a certified statement as to where its machine was in satisfactory service, and even asserts the Poole company has never built any kind of a voting machine.

MAYOR CHARLES H. KLINE

All Butter-makers Know That—old cream is the arch-enemy of quality butter

Cream is a highly-perishable product—it is best when strictly fresh, and should therefore, especially when being used to churn butter, be used as quickly as possible after it is separated from the milk.

READ the following!

LEARN the fundamental reason why DONAHOE'S Butter Is The BEST Butter In Pittsburgh!

Learn why the Creamery that makes Donahoe's Butter is today conceded by authorities and discriminating experts to be making the best butter made in the United States—learn one of the main reasons why this Creamery has won a bushel basket of awards at World's Fairs, State Fairs, County Fairs, Dairy Shows and Conventions.

The DIFFERENCE In Butter

is made from whole milk separator cream, which means, our Creamery demands and buys the whole milk as it comes from the cow. This whole milk is delivered fresh early every morning to this most modern, spic and span Creamery; under skilled supervision the whole milk is run through clean, sanitary, electrically driven separators, which separate the cream from the milk, and, at once, the absolutely fresh separated cream is churned into butter by expert butter makers.

The separating of milk, to obtain the ideal richness of cream for churning, involves many complexities—and the subject of richness of cream and the problems related to it are of vital importance in the making of quality butter.

Consequently, being made every day from absolutely pure, fresh cream, of ideal richness, Donahoe's Creamery Butter is always fresh, pure and sweet.

The AVERAGE Creamery Butter

is made from farm hand separator cream, which means, the farmer or diaryman does his own separating of cream from milk and the cream is delivered several times a week to a cream-buying station or is shipped a long distance to a centralized creamery.

Sometimes such cream is kept on the farm until the can is full, which may take a week or longer.

The consequence is that the creamery, receiving shipments of cream from hundreds of different farmers, makes its butter from the mixtures of fresh and old cream received from the various farmers. It is impossible to produce high quality butter from such cream.

Whole milk separator creameries are getting scarcer every year—it costs more to make butter by having the whole milk delivered fresh every day to the creamery—consequently butter like Donahoe's commands a premium—but it has the "quality"—and that is why the butter "connoisseurs" of Pittsburgh eat Donahoe's Creamery Butter—it has no equal in Pittsburgh.

You Can Quickly See—

The immense sanitary and other advantages of separating the cream from the whole milk in an immaculate, modern creamery over the farm hand separator cream method, so is it any wonder that DONAHOE'S Butter is the BEST in Pittsburgh.

You Can't Do The Impossible!

Butter made from MIXED CREAM—some fresh, some old—cream kept for a week or more—simply cannot have the rare, delicate flavor of butter freshly made every day from absolutely fresh cream.

DONAHOE'S Creamery Butter —BEST in Pittsburgh

now available in the ultra-modern butter package—four quarter-pound bars, individually wrapped in parchment in a paraffined carton. Also one and two-pound rolls, pound prints and by the tub—buy it your favorite way all this week at our special low Introductory Price.

TRIANGLE CLUE IN SLAYING

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 24.—(AP.) — Detectives investigating the death of Mrs. Margaret McCoy Sheetz, 26, whose body, with a bullet hole through the head, was found Sunday in a gravel pit near Malvern, announced last night that they had learned the woman for some time had been clandestinely meeting one of her husband's closest friends.

They discovered this, the detectives said, as they questioned Edwin Gill, 27, of Philadelphia, and Harry Sheetz, 26, husband of the slain woman. Both denied knowledge of the shooting.

Mrs. Sheetz was last seen alive Saturday morning when she left her home at Hughes Park, near Norristown, to do some shopping. Gill, who is married and has two children, was said by County Detective John B. Stevenson to have admitted he had been meeting Mrs. Sheetz clandestinely. He told the police he had seen her Saturday morning in the railroad station at Norristown, and that she got on a train.

SAGE WARNS U.S. OF CITY PERIL

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—George Russell, better known as "AE," Irish poet, painter and agricultural economist, arrived on the Cedric to warn America of the peril of city civilization.

Unless the movement of population away from the farm to the city is checked, he said, the vitality of the people is likely to be weakened.

Quoting statistics of American economists to the effect that 20 per cent of the population now is on the farms, Russell said:

"Contact with the land makes for a stronger race. You must not let your rural population decline to less than 20 per cent or you will imperil your national vitality."

The 63-year-old sage and mystic, who is here for a lecture tour of six months which will take him into every section of the country, will devote his talks to his philosophy of rural civilization, in which co-operative farming has a large part.

BRAZILIAN MOB HANGS POLICE

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Dispatches from the town of Sao Lourenco said two police officers had been lynched by the maddened populace for killing a farmer who resisted a personal search for arms. They were taken from the town jail and lynched in the streets.

The officers stopped a farmer named Ascendino Centeno Crespo as he was coming into town with his family. The inspector following Crespo into a store, told him he had come to disarm him.

A dispute arose, and both the inspector and his assistant shot the farmer. The policemen were taken to the jail, but when the populace learned of the shooting, they stormed the building and lynched the officers.

When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are not yourself—60% is dangerous

A fact you should not overlook

MORE red-cells in the blood! Good health and resistance to infection and disease, depend on that. If a lowered red-cell count is allowed to continue, ANEMIA often results.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. A hundred years of experience has proved its usefulness in building red-cells in the blood. Take it before meals. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to restore their red-blood-cells. The appetite picks up, the whole body is strengthened, invigorated! Get S.S.S.—take it and possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality. Ask for the large size. At all drug stores. © S.S.S. Co.

How to recognize a low blood count

Blood is Life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. If your vitality and clear skin are slipping away from you, try S.S.S.

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to every cubic millimeter.

Announcing

McCann's East Liberty Store

DURING the past months thousands of people have asked us—"When does the East Liberty Store open?"

Many of these customers live out at East Liberty. They have gone out of their way for years to be certain of getting McCann's food—the best of food. They have made the trip from East Liberty to McCann's downtown store because they believed it was a worthwhile thing to do.

Now, as an appreciation for these years of friendly patronage, McCann's is opening a store in the heart of East Liberty for the greater convenience of its patrons—a food store complete in every detail—modern to the latest word.

Older Pittsburghers will know the location of the new McCann's at once when we say that we are housed in the famous old Rittenhouse. Perhaps only the oldest residents will recognize the outside of the building as it appears today. Newer folks, admiring the beautiful Cobalt blue on the face of the outside walls and on the Corinthian columns, have praised our daring.

But in lowered tones—remembering the historic part the Rittenhouse long played in the life of Pittsburghers—let us say that the color on this building, novel as it seems, is not new. It was really one of the first buildings in this country to employ color on the outside. The honest dust of Pittsburgh—accumulating in the busy passing years—had merely hidden all the marvel of color and detail. Today—after weeks by busy workers and at an unbelievable expense—the building stands revealed as a handsome, modernly equipped home for McCann's new store.

Words could be set down a-plenty about the interior—the costly changes, the tearing out of walls, the setting of creamy tiles combined with rubbed oak for the new walls—the "homey" red tile floors—the sanitary metal and marble counters.

Words are poor things to juggle with in giving you even an inkling of the completeness—the appropriateness of the setting for McCann's famous foods. Each food department is complete in itself—making shopping an easier, quicker affair. No wondering what to choose. It's all before your eyes. No wandering about to locate the thing you want.

As to the food—what can be said more than that McCann's East Liberty store carries the same quality, the very same splendid assortment that thousands of Pittsburghers have learned to rely upon in the main store of McCann's?

Cooked dishes in great variety—each a chef's masterpiece that entices you to try others. If time presses, you can order a dinner, cooked complete. An ambitious menu—or a simple meal—it's all the same to McCann's.

Then there's McCann's famous coffee—roasted every day—four marvelous blends—vital in flavor, clear, bright, delicate and fragrant. And McCann's butter—over three million pounds will be eaten by particular Pittsburghers this year.

Epicures of Pittsburgh and its surroundings have always looked to McCann's for the finest in food, until—at the opening of the new East Liberty store—McCann's is a tradition interwoven in the lives of the city's particular homes.

Do come then—see for yourself! Judge for yourself what it means to homes of East Liberty to have this wonderful store—with its right things for all occasions and every emergency—just around the corner.

U. S. DIVORCE JAILS MAN

MONTREAL, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A former Canadian who left his wife, obtained a divorce in Ohio and remarried now faces a charge of bigamy here.

Lawyers said the outcome of the case will have an important bearing on the status of Canadians who obtain divorces in the United States and remarry there.

J. De Courville was married here in 1915. He left his wife and three children in 1917 and went to the United States. The next year the wife was served with papers in a divorce action brought in Ohio. The divorce was granted and De Courville remarried, later becoming a United States citizen.

When he returned to Montreal recently, his former wife caused his arrest on charges of bigamy and failure to provide for her and the children.

KLINE GREETS SAFETY MEN

Mayor Charles H. Kline issued a proclamation today officially welcoming the nineteenth annual Safety Congress which will open here Monday.

Declaring that 8,000 Pennsylvanians were killed and 400,000 were injured in accidents in 1929, the Mayor urged that the spirit of the congress "Safety Above All" be observed.

The official declared that while much progress has been made in safety measures in Pittsburgh industries a still greater effort should be made to insure safety.

He also urged the merchants of the city to display flags while the congress is in session.

Diamond Free, Goes To Summer Home

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(INS)—The man nobody wants, Jack "Legs" Diamond was believed today to be speeding to his summer home at Acra, N. Y. The New York racketeer king was released in Philadelphia yesterday after being held for a brief questioning following his arrival from Germany, which deported him. Diamond was last seen speeding on a New Jersey road.

New York police intimated if Diamond remained at his summer home he would not be annoyed by detectives.

N. Y. Alimony Bureau Employes Arrested

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(INS)—New York's courts swayed today with a new scandal, following the holding of three city employes on charges of grand larceny. They were accused of a shortage in the accounts of the alimony bureau of the family court.

One of the three accused men told authorities he had loaned $4,500 of the amount to Edwin J. Cooley, former chief of the court of general sessions probation bureau. Cooley recently was acquitted of falsifying bureau records.

Burch's Wife Admits She May Ask Divorce

RENO, Nev., Sept. 24.—(INS)—That Mrs. Irene Burch, 28, wife of Arthur C. Burch, who was tried three times in Los Angeles on a charge of murdering J. Belton Kennedy in 1921, was contemplating filing divorce charges within the next 30 days was disclosed today when she was found living here in a modest cottage.

Mrs. Burch first met her husband several years after his last trial with Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain on the murder charge. All three trials resulted in disagreements.

WIFE HELD IN GIRL KILLING

LA PLATA, Md., Sept. 24.—(INS)—Although Mrs. Lulu M. Gamble, 45, is said to have admitted she fired to "frighten" her husband and his girl friend, but which fatally wounded the girl, held her today on a charge of murder. She is the mother of 10 children.

Mrs. Elsie Davis, 22, the other woman, died after lingering between life and death since Friday. Mrs. Gamble confronted Mrs. Davis and Gamble as they sat in the latter's machine near the Gamble home here.

The wife told a coroner's jury she didn't mean to kill Mrs. Davis and fired only to scare her. Gamble was the chief witness against his wife and announced he would not aid her in financing her defense. He is a prosperous farmer and keeper of bees here.

Heart Attack Kills Scranton Resident

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Stricken with heart failure last night while at his summer home on Lake Henry, Maplewood, near here, Thomas A. Ruddy, former city food inspector, died soon after medical aid reached him. He was a brother-in-law of E. J. Lynett, editor and owner of the Scranton Times, and had lived all his life in this city.

AIR MEMENTO SENT LINDY

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today received from the French air ministry a picture of Capt. Charles Nungesser's ill-fated airplane "White Bird," in which the famous French Ace flew to his death somewhere over the North Atlantic.

The picture was brought from Paris by Col. W. E. Easterwood, Jr., Dallas, Tex., businessman and aviation enthusiast, who is here to present to Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte the $25,000 check they won for being first to fly from Paris to Dallas.

The picture was autographed by Coste, Bellonte, Rene Fonck, who made several unsuccessful attempts to get away on an Atlantic flight, and William Coppens, Belgium's ace of aces.

A patrolman's bullet struck him in the nose as he was running from the scene. He told the jury he was taking a girl home when he heard shots and that he fled to escape injury. He was defended by former Assistant District Attorney Clyde Beixtell.

TRUE STORIES of CONSTRUCTIVE BANKING—No. 12

A NORTHSIDE COUPLE Proves the Value of Teamwork

SHORTLY after their marriage in the fall of 1926 they opened a Farmers Savings Account in joint names and because they work together under a planned out system of expenditures their moderate income goes a great deal further, their capital and credit are growing and they are enjoying many worthwhile pleasures. Last winter they motored to Florida for a wonderful vacation trip!

They've budgeted the salary and every month they deposit $30 or more. Today the balance is in the neighborhood of $1,000.00.

Money, after all, is only a means to an end and they make occasional withdrawals for such things as their Florida trip or new furniture. Working together, these two young people are building a secure foundation for future growth at the same time their financial program is actually giving them more for their money.

ECONOMY CUTS NAVY FLYING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—In line with the recent demand of President Hoover for economy, the Navy Department has directed that flight operations throughout the naval aeronautics organization be reduced to "an absolute minimum" consistent with approved operating schedules and efficiency.

At the same time, Secretary Adams directed that the naval station at Key West, Fla., be placed in an inoperative status not later than November 15. Plans previously announced said a saving of $200,000 would result from closing the station. Sixty-nine service men and 125 civilians will be affected.

Categories listed for reduction in flying hours were familiarization and practice flights, transportation of personnel, administrative flights and cross-country training.

M'CORMACK PROTEGE MAKES RADIO DEBUT SINGING 'LIEBESTRAUM' TONIGHT

The Loudspeaker

Masefield's Talk.
Growing Guitar Army.
No Radio in Senate.
"Rollin' Along."

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Every conceivable type of long-distance journey has been described on the radio with the exception of a bus ride from Broadway to Hollywood. There must be a public for such a description, for a vivid account of the passengers and their whims and impressions just what class of traveler is most indifferent to the scenery or is first to become fretful or gabby or morose. Let's hear all the curious details.

Louis Reid

Masefield has aired his ideas on poetry for the loudspeakers but not one syllable of his rugged verse escaped his lips. Oathy poems find no welcome with the broadcasters and so "The Widow in the Bye Street" will never reach the rocking-chairs. I'm convinced, until "Great Caesar" and "Goodness Gracious" are substituted for the Deity.

Guitarists Form Big Air Battalion

Guitarists form an imposing battalion before the microphones—much more imposing than the ticklers of ukuleles. Once ukulele players outnumbered any other group of instrumentalists on the air. Today there is only a handful with May Singhi Breen the most expert of the list. The most skillful guitarist who has reached these ears is Andres Segovia. A Spaniard should be able to play a guitar better than anyone else.

I have never failed to see a far away look in women's eyes whenever the "Liebestraum" is drawn through a cello or a first class tenor sings "Celeste Aida."

Before the "William Tell Overture" is omitted from band concerts in the republic we shall have established radio communications with Mars.

The broadcasters have yet to find a place on their schedules for an auction sale, an Indian powwow or the Anti-Saloon League in session.

Several radio programs have found their way into vaudeville much to the benefit, they say, of the turnstiles. Wonder how the Palace audiences would receive "Sunday at Seth Parker's."

Animal and bird imitators are not as popular in the studios now that machines which can do the job have been invented.

Because of radio more people are familiar with Tschaikowsky today than were familiar with "Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" thirty years ago.

Senate Still Firm Against Radio

Nothing has yet caused me to alter my belief that the Senate Chamber will be the last stronghold of tradition in the nation to surrender to the microphone.

Only once have the radio men set up their apparatus in the Senate. It was when Charles Curtis ascended the Vice-Presidential throne. The microphones were installed in a booth in a rear corner of the chamber, out of hearing of the Senators as well as out of their hostile gaze.

Jerome Kern is the first American tunesmith to amass a million dollars, though Gershwin can't be far behind. Despite the accumulation of wealth Kern continues his practice of turning out tinkly tunes—the most tinkly, if you ask me, of all contemporary tunes. His unusual ability to tickle the ear-drums was first given Broadway recognition by Charles Frohman way back in the days of "The Girl from Utah." The broadcasters have yet to lead him to a microphone, though his melodies have a conspicuous place on their music racks.

Part of the decrease in population in the villages of the Blue Ridge might be attributed it seems to me, to the march of hill-billy troubadours to the broadcasting studios.

Whenever the songwriters need a sure-fire phrase they invariably rest their eyes on "ro ro rollin' along." The words can be adapted to most any kind of tempo—fox trot, march, waltz. I never hear them that I don't raise my own rich tenor.

Despite the feverish industry of the book publishers no anthology of bathroom ballads has ever come off the presses. I wonder why. Such a work ought to prove of vast appeal. Perhaps, the task is too stupendous for any one historian. Perhaps, the cost of printing it would be prohibitive.

My favorites for such a colossal work—they may be yours, too—are "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," "On the Road to Mandalay," "Sweet Adeline," "On the Banks of the Wabash," and "In the Evening by the Moonlight."

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

"Liebestraum" of Schipa-Liszt and Verdi's "Celeste Aida" are selections to be featured tonight in the American debut of Tandy MacKenzie, young Scotch-Hawaiian tenor, over WCAE at 8:30. Tandy entered his musical career on the advice of John McCormack. "Traumerei," by Schumann, is an offering of the Mobiloil String Choir. We see Reinald Werrenrath is to sing "Rose Marie" for KDKA fans at 9:30. That popular war number, "Till We Meet Again," is a duet offering at 9:30 for WCAE listeners.

Only a master like Vincent Lopez could be credited with the brilliant dance arrangement of "1812 Overture" which he presented over KDKA last night. Lopez is a genius at transposing classical music into dance rhythm without losing charm of the old masters.

Lopez spoke a wonderful tribute to the 20 Fingers of Sweetness for their part in the broadcast. He rated them network and predicted a great future for Betty McKee and Dot Harding.

Ohman and Arden would perk their ears any time to hear 20 Fingers play "Dizzy Fingers" or "Spring Fever"—the two numbers they put across so beautifully last night.

Facts about the Interwoven Pair who will appear next week at the Pittsburgh Radio Show in Duquesne Garden:

Frequently called the Happiness Twins because they were born on the same date although in different years and are exactly the same in height and weight.

One of the differences is that "Ernie" constantly puffs on what "Billy" calls a "dirt burner" for Jones does not smoke.

"Ernie" is a native of Norfolk, Va. "Billy" is a native of New York city.

Met in a phonograph recording studio and since have been inseparable associates.

"Ernie" is 47 years old; "Billy" is 41.

They have made thousands of records and hardly a day goes by that they are not called upon to make others.

Never appeared together on vaudeville stage before coming to radio and then not until NBC booked them on the RKO, New York Circuit.

Both started musical career as choir boys.

Auditors of the Sun-Telegraph radio poll are digging themselves out from the heap of newly-received ballots, and expect to be able to announce the latest tabulation within a day or two.

IN THE MAILSACK

Dear Mr. Martin:

We were all set to hear a program the other night when another program was substituted. It was a tenor trying to hit high "c." His name was ——. Will you tell him that he can hit the high sea any time for my part. . . I'm sure he'd make a better sailor.

I enjoy Floyd Gibbons' stories of the war, especially the one of a few Sunday nights ago when he told how he lost his eye. Seeing whitewash must be a nightmare.

I guess everybody tells you about "We Now Present," but all I can add is that I would make it a little longer. Yours,

T. L. FLANAGAN,
1321 Woodmont avenue,
New Kensington, Pa.

ANOTHER

From Leone B. Whiting, Beaver Falls, Pa.:

"One of the greatest improvements in radio could be made by confining the advertising talk to a mere statement at the beginning of a program.

"Repetition should be avoided. The fault seems to lie chiefly with announcers who are so fond of their own voices they announce the name of the selection and artist both before and after the music.

"Some stations should be taken off the air. Also, due apologies should be made over the air when programs are broadcast different from those scheduled in the Sun-Telegraph." * * *

AND ANOTHER

Thelma Snyder, 1482 Alabama avenue, Dormont, writes:

"Can't something be done about electrical transcriptions? They give the impression artists are second-rate where they might be the best in the land.

"Less sales talk won't hurt anybody, either."

"BY THE WAY—"

Phil Napoleon is an orchestra leader at NBC. . . . Billy Sunday is said to be an even faster speaker than Floyd Gibbons . . . it takes speed to catch the devil these days. . . When Milton Tully went to New York for an NBC audition he gave up all his singing work here . . . that's optimism . . . he deserved to make good. . . . Wild Oscar twists the dial in his dressing room at the Penn . . . he doesn't miss very much that's on the air. . . . Stories told by Dr. Arthur Torrance on WJAS are to be made into talking pictures. . . WDAY at Fargo, N. D., has studios in four churches, two theaters and two colleges . . . that's being broadminded. . . . Victor Lombardo, youngest of the Lombardo brothers heard in the Panatela program, practices six hours a day.

Violinist's Life Dramatized.

So weirdly beautiful were the notes which the great Paganini coaxed from his Guarnerius violin that he was accused of being in league with the devil. This quaint superstition plays an important part in the drama of his life to be enacted when the Wadsworth Program goes on the air.

Paganini's playing in one small Italian town arouses the jealousy of the local constable, Gimelli, who calls upon the great artist with a delegation, de-

Penn. Girl's Lucky Day

THREE candles! And each one represents a year of joyous living. Winifred Fay, of 2659 So. 62nd St., Philadelphia, is a typical Fig Syrup baby. Here is what her mother says:

"Winifred was underweight as an infant. She suffered with her bowels until we began to give her California Fig Syrup. It relieved her constipation quickly, sweetened her breath, made her bright, happy and robust.

"I have given Fig Syrup to the rest of my children with equal success."

For fifty years, wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend its soothing aid to keep the bowels clear, in colds, or children's ailments; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, or listlessness warn of constipation.

California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assists in building-up and energizing weak children. The genuine always bears the name California. All druggists.

CURTIS LEAVES OBSERVATORY

Resignation of Dr. Heber D. Curtis, for many years director of the Allegheny Observatory of the University of Pittsburgh, who will direct construction of a new observatory for the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, was announced last night. Dr. Curtis will be succeeded by his assistant, Dr. Frank Craig Jordan. The resignation is effective October 15.

Dr. Curtis, long a teacher of astronomy at Pitt, was acting astronomer in charge of the D. O. Mills expedition to the Southern Hemisphere from 1906 to 1909, assistant astronomer at the Lick observatory, and director of the Allegheny Observatory since 1920.

Dr. Jordan was a fellow at Yerkes Observatory and instructor in mathematics and astronomy in Marietta College prior to joining the staff of the Allegheny Observatory in 1908. Since 1919 he has been an astronomy professor at Pitt.

Gigli Sings Role Despite Death Of Mother

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Beniamino Gigli, tenor with the San Francisco Opera Company, received a cablegram just before he went on the stage to sing in "Mignon." Critics commented on the added emotion in Gigli's voice as he sang his role.

Then it was announced the cable had told Gigli of the serious illness in Recanati, Italy, of his 80-year-old mother. A second cable informed the singer his mother had died.

Gigli said he would complete his engagement here Saturday in the opera "Lucia."

Jesse James' Kin Lose in Film Suit

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—(INS.)—Actions charging breach of contract, brought against the estate of the late Fred C. Thomson, film star, and Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation by Jesse James, Jr., and Jessie Estelle James, descendants of Jesse James, the famous outlaw, today had been non-suited by the court. The son of the outlaw sought $9,400 damages while his granddaughter asked for $55,000.

U. S. BACKS CUBA ON LEAGUE

GENEVA, Sept. 24—Cuba has the approval of the American government in blocking the steam roller tactics of the League of Nations for revision of the statutes governing the league court, it is learned here.

Cuba's opposition to the League program is based on the ground that "the League scheme violates American systems of constitutional government. Under the League's plan the revision of the protocol was designed for the purpose of wooing American entry into the court, and it would have gone into effect without having the ratification of the various governments.

Washington's approval of Cuba's action here, it is learned, does not mean that the Hoover administration has changed overnight to a favorable attitude toward the court — it merely affirms Washington's belief that the League's scheme would have established a precedent dangerous to constitutional government and American interests. Such a precedent, it is pointed out, would make the League a super-state.

HOLD U. S. FLIERS IN CHILE REVOLT

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—The government today maintained an official secrecy regarding events of the last three or four days at Concepcion, where last Sunday an attempt was made to bring about a revolution.

President Col. Carlos Ibanez conferred with Gen. Charpin, who returned from Concepcion, and learned at first hand details of what happened there.

It is now learned that names of the two American aviators arrested after having brought the rebel chiefs from the Argentine here are given as Edward de Larin and Reid Smith.

Investigation is being made of their part in the attempted rebellion. If found that they plotted with the other four arrested they will face trial before court martial, otherwise they will be accused of violations of the aeronautical code.

PROLONGS LIFE OF SILK HOSE

All women will be intensely interested in a recent discovery—the idea of a leading New York fashion expert. She learned that besides perspiration, all next-to-the-skin garments absorb an oily excretion from the sebaceous glands that causes silks to rot.

Soap and water cannot dissolve this destructive oil film—it takes a solvent like Energine to cut it. So when next washing silk hose or undergarments, add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm, soapy water.

Wash thoroughly—rinse well—and note the new cleanliness, the pleasing freshness—see how magically the original color is revived and with far less rubbing. While soap and water appear sufficient, you can't appreciate how much they fall short till you make this Energine test. You'll be surprised, too, how many more days of wear you get from every pair of hose.

And don't forget that millions use Energine daily for quick removal of dirt and grease spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 25c. Get Energine today.

IT'S AS EASY and natural to enjoy the fragrant mildness of a Camel Cigarette as it is to admire beauty when you see it.

Camels are made, and always have been made, for discriminating smokers — the people whose keen judgment unerringly selects the best. But that doesn't mean you have to be an expert to enjoy Camels! The delicate, mellow fragrance of those choice sun-ripened tobaccos is something that anybody can appreciate. Camels are naturally smooth and mild—never parched nor insipid.

Why is there such a swing to Camels? Because more and more smokers are learning the difference between true mildness and mere flatness. Give yourself the luxury of a cigarette that's always pleasant smoking.

HITLER TREASON CONCERN EASED

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Excitement over revelations that Adolf Hitler, German Fascist generalissimo, has a high treason charge pending against him was lessened considerably today when the Reichswehr ministry divulged that the complaint dated back more than a year ago.

The offense charged is in connection with an article appearing in his Voelischer Boebachter, official mouthpiece of the Fascist movement.

Since information as to the charges did not leak out until after the recent elections, which thrust his party into a position of second most powerful in the Reichstag, and in view of the recent putsch rumors, there was at first a widespread assumption that a post-election development was referred to by the attorneys at Leipsic yesterday in recalling the affair.

HALF BILLION IN PATENT SUIT

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Litigation involving about a half billion dollars has bobbed up in Federal District Court here in the suit of Mrs. Katherine Ryan, St. Paul, against the Inland Steel Company and the Great Northern Railway.

Mrs. Ryan, in her suit, asks unpaid royalty which she claims the defendant companies owe her for two patents for a self-locking railroad bolt.

Mrs. Ryan also has filed suit against many of the country's largest steel companies, including the United States Steel Corporation, Carnegie Steel Company, United States Steel Products Company, and others. Her total claims, she said would aggregate about $500,000,000.

BOROUGH WATER CASE HEARD

The Public Service Commission today heard a plea by the South Pittsburgh Water Company for approval of a contract with the Borough of West Homestead for leasing the borough water lines.

The town now is supplied with water by the City of Pittsburgh.

Attorney's for the city objected to a long-term lease, and finally got an agreement with the South Pittsburgh company that any lease with the borough could be terminated on three months notice.

The city asked this stipulation on the grounds that West Homestead contemplates annexation to Pittsburgh, and in that event would get its water from the city.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Raquel Consents to Become Jerry Parker's Wife

CHAPTER LXI.

"No," Jerry said. "I've been saving that until now."

Raquel glanced up with a start. Jerry's voice was suddenly as grave as his eyes. His gray-gray eyes that looked straight and deep into her black ones as if they would push aside the sable curtains and read all that was written on her soul.

"Why—why—Jerry—"

His eyes did not waver. They were a deeper a darker gray. Fathoms of gray ocean depth with the morning mist on it.

"I had to come, Raquel," he said. His voice was firm. Resonant with purpose—passionate purpose. "Paris was the only place in the world that had any meaning for me. Can't you guess, dear girl, why?"

Raquel Consents

She tried to speak. This tightness in her throat. Strange lights flickered behind the sable depths of her eyes.

"I didn't know," Jerry went on, "until you were gone. I had no way of knowing. Things have always come so easy to me. I've had what I wanted. Then, suddenly, I wanted you. You were not there. The miracle of you was revealed to me in one glorious sweep of conscious desire—of poignant want. Without you there was no life—no living."

She tried to moisten her lips. They were dry, burning dry.

"Raquel," he pleaded, his voice still firm but husky with emotion, "will you be my wife?"

Her black eyes widened until they, too, were dark pools, fathoms deep, with glowing embers in their depths.

She heard a thin, small voice say, "Yes, Jerry." Was it her voice—the voice of Raquel Rojos? Why, yes, it must have been.

The words came involuntarily. They had been waiting on the tip of her tongue.

She had told Jerry Parker she would be his wife. She was in his arms—hungry arms that pressed her so close that she had to fling back her head to breathe. She caught a glimpse of the red dawn, vibrant, diaphanous above her. Then the glory of it was eclipsed by the face of a man, flushed like the dawn with a passion of desire to overtake the new life that lay before him.

She Is Puzzled

Jerry's lips closed over hers. Tenderly at first. Then with a rifling thirst that sought to drain her heart of the love they pleaded.

"My Raquel," he murmured, drinking deep. "Mine."

When they returned to the house in the walled garden, the man in the black velvet coat was carrying armfuls of gaily-colored cushions to the chairs under the big striped umbrella.

There was a quick surreptitious surrender to Jerry's arms. Then Raquel fled into the house and up the stairs. She wanted to be alone. To assemble her inchoate thoughts. She was dazed, a little numb.

It was not quite possible to realize she was the promised wife of Gerald Parker. That in the breath of a dawn, the entire course of the life she had so lately set out in orderly accord with ambition had been turned into a new, an unexpected channel.

In one moment she was bargaining with life for all its creature comforts, creature beauties, its froth, its exoticisms. Accepting Alphonse Courbet, the man who had taught her to need these things, steeling herself to endure the certainty of the physical revulsion, she must go on knowing through the intimacy of life with this man. She felt she must pay the price because she could not live without the profit.

In the next moment she had tossed her bargain away as if it had never been made. She was in the circle of another man's arms, a man passionate, masterful in his possession of her. There was no revulsion against this man who held her. Instead, there was a feeling of calm of security that she had come to rest in the appointed place.

She remembered now that she had not once thought of Alphonse until she was back with Jerry in the car and they were humming past the birthplace of the French King Henry IV in St. Germaine, now a fashionable rendezvous for epicures and dilettantes outside of Paris. She had dined there often with Alphonse and his friends of discerning taste.

How had she come to say "Yes" to Jerry—without hesitation, without consideration for herself or for others?

Did she really care, beyond all else, for Jerry Parker? Did she love him?

Tells Greta

The word love gave her a start. It was so foreign to her. She had mocked at it, scoffed at it.

There was a time, when she had first known him in Deauville, that she came dangerously near to falling in love with Jerry. He himself had warned her away from the trap.

No," she reassured herself, "I do not love him. Not in that flaming, fantastic, all-consuming way women love their men. I would not make a burnt offering of myself on his altar. I would not sacrifice pleasure going places, seeing people, knowing beauty and having it, for him. I like him. That is all. And these things he can give me. As well as, perhaps better than, Alphonse."

The chaos of Raquel's thoughts began to take form. She felt easier now that reason had provided a solution for the unexpected, the still unbelievable change in the course of her carefully planned life.

She dusted powder over the two crimson spots that stained the accustomed pallor of her cheeks. Then she went to wake Greta.

"Now what's happened?" groaned that unsympathetic young imp of mischief. "More duels?"

"No." Raquel smiled, perching on the side of Greta's bed. "I'm going to marry Jerry Parker."

"You're going to what?" she gasped.

"Marry Jerry Parker."

"What makes you think that?"

"He asked me tonight, or rather this morning. While we were having milk and strawberries out beyond St. Germaine, I accepted him."

Greta Astonished

"For the love of—say, dearie, stop kidding the shock troops. Just because you accepted him doesn't mean anything. You've said yes to better men, haven't you? To save an argument?"

Raquel's face was as grave as Jerry's had been.

"This is real, Greta," she said. "We're going to be married tomorrow. There's a ship sailing for home the day after that. Jerry is arranging it."

"Tomorrow!" cried Greta. "What's the matter with that bimbo? Does he think he's a fireman? You can't do it."

"Oh, yes, but we can. Jerry says that with a generous distribution of francs, he can persuade the proper officials. We must make that ship."

"Well, I'll be—hot cookie!" Greta was recovering from her astonishment and plunging recklessly into the spirit of the amazing news. "You certainly tapped the right wire this time, old dear. Hurrah for our side! Jerry Parker. Whoopla!" Then she added, with ever so slight a pressure of her foot on the soft-pedal of her glee: "How about Alphonse? Does he know?"

FAY-KING

Owing to business uncertainty and economic precaution, many are moving to smaller quarters this fall.

They will be cozier and happier. For a sound footing on a saving basis is much better than big overhead expenses to be doubtfully met.

The sooner the mind is adjusted to the pocketbook the better.

No one need be ashamed of economizing. It is only foolish unnecessary debts that are to be regretted.

To be saving in time will see you through safely.

Just as spending a dime here and a quarter there will soon make a large bill disappear completely, so saving a bit here and there can help the budget along a lot.

Weathering a hard spell together can be a fine adventure.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

With Pa Hasbrouck Detailed to Delay Detective, Party Start for City

"All set?" Mr. Hasbrouck asked as he followed his wife back into the dining room. "I'm ready whenever you are."

The stocky man who had trailed us to the Catskills rose abruptly from his chair, scooping a couple of buttered muffins into a paper napkin as he did so.

"I'll just eat these on the way," he said. "Sorry I haven't time for the rest of your good breakfast."

"Well, it's your loss," Mrs. Hasbrouck told him, laughing, but with a certain grimness in her tone which betrayed her instinctive dislike of the man. He made no answer, but hurried after Mr. Hasbrouck, and when we heard the side door close after them we started to rise from the table, only to see Mrs. Hasbrouck's hands waving us down again.

"You just drink another cup of this hot coffee, all of you," she commanded. "Don't you worry. Egbert says to tell you Miller's promised to stay upstairs this morning unless his place is on fire. Egbert will tell this man how impossible it is to make Miller hear, and when that fails he'll help the fellow get in through the window and hunt out his car. But Miller's fixed it so it can't go, and there you are. Drink this coffee now while I tell you the rest of it."

She had been busy pouring the coffee as she spoke.

"Pa says," she went on rapidly, "that if he should manage to get started before seven there's a way to throw him off the track. There are some friends of ours named Train in Kingston. They let out some of their rooms sometimes, and they're right on the main street, where the cars almost always go through to the ferry and the other road over the bridge. Pa says he's sure he can hold him for an hour anyway. That ought to get you into Kingston, and he wants you to stop at Train's anyway—they get up awful early, so it'll be all right. Pa'll get word to me somehow what the man is doing and I'll telephone Train's not later than an hour from now what's doing. If Pa's still got the man here it will be safe for you to push right on to New York as fast as you can. But if he's managed to get started you stay right there at Train's until you hear from Pa again, even if it's afternoon. Pa says he's going to ask the man to give him a lift down to Kingston, and if he won't do that, then Pa's going to trail him down, and when he's seen him in either the ferry or the bridge road Pa will telephone to you at Train's and you can take the other road to New York in peace. But Pa says you must be sure to have Train put your car in his garage right away, so there'll be no chance of the fellow catching sight of it as he goes past."

She ran out of breath and I put in a hasty word of gratitude.

"How can we ever thank you, Mrs. Hasbrouck?" I exclaimed. "But Mr. Hasbrouck must tell me what his expenses are and what his time is worth."

"Sho!" Mrs. Hasbrouck rejoined comfortably. "Pa'd rather do anything like this than eat, and there isn't anything special for him to do around the place today. If it were summer time it would be different. Mrs. Train will charge you something for the room you wait in, and you can give her whatever the telephone calls and Pa's gas for the car amount to—and—get going. I don't want to hurry you——"

"But we want to hurry," I told her, and in two more minutes, having paid the bill, Lillian and Mary were in the rear seat of the car and I had started the engine.

"Goodby, goodby!" Mrs. Hasbrouck waved from the front porch, and then we were off, with Mary on her knees on the rear seat watching the road as it rolled out behind us.

"Do you see him, Mary?" I asked, not that the answer mattered, for the detective could do nothing until he secured his car. But I wanted to keep the mental atmosphere as hectic as possible until we were well past the Cosgrove house, where Robert Savarin lay. Despite my worry over the private detective who was trailing us, and who, Harry Underwood said, was watching Mary's movements, I was definitely glad of this bizarre situation, which I hoped would so intrigue Lillian's imagination and rouse her combative spirit that she would be able to put aside the depression into which her farewell visit to Robert Savarin had plunged her.

I could a second ago," Mary replied. "They sure were beating it. But now the turn in the road has hidden them. What do you think, Auntie Madge? Are you betting on Pa Hasbrouck or the other man?"

I think my money would be on Mr. Hasbrouck, Mary," I returned, sending the car along the road as fast as I dared. "If it were not for the snow I wouldn't ask but for a half-hour start. But he probably will drive at much greater speed than I would dare attempt."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, September 25

Most propitious planetary intervention may be looked for on this day, with the major benefices bearing strong rule for gratification and growth, with even the customary adverse forces holding friendly attitudes. It is time for bold adventure and initiative, as well as for practical industry, with the prospect of advancing all interests and increasing the fortunes.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much progress and happiness, with all departments of human endeavor under friendly stars and bringing material gratification as well as personal happiness. It is a time for pushing to the goal of heart's desire, with little danger of hazard or unhappiness.

A child born on this day should be resourceful, energetic, steady, industrious and ambitious, and should succeed in business and be very happy and gratified in its private life.

When a wealthy widow begins looking for adventure, she gets

A woman falls in love head over heels; but a man usually just "puts his foot in it" and then is astonished when he finds that he can't "pull out" without a struggle.

A girl may have a solitaire to remind her that she is engaged; but all a man has is his conscience—and a telephone call every few hours.

Many a man has married a woman in order to get a Guardian Angel—only to discover that he has acquired a stern sentinel to stand between him and all his favorite diversions.

Furnishing Your Home

Colored Glass Stemware

Of course, colored glass stemware is not a new fashion. It was a fashion long before our grandmothers were born.

And lucky indeed is anyone who has on her glass shelves the green, amber, yellow or blue goblets in the various sizes which etiquette demanded for the various vintages of pre-Revolutionary days.

But we haven't seen so much colored stemware in this century until recently. Today it is a fashion again. And every fashion-wise woman knows that a little color in her stemware gives a new interest to the informal meal.

Color is used in 1930 stemware generally in one of two ways. A plain crystal top is combined with a colored stem and base. Or the stem may be plain crystal with the top and base in color.

The colors used by fashion-wise housewives are:

Pale rose, amber, green and deep blue. Green is especially for spring, for green is a color particularly suggestive of the season, of coolness and of shade.

Crystal combined with black is a new fashion that is gaining every day, especially among those who tend toward the modernistic in decorative effects.

This colored stemware can be chosen in sets for the more elaborate meal, or in single groupings.

For example, a set may consist of sherbet, fruit salad, water and cocktail glasses. This is a set in which the bowl may be plain crystal and the stem and base colored.

This set may be the so-called "flare" shape. This and the bell-shaped goblets are the simplest and most popular of all shapes.

Slightly less formal is the goblet of modernistic design illustrated, with plain crystal bowl and colored base.

And more formal than either of the others is the rock crystal goblet whose design is similar to the design our ancestors liked. Such a goblet is most formal of all when it is of plain crystal throughout.

Some of this colored stemware is etched, just as much of the plain crystal is etched. But it is not quite so popular ... not quite so much in fashion ... as the plain glass.

Colored stemware finds itself most at home at the informal meal. But at the formal meal, when the costumes of your guests are more brilliant and colorful, plain crystal forms a more artistic background.

Household Hints

Soak the new toothbrush in cold water to which a little salt has been added for 24 hours before using. This will prevent the bristles from coming out so readily.

A fresh ink stain may be removed from a carpet by pouring milk on it and pressing with blotting paper until it is all absorbed, but apply as soon as the accident occurs or it will not work.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Why Do Women Who Don't Want a Family, Want a Husband?

Should lady professionals have babies?

Should they even marry?

Or should all females with a yen for careers vow to remain spinsters?

Mary D. says they shouldn't—and should. Get in on her broadcast. It's good for a war any day.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've read Mildred Gardner's letter, asking if 'all normal women want babies,' and I'd like to tell you a few of my convictions on this 'career vs. families' question.

"I will admit that not all women do care for babies, and not all women are built to have families. It takes all kinds of women to make up this world, just as it takes all kinds of men, and I don't think we can say that any certain woman is not normal just because she can't get interested in being a mother. Lots of women honestly do prefer other things, like being doctors or lawyers or artists or business women. We'll grant that freely, and I think it's their own affair if they do prefer them.

"But what I can't see is this: Why do women who don't care to stay at home and have a family still want to have a husband?

"It is my firm conviction that women who want a career have no right to get married.

"Women who prefer a career to babies, and still get themselves a husband, can't always have their choice in the matter of motherhood. Nature takes its course sometimes, without asking us. And if it does, the poor little child will have to suffer, because Mother is not capable of loving it more than she loves her career.

"Raising children, according to my way of thinking, is a career in itself, and a mighty hard one. No woman can do justice to both it and a career outside her home. And what right has she to try? What right has she to mix things up like that. Why not honestly be one thing or the other?

"I am a young mother myself, and I think motherhood is the greatest thing on earth. If I hadn't thought so, I would never have married. And I don't think any woman has a right to marry, unless she feels the same way.

"Now I wish you would answer this question as fairly and honestly as you know how. Why do you women who want a career get married?

"MARY D."

Why do lady professionals want to get married? For exactly the same reason you wanted to be married, Mary. Because a mighty smart God made us girls that way. And it's going to take more than a few degrees in law or art or medicine to unmake the love-hunger that He set burning in our hearts.

Every normal woman wants and needs a male. No woman's life is complete unless love has entered it—unless she has learned to see life through a man's eyes as well as her own. And the more intelligent she is the more does a woman need a fine man as a comrade and husband . . . and the better mate she makes to that man.

For marriage, Mary, isn't a matter of embroidered doilies and dusted chairs . . . it's a matter of companionship. And that's why women professionals often make the finest of wives in spite of your doubts. For the woman with the developed brain and the trained spirit is a thousand times better companion to her husband than the woman who hasn't an interest outside the four walls of her home.

But suppose babies come?

Well, suppose they do? Must mama be on hand to steriline every bottle — scrub out every nightie? Can't these mechanical tasks be performed quite as well, if not better, by someone who's paid to do the job? Isn't a baby just as well off if mama isn't hovering over his bassinette 24 hours of the day? He is—in fact he's much better off, as is proved by the lusty and loving youngsters of professional women who keep office hours with their men.

For Mary, to the contrary, many a woman is swinging both a home and a career with 100 per cent success.

However, I admit that it's a whale of a job, and it takes a two-fisted female to do it. And I'll also admit there are a good many arguments against trying it. So, if you're on the negative in this debate, here's your chance to speak your say.

Should or shouldn't lady professionals marry?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Underweight Child Faces Severe Handicap

Health comes first of all in importance. The child who has a good start in life has an immense advantage over those who have been handicapped by ill health.

I wish every kiddie could be well nourished and possessed of good health. So many children go about listlessly, behind in their school work and burdened more than they should be by long hours of study and home work. How about your child? Does he seem tired, pale and irritable?

DR COPELAND

There is a real reason back of all this. The question of underweight centers about a good many contributing factors. Perhaps the first thing to consider is whether the child has any physical defects. It is well to have your doctor look him over and give his opinion on the subject.

Sometimes a child with defective eyesight or poor hearing will develop a serious physical condition. Very often a nervous high-strung child who is behind in his school work will be found to have quite serious eyestrain. If allowed to go on malnutrition and underweight might follow.

In the case of adenoids or diseased tonsils, poisons are carried by the blood stream to all parts of the body. Such a condition should be attended to at the earliest possible moment. If the child seems to be underweight from this sort of thing it may be that the slight operation needed will bring him back to normal health.

It may be that your child is not getting the proper nourishment. Every child until he becomes of adult age should have at least a quart of milk every day, taken as a drink, or in his cooked food and with cereals. Milk should be the foundation of every child's diet, and nothing but the very best milk is good enough for your child.

A growing child should have fresh fruits and vegetables. These furnish those wonderful vitamins, minerals and other substances which promote growth and energy.

Every mother has a real task before her in looking after her growing boy or girl. She must be careful about their food and how they eat it, their sleep, their everyday fresh air and sunshine, and goodness knows how many other things.

The hours of eating, rest and sleep should be on schedule time for the growing child, and kept up through adolescence. They may vary somewhat with the age of the child, but regularity should always be to the fore.

One doctor said to a mother of a 10-year-old underweight child, "If you will see that your child gets eleven hours of sleep every night, two hours out-of-doors, and three good simple meals a day, including a quart of milk, I can guarantee an increase in weight and improvement in his school work."

A child who is underweight must not be scolded. He should be encouraged gently but firmly in the right living habits. When his day has been reorganized and he has had time to build up his strength and ambition it will be worth all the time and worry you have put into it to see him well and strong again.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Duties of the Godfather and Godmother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been asked to be godmother and godfather at a christening. We are at a loss what to do. The christening is to take place at an Episcopal church. Will you tell us what to do? READER.

The relatives and friends who are invited to the christening stand near the font. When the clergyman enters, the mother or the nurse takes off the baby's cap and coat. The baby is then given to you—the godmother—and you stand directly in front of the clergyman. Your husband—the godfather — stands beside you.

Your most serious and earnest duty is to pronounce the baby's name most distinctly when the clergyman asks you for the name. Practice articulating the name, so that the clergyman cannot possibly misunderstand, for you must realize that the name pronounced is the one that is "fixed for life."

A Courtesy to Be Accorded the Honor Guest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine, Mrs. A, was invited to dinner at Mrs. B's home. Mrs. B is very well mannered and correct in every detail. Mrs. A is an elderly lady and was the guest of the evening. Mrs. B's husband was host, and he served the dinner. Instead of serving Mrs. A first, he served his wife first and Mrs. A next. Was this the correct thing to do? MISS M. B.

It would have been better form, far better form, for the host to have served the guest of honor first. Sometimes, often in fact, when there is service in the household, the hostess is served first, but when the serving is done at the table, as in this case, there is no reason why the host should not show honor to the guest of honor and even to the other guests by serving them first. There is no point in serving the hostess first in this case.

APPEAL LOST BY M'KEESPORT

A verdict of $12,500 against the City of McKeesport on the second trial of a suit, granted because the first verdict of $8,500 was held excessive, was found in favor of Arthur Hoffman, of McKeesport, by a jury in Common Pleas Court.

Hoffman was injured while a passenger on a street car in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, July 26, 1927. A coal truck struck a hole in the street as it passed the street car and lumps of coal were thrown into the car, striking Hoffman on the back and head, according to the testimony.

The city was charged with negligence because of the unpaved condition of the street due to sewer construction.

Woman Takes Burglar to Jail

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 24.—Mrs. L. B. Giles, of this city, is not a woman to be intimidated by a mere burglar. Finding one in the living room of her apartment after a trip down town, she covered him with a pistol and forced him to ride with her to the police station, where she turned him over to officers.

"At last . . .

the ideal soap for silks"

say distinguished Committee of 17

Mary Roberts Rinehart, Anne Morgan, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Ethel Barrymore . . . on committee appointed to watch silk experts test revolutionary new soap.

Mrs. James J. Davis and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, compare garments washed in modern Palmolive Beads with those washed in old-fashioned flakes.

Miss Antoinette Donnelly, of the Committee of 17, whose beauty column in the Chicago Tribune is known to millions.

A SOAP so perfect for silks that all the great silk manufacturers urge its use! A soap that so completely meets the needs of every woman that a committee of 17 distinguished women, appointed to judge it, enthusiastically voted it "the ideal soap for all fine fabrics"!

Gather at Ritz to watch soap tested

Home economics consultants, social and political leaders, university authorities, a noted author, a great actress . . . the Committee of 17 includes famous representative women from every walk of feminine activity.

Gathered at the Ritz Hotel, the committee heard silk experts tell how modern, hasty washbowl laundering—because of hot water, half-dissolved soap and sketchy rinsing—was costing American women thousands of dollars in damaged silk stockings and lingerie each month. They heard how soap chemists finally solved the problem by creating an utterly new type of soap . . . a soap made of olive and palm oils, that cleanses at lower temperatures. A soap in the form of tiny, hollow beads, so as to dissolve instantly . . . completely.

Reveal superiority of "beads" over "flakes"

Again and again the new soap was tested in comparison with flakes and granules. Again and again the "Beads" performed miracles no soap has ever performed before.

They dissolved instantly . . . completely. No gummy, clinging flakes. They rinsed away 100%. No trace of harmful soap residue. They cleansed in water 20 degrees cooler than ordinary soaps require. Their gentle olive and palm oils made a velvet suds even in hard water. Utterly protective to delicate colors and exquisite textures.

So revolutionary did the tests reveal the new soap to be . . . so completely did it fulfill all requirements . . . that the Committee of 17 unanimously approved it the perfect soap for silks.

The new soap is called Palmolive Beads. It costs no more than ordinary soap. Order it from your grocer.

GOSSIP FROM HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY; LOCAL THEATER NOTES

Kay Francis as Heroine Opposite Bancroft In New Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 24.

A strenuous story of yellow journalism is promised in "Unfit to Print," George Bancroft's next for Paramount.

The sleek Kay Francis is to be the girl over whom Mr. Bancroft, presumably, is torn between love and duty. She has an errant brother—guess who?—Regis Toomey. Will he ever go straight in the pictures?

An ex-New York reporter, Oliver H. P. Barrett, has written the story and John Cromwell, who in his acting days did the police captain in "The Racket," is to direct. Inasmuch as Mr. Cromwell is one of the more intelligent directors, "Unfit to Print" is likely to be a thrilling and believable picture.

Kay Francis

Incidentally, it proves that the newspaper story is not as taboo as some people thought it was.

HOWLING HERBERT

The heart-rending moan that you will hear in the opening sequence of "Beau Ideal" will be the voice of Herbert Brenon, the director. It seems that after half the company had walked and been rejected, Mr. Brenon himself produced the dilution that stunned all predecessors. He okehed his own sound.

ARLEN'S LEAD

As soon as Paramount ties up the dialogue rights, "North of 36," one of Emerson Hough's novels, goes into production at the Hollywood studios with Richard Arlen starring.

Richard Arlen

The dainty Fay Wray will enact the feminine lead.

Every day it becomes more apparent that the out-of-door story is in for a run at the studios. One reason given is that it brings the children back to the theater.

TAKES COURAGE

It takes proper nerve to dump $100,000 into the sink, but Samuel Goldwyn didn't hesitate to do it in the interests of fine pictures.

When the producer saw the opening sequences of "The Prodigal," he walked out of the projecting room, and stood leaning against a building. Finally, he called an assistant.

"Cancel everything as of tonight," he said.

NEW RACKET

A man in Alhambra operates an angle-worm farm. Universal unearthed him and will photograph his interesting establishment for one of its "Oak" short-subjects. Rumor has it that the ingenious farmer takes $1,000 a week for shipments of his proteges, which are put in ventilated cans with enough food to last them until they reach the designated fishermen.

Esther Ralston owns an interest in a gold mine in Arizona. Furthermore, it pays.

Though the team of Dr. Sylva Brown and Henderson is noted for musical productions, Henderson is the only one who owns a piano.

Callous

We saw the end was near and, being wise,
I kissed you tenderly and said "Goodbye;"
We had a fleeting glimpse of Paradise,
But doubt arose—a stilted little lie,
And we were through—and now the nights are slow
To take their leave and I sit home alone,
And hear the mocking breezes soft and low
Keep questioning in dreary monotone.

So pain sets in and has its way with me,
But I have grown quite patient with the years;
I know that time will rout the poignancy
Of leaving you—and I will dry my tears
And chide myself severly by December,
Because I can't regret—or can't remember!

The Retort Delightful

Dorothy Parker's comebacks are probably the swiftest, the sanest and the sassiest. The Guild play "Hotel Universe" caricatured many well known literotics, including Miss Parker.

Ruth Gordon, the leading lady, it appears, played a role that was reported to be "Dorothy Parker."

Dorothy and Ruth met but once—in a hurried introduction. A mutual friend calling to see the actress in her dressing room said:

"Why not join me. I'm going over to see Dorothy Parker?"

"Oh," was Ruth's indifferent answer, "I'm so tired of playing Dorothy Parker."

When the mutual pal told Dot what Ruth said, Dorothy nonchalantly answered: "So am I."

Appropriate

Joe Rosenstein, of Los Angeles, suggests a better nickname for Broadway, to wit:

"The Ingrate White Way."

Not New, but Clean!

Take it from Harold Stern, the orchestra director, who revives the one about the two dialecticians who embarked upon a rather perilous business of manufacturing cloaks and suits.

It was Ike who attended to the correspondence, and on one occasion he asked his partner, Abe:

"Is well fitting one word or two?"

To which Abe queried:

Add Sense of Humors

Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing, recently told how some condemned men still laugh on their way to the chair. And there was a fellow, said Lawes, who was gassed to death in Nevada whose last request was for a gas mask. Lawes' best, however, was about the convict at Ossining who was being strapped in the frying pan. He turned and said:

"This world is a big joke. Nobody comes out of it alive!"

Why Actors Go Knertz

"Mr. Kruger plays this husband with loving care and continually telling touches. He gives a performance which, undoubtedly, he and the author—who also staged the play—have thought out to the last grin and ache. An altogether fine performance."—Gilbert Gabriel in the N. Y. American.

"Mr. Kruger's precocious acting gives some point to the program statement that he is a juvenile. Dr. Tom Lovett is a man's role, but Mr. Kruger plays it as though it needed spanking. What it needs, however, is what the entire play needs—more stature and substance."—Justin (Fun) Atkinson in the N. Y. Times.

Another reason why most Broadwayites never get out of bed until noon is that on Broadway the early worm catches "the bird."

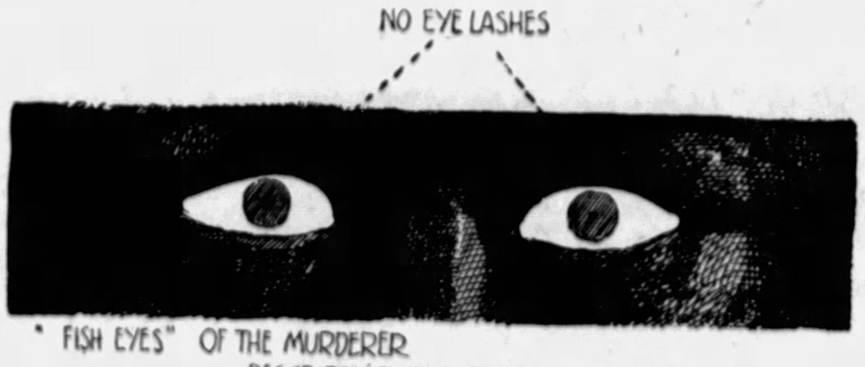
MASTER MYSTERIES -:- By ARTHUR HOERL

The Mysterious 3-Z



WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Anton Kasper, a small shopkeeper, is murdered while on a petting party. A mysterious person, signing himself "3-Z," writes to the newspapers admitting the crime. He tells of a second murder. Mae Ryerson, Kasper's companion, sticks steadfastly to her story of a man with "fish-eyes." Philip Armour is found murdered in a car near the scene of Kasper's death. The scene is a dead-end street. On one side is a farm house, on the other a second short street with three cottages, and beyond that the Kings Asylum for the Insane. The girl companion of Armour is found by the police and arrested.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER III.

The young lady in question proved to be Belle Walsh. She was the 19-year-old daughter of an employe of the Jamaica courthouse. The officials lost no time in hurrying to the Jamaica police station where the young lady was being held. The commissioner, Inspector Byrd, Capt. Blake and Robin Dale were in the party.

Dale, because of the great assistance he had been to the department in the past, was permitted to be present at the first interrogation of the Walsh girl.

Her story, oddly enough, coincided almost exactly with that which had been so stubbornly and unchangingly told by Mae Ryerson who was being held in connection with Anton Kasper's murder.

Belle Walsh recited the details in a hysterical voice. She had spent a sleepless night following the harrowing events at Briar Road and said she was about to surrender to the police and tell her story when Sergt. Jardin arrived at the Walsh family cottage.

About 10 o'clock on the previous night she was chatting with Philip Armour, whom she had known for a number of years, in the parked coupe at the spot where the police had found it. Suddenly the murderer appeared at the side of the car and demanded certain papers of Armour. A bit frightened, he said that the man must be making a mistake as he had no papers and started to show his own identification cards to prove it. The man walked around the car, looked at the license plates and insisted that Armour was the man he wanted. Whereupon, without a word of warning he drew a pistol and shot Armour through the head.

In mortal fear the girl tried to escape from the car but the murderer intercepted her. Believing her hour had come the girl began to pray. It was this act which apparently saved her for the man made no further attempt to molest her. In fact, he escorted her (as he had done with Mae Ryerson) to the nearest bus line and put her safely on the bus.

As she spoke of her prayer Robin Dale noted that a small, gold cross was suspended by a tiny chain about her neck.

When asked to describe the man Belle Walsh was as vague about it as Mae Ryerson had been. In many respects, however, it tallied with the description given by young Tim Scott. There was one feature, however, which had impressed itself indelibly upon the brain of Belle Walsh.....the murderer's eyes. They never blinked, she told the police, and appeared to be devoid of lashes.

This description resembled closely the other girl's statement that the man had "fish eyes."

Of one other thing Miss Walsh was certain. It was that apparently the murderer was not acquainted with Philip Armour and most certainly, from his actions, Philip had never seen the man before.

That proved to be the extent of the first day's discoveries. The commissioner, who had taken personal charge of the case, detailed all the reserves available to patrol the murder area. That was the beginning of what was to be the greatest man hunt ever carried on by the police of New York.

The residents of the section under patrol were panicky, especially when the late editions of the papers printed the threat of the third murder promised for the eighteenth, which was the following day.

The police made no headway in discovering the 13 other men and the one woman marked for death by the mysterious 3-Z.

Robin Dale carefully followed every new development in the case, but thus far it had been merely a maze of conflicting clues and statements. The key to the intricate network of evidence was missing!

Maniac?

Racketeer?

Blackmailer?

Avenger of some secret foreign fraternity of crime?

All four theories were possible! The first appeared to be the most logical, in view of what had thus far taken place.

So, on the morning of the eighteenth, the police visited the Kings Asylum for a check-up of its inmates. Capt. Blake handled this personally. It seemed very probable that one of the insane patients might have escaped during the night, gone to the scene of the crime which was only a few hundred yards distant, committed the atrocious act and then hurried back to the haven of the asylum.

Dale accompanied Capt. Blake on this mission. They were ushered into the tiny office of the chief clerk of the institution. He was William Ostermann, with expressionless features. He squinted through his glasses at Capt. Blake as he listened silently to the captain's request.

Ostermann was certain, because of the habitual carefulness with which the inmates were checked up each night, that it was almost impossible for one of them to get out after dark. It would be doubly difficult for any one of them, thus absent, to return to the institution.

Furthermore, there had been no record of an escape during the past six months. At that time—and here Ostermann dug into some records—Floyd Esper, a war veteran with distinct symptoms of paranoia, had escaped and never been apprehended. Two other inmates had escaped a year previous and were still at large.

Ostermann suggested that, in order to make certain of the present inmates, the girls, who had been eyewitnesses to the tragedies and should be able to identify the criminal, be brought to the asylum for a roll-call.

After placing a double guard about the place, in view of the murder threat for that night, Capt. Blake returned to headquarters. Dale returned to the office of the Daily Journal to get out a story on the case.

The police that night had greater difficulty with the morbid crowds that came out hoping to see a murder committed than they did with the mysterious 3-Z. Over 1,000 police patroled the district. Some dressed in women's clothes and sat in parked cars with other officers in civilian clothes.

But 3-Z did not appear!

About midnight a strange whirring sound was heard, but it was learned to be merely an airplane circling above the territory. In a short time it flew south and disappeared.

The following morning there was another message from the killer at the office of the Daily Journal. City Editor Bailey and Robin Dale discussed it before the latter took a copy of the note to the police. It was couched in the same bombastic language as the previous letters: "Dear Sir" (it began)

I beg to thank you for publishing the code message sent to you. B. D. W-5 has returned his papers tonight—and 25,000 dollars of blackmail money. That means that he and five others will be spared: (then symbolic signs of six were written). One document—NH 5-4-55—is still missing—and for this the following are still marked for death: (then followed eight symbols). I will wait—I will not shoot until they decide their fate themselves.

"3-Z."

SCHOOL BOARD LENDS CHAIRS

Had not the Board of Education taken action at its meeting yesterday, there might have been a shortage of chairs during the National Safety Congress here, September 29 to October 3.

A letter from the Fort Pitt Hotel requesting use of several hundred chairs—property of the public schools—for the six-day period was read to the board.

It said:

"If we do not get chairs at this time, there will be an acute shortage."

The board voted to lend the hotel the chairs with the provision that the management pay drayage charges.

KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE HIS CASE NEEDED

Former Sufferer Glad to Tell What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

After all, what mightier recommendation can a medicine get than the grateful words of those who, to their everlasting joy, found in Konjola the very medicine they needed; the medicine they should have had in the first place.

MR. G. R. CHARLTON

Konjola wins victory after victory because all of Konjola's 22 ingredients work together in cleansing the system and stimulating the ailing organs, bringing quick and glorious relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider, for example, the case of Mr. G. R. Charlton, 527 Woodward Avenue, McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh. Think it over, and then resolve to meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city. Hear from him the remarkable record of this remarkable medicine. But now read the words of Mr. Charlton, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For years I suffered with a very bad case of stomach trouble. Food did not digest, and did me little good. I tried several medicines in two years, but none gave relief. Six months ago I started taking Konjola, and found it to be the very medicine I needed. I am feeling better than in years, and can eat all kinds of food. Gladly I recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did. Konjola relieved constipation, too, and I do not have to take laxatives of any kind."

So it goes, everywhere Konjola is put to the test. Konjola is for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Auto Death Rate in State Lowered

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

The mail: A man from Morgantown wants us to help him trace his family tree . . . A lady writes in and forbids us strongly to refer publicly to her letter . . . Somebody else contributes a story about an Englishman who believed the 'Enry was an English hotel . . . A high school girl, who wants material for a monologue, is referred to the Sidewalks of last December 24, when a poem about the night before Christmas was published . . . A friend mails us a piece from a magazine and tells us to rewrite it . . . And good old Anonymous Reader criticized Bob Reamy, Sidewalk's illustrator, for putting a sabre in the right hand of our favorite Negro evangelist when he wrote that it was a left-side sabre . . . But maybe we're wrong. . . .

Fred Turbyville, Pitt's new big-league praise agent, is disappointed. The other morning he took especial care with himself. He slipped into a freshly pressed suit, he had his shoes shined, his hair cut and his beard eliminated. He ate a hearty breakfast and he was feeling good and, if you don't mind, making a good appearance. In fact, he might have been mistaken for the president, not the press agent of a university.

But as he was walking toward the campus an unkempt, anti-prohibitionist who had been out all night approached him with, "Shay, fella, canna gen'lmun shpeak to you?"

Racket paragraph: Bootleggers have devised means of avoiding the toll charges on long distance telephone calls. John Jones, a bootlegger in Buffalo, starts a truckload of booze to a speakeasy proprietor in Pittsburgh. Jones asks the Buffalo operator to get Jack Soandso as such and such a number in Pittsburgh. The speakeasy proprietor answers the 'phone, tells the operator Jack Soandso isn't around. No charge. But the proprietor knows that this is the signal to keep both eyes open for the Buffalo wares. If the Buffalo operator calls for John Soandso, why, that's a signal that the stuff hasn't been started out.

The trouble is that the chefs of the town won't pay any attention to us. We complain that mushrooms shouldn't be served with steak and what happens? Nothing. The chefs go right on serving steak with mushrooms. We have a complaint to make right now, but our heart isn't in it. We have just discovered neapolitan pie. It is composed of two flavors, chocolate and butterscotch. Well, you can't taste the chocolate for the butterscotch and you can't taste the butterscotch for the chocolate. And what have you? Nothing again. Give us the good old days of 1917, 1918 and 1919 when people could become excited about things.

Picnic paragraph: H. Lee Moore, district manager of the Buffalo Forge Company, can push a wheelbarrow carrying a bullfrog faster than any other Rotarian, or probably any other district manager, in town. At the Rotary picnic they had such a race—50 yards going and 50 yards coming back. The complication was that the frogs, being of the hopping variety, frequently hopped from the barrows and had to be recaptured. Mr. Moore won, and we want to be the first column to congratulate him.

SAFETY AIDS GET CREDIT FOR CUT

Motor Club Official Lauds Press, Civic Workers and Committees for Showing

Although 1,165 persons were killed in automobile accidents in Pennsylvania during the first eight months of 1930, indications are that the year's total will fall short of that of 1929, Robert L. Wickline, chairman of the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club said today.

Total fatalities in the United States so far this year were 19,700, an increase of 1,200.

The Pennsylvania figures give an average monthly toll of 145, while the average monthly figure for the entire year of 1929 reached 166. During 1929 a total of 1,992 autocide deaths were registered in the state.

CHILD DEATHS

Child auto death figures show that 463 children under 14 years of age were killed during 1929, or an average of 38 per month. For the first eight months of 1930 a total of 260 children of this age have been killed, or an average monthly figure of 32.

Wickline stated that an increasing consciousness of the danger of automobiles, both to pedestrians and passengers in cars, is cutting down the number of accidents.

He gives credit to newspapers, traffic committees, public safety officials and motor clubs for safety education work that provides this danger-consciousness.

CLAIMS AIR LINE SPEED RECORD

A speed record in air travel is believed to have been established Monday by Bud Baker, pilot on the Pittsburgh-Cleveland division of the Cleveland - Pittsburgh - Washington Passenger Line, who flew from Akron to Cleveland in 14 minutes, maintaining an average of 140 miles an hour.

Baker had two passengers for Chicago who were scheduled to arrive at Cleveland to make connection with the Stout Air Services plane for Chicago. He made the connection with two minutes to spare.

TEACHER URGES MEMORIAL TO DAVIDSON

School Board Holds Its First Session of Fall; Prospect High Plans Approved

The school board was urged at its first regular meeting yesterday since the summer vacation to take suitable action towards erection of a plaque in the administration building to the memory of the late Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools.

The suggestion, made in a communication from a retired teacher, advocated erection of an oil painting, accompanied with an excerpt of a resolution passed by the Teachers' Association on the death of the former "Head Teacher." The matter was referred to a committee for further action.

Routine business which had accummulated during the summer months was disposed of by the board.

APPROVE PLANS

Approval was made of the architects' preliminary plans for the combined Prospect Junior High and Elementary School, and authorization to proceed with the preparation of contract plans passed on. Similar procedure was carried out in the case of the new school to be erected on the "Mellon Site."

A motion was passed to approve plans for the Lincoln School and that bids be advertised for all electrical work before bids are solicited for the remaining work.

In line with the memorial suggestion, the board adopted a resolution of regret of Dr. Davidson's death, ordered a copy sent to his family and the minutes inscribed on the records.

Edward Vordran, chief clerk of the board, and a supervisor of the department of compulsory attendance were given leave of absence with pay to make a survey of attendance department organization in St. Louis and other cities.

HEAR DELAY CAUSES

Causes which delayed 311 days the erection of the C. B. Connelley Trade School beyond the contract time, were embodied in a report presented the board by James Bonar, superintendent of buildings.

The contract was let May 23, 1928, to be completed August 23, 1929. J. G. Fullman & Co., contractors, assigned the contract over to the bondsmen, the National Surety Company. A penalty of $100 daily for delays was stipulated in the contract. Shortly afterwards, several impromptu strikes occurred. These caused delays.

The board's committee on finance and administration will ponder over whether the bonding company should pay the full penalty, which totals $31,100.

Enrollment at the various summer schools was large this year, according to the report submitted by Acting Superintendent Ben G. Graham. The average attendance, according to the analysis, was 2,557 boys and 1,634 girls, a total of 4,211.

OBEY AVENUE PLEA

During the meeting Elmer Garvin, representing a committee of Obey Avenue school district parents, presented a petition to the board, asking action towards reopening the Obey Avenue School. Closed last year, children of that section of Crafton Heights, he said, have been forced to trek miles to reach the Schaeffer School, their present site. Several weeks ago the children went on strike and held class in the open air, with volunteer teachers presiding.

The board refused to hear any petitions until the children returned to school. Classes held outdoors were unrecognized by the board.

After hearing Garvin's plea, the matter was turned over to Acting Supt. Graham for further action, to be decided at a later meeting.

SCOUTS PLAN TO AID LABOR

The proposal to put labor to work in repairing Pittsburgh streets without the use of modern machinery in order to relieve unemployment was declared ridiculous by Walter J. Millard, an expert in municipal government, in a talk before the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, yesterday.

All public work must be paid for out of taxes, he declared, and taxes come from the pocketbooks of the citizens. Action must be taken in the direction of efficient spending of municipal funds, he said.

Mr. Millard described how the city-manager plan has worked in Cincinnati and a number of other cities. He said that taxes have been reduced in Cincinnati largely because of the economics brought about by the city-manager plan.

TWO DEATH CAR DRIVERS HELD

Two automobile drivers were held on manslaughter charges by a coroner's jury yesterday. James Macri, of 10 Roberts street, was held in the death of Daisy Richards, 15, of 1406 Fifth avenue, fatally injured August 25 when the car in which she and Macri were riding hit a pole at Second avenue and the Hazelwood avenue bridge. She died two days later in Mercy Hospital of a fractured skull.

James A. Gustine, of 1124 Sheffield street, was held in connection with the death of Arthur Martin, 51, of 1509 Boyle street, August 22. He was struck the day before at Irwin avenue and Jacksonia street by Gustine's car, according to the evidence.

WOODCOCK'S VISIT SPURS TRANSFER

'Three-Gun' Goes to Delaware As Deputy Administrator Of Prohibition Forces

Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, leader of many liquor raids in this district, has left Pittsburgh. Last night he boarded a train for Wilmington, Del., where today he assumes the duties of deputy prohibition administrator of Delaware.

Announcement that Wilson was to proceed at once to his new post was made by Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national director of prohibition, while in Pittsburgh yesterday on a tour of inspection. There were rumors that Wilson did not want to go to Delaware.

THREE IN CONFERENCE

The announcement was made after a three-hour conference between Col. Woodcock, J. D. Pennington, administrator of the Pennsylvania - New Jersey - Delaware area, and Wilson. What transpired at the meeting was not divulged.

Col. Woodcock said Wilson had asked an opportunity to explain his reason for not going to Wilmington two weeks ago, when directed to do so by Pennington. Since then Wilson was on a leave of absence without pay, but not under suspension, Col. Woodcock said.

While in Pittsburgh Wilson obtained the reputation of being one of the most fearless and efficient enforcement officers ever stationed in this district. During the two months he was deputy administrator of Western Pennsylvania his efforts were directed against the sources of moonshine whisky.

He raided 179 moonshine distilling plants. Prohibition officials have insisted that his raid on the Amen Corner picnic had nothing whatever to do with his removal.

Several years ago Wilson, while prohibition director in Massachusetts, raided a banquet in Boston, which was being held in honor of the governor of the state. Soon afterwards he was dismissed from the service and did not return to it until 18 months ago, when made assistant administrator under Pennington, then stationed here.

When the prohibition department was transferred to the Department of Justice July 1, Wilson remained here as a deputy administrator.

HONORED AT LUNCHEON

During the noon recess of the conference, Col. Woodcock and Administrator Pennington were guests at a luncheon at the Keystone Club, attended by 50 persons. The Rev. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, presided as toastmaster. Among those present were Dr. J. W. Claudy, secretary-treasurer of Pittsburgh Council of Churches; Mrs. Ella George, of Beaver, former president of the Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and Andrew T. Park, district attorney of Allegheny County. Brief addresses were made by the two guests of honor.

The national director and administrator left last night for Harrisburg, continuing their tour of inspection of the area under Pennington.

SUBSTITUTE ON JOB

Robert S. Krause, chief investigator of the prohibition unit in Pittsburgh, is acting deputy administrator of Western Pennsylvania, having taken up Wilson's duties, Krause, it was said, will continue as acting deputy administrator until a permanent appointment is made.

Cathie Anxiously Awaits Gordon's Visit

CHAPTER XXVII.

February waned, and March came, bringing with it cold winds and sleety rains, and then, unexpectedly, the California spring. The yellow sun was warm and smelt of coming summer, flowers sprang up in vacant lots.

Cathie's exhilaration was gone, but peace remained. She was sure of herself, sure of Gordon. They loved . . . some day . . . some time . . . in some world they'd have each other. . . In the meanwhile there was nothing to do but live on and be nice to people, and wait . . .

"It shows what money will do," Ruth said disconsolately to her mother, "Cathie's lost most of her freckles, and her hair has turned golden. It must have cost her a pretty penny. I don't suppose I could afford the same beauty course, but at least I could buy the cream and stuff, but she won't tell. Just says she hasn't done anything. Marrying money changed her all right!"

The mother sighed. "We all change when we marry," she said. "You will change, too, Ruth."

Ruth blushed furiously. After a little pause, she said: "Mr. Browning happened to mention that he thought I looked well in gray. It was the other day when I wore that gray sweater and skirt. Do you think a gray suit for spring . . ."

Prettier
People Speak of Her Beauty

Somebody else noticed that flower petal look about Cathie . . . the bloom that comes of loving and being beloved. "I don't know's I can take credit for how well you're looking," Marguerite said one night when she was brushing Cathie's hair. It was soft and fine as a baby's, full of curling ends, and lights that were not golden or copper, but like sunlight on leafy brown trees, dappled with deep shadows where the waves were longest.

"Do I look well?" Cathie looked at herself critically.

"Well," Marguerite snorted. "Well that's not the half of it."

After Marguerite had gone, Cathie took a few more looks at herself in the glass. It is true, she thought, I'm improving . . . why, I'm really very pretty . . . and it's sort of a waste, now that I haven't any particular use for being pretty . . . Alfred was satisfied enough before . . . Perhaps, if I could have been pretty as this a year ago . . . But there! I mustn't think of it . . ."

It was hard not to.

People began speaking of her beauty. Cathie was afraid she would become vain, but it pleased Farnsworth to have her admired, so it was not right to worry about that.

People began to call. Beautifully gowned women. Men who wore well cut clothes and looked oddly like her husband. A few young men and their anxious wives—these last obviously surprised to find the second Mrs. Farnsworth so young.

Many Visitors
Silence Follows Mention Of Chester

In her efforts to find something to talk about Cathie dragged the younger Farnsworth into the conversation. Had they seen Chester lately? Had they met Chester's charming wife? Slowly it dawned upon her that allusions to Chester and Enid brought only strained silences, and bright, insincere replies . . . People were uncomfortable when Chester and Enid were mentioned. That was funny, because all these people were old friends of the Farnsworth family. Why didn't they want to talk about Chester? Was it because of things Chester had said about her? Were they just calling out of curiosity to see this monster Chester had described?

Once, Cathie would have been crushed by the thought of such a possibility, but months of matching her wits against Chester's were teaching her things. She couldn't help it—why worry? Besides, what did she care about people? Gordon Moore loved her . . . nothing else mattered.

Stay Away
Mother and Sister Do Not Visit

Chester and Enid rarely came to the house any more. Cathie knew that her husband went to their apartment frequently, but she didn't mind. After all, Chester was his son.

"Why don't you have your own people visit here oftener?" Farnsworth urged her, feeling a little guilty perhaps, because he went so often to his son's.

That hurt. Because they wouldn't come. "Now you don't

Death Strikes Twice in Two Pittsburgh Families

Death struck twice in two Pittsburgh families in the past few days. Samuel M. Soupcoff, mining engineer, chief statistician in the New York offices of Moore, Leonard and Lynch, brokers, died suddenly in New York Saturday from a heart attack. His mother, Mrs. Mollie Soupcoff, 573 Hobart street, died yesterday without knowing of her son's death.

Jacob Bierer, a retired mill worker, died Monday, and 10 minutes later his niece, daughter of the late George W. Bierer, died after an illness of a year.

Board Hears Plea to Give Invalid Boy Education

G. W. Gerwig, a member of the Board of Education, believes the board is humanitarian and has a heart.

At the meeting yesterday a communication asking educational aid for a 14-year-old boy, physically incurable, but with mental potentialities, was presented and referred to the superintendent and a committee.

For several years the mother, Mrs. A. L. Helbling, 345 Lehigh avenue, according to her plea, carried her son, Joseph R., to school. But now he has become too heavy and must stay at home. He was refused admission to an industrial school because of his incurable condition.

Later his father wheeled him to school, but when he was promoted to the sixth grade, on the second floor, it was impossible for him to go. The boy was crippled by an attack of influenza in 1918.

Her letter reads:

"Other cities have some means to educate boys like mine. He is very bright and always has been."

Gerwig said:

"Steinmetz was no physical genius, but he had a brilliant mind. This boy appears to have a bright mind. And bright minds are few in Pittsburgh. If our city is civilized, as a magazine writer suggested recently, we should do something for this boy. He has every right to enjoy an education. He wants one, therefore we should see that he gets it.

"I'll await with pleasure the committee's action."

Will Rogers Says:

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Good old St. Louis. You don't hear of it very often, but every once in awhile Lindbergh leaves there, or the Cardinals win a pennant. I knew the Chicago Cubs weren't going to win the minute they knew Connie Mack's Athletics would be their opponents, and nobody can blame 'em much. If I had a team that had to meet the Athletics I would just find out how much second money was, draw it and go home a week earlier. And speaking of cities, Atlanta is making the first page this week by the aid of a "putter." If Bobby Jones wins this one, Georgia will be the nineteenth hole.

Yours, WILL.

GRAHAM HOLDS ALIEN BAN, NOT FEE, CAUSE

Fewer Immigrants, Not $1, He Claims, Cuts Roster Of Elementary Classes

Lack of attendance at several evening elementary public schools is due to lack of immigrants and not to the $1 fee which the school system extracts as a book deposit, Dr. Ben G. Graham, acting superintendent of schools, said yesterday.

Answering the queries of education board officials, Dr. Graham expressed his belief that immigrants who previously took advantage of the opportunity afforded to receive elementary education had assumed negligible proportions. Instead, persons with more education were attending night high school classes. These, he said, show enrollment increases.

GRAHAM'S VIEWS

Discussing the $1 deposit fee, Graham said:

"The $1 deposit fee is holding no one back from enrolling in the elementary schools. This deposit is compulsory and is returned at the end of the term. And neither does unemployment have anything to do with the matter. I believe that lessening of the number of immigrants here is largely responsible."

Figures announced by Dr. Coit R. Hoechst, head of the extension division of the public schools, disclose that five elementary schools have been closed as class centers. There is a possibility two more will cease operations within the next week unless tardy registrations bring in the necessary pupils. At least 100 pupils are required, he said, to make a night school of that type feasible.

In closing elementary classes at Oliver High School, pupils were transferred to Allegheny High and Latimer High Schools.

NIGHT HIGH FIGURES

Figures for night attendance at high schools reveal that Schenley High has 250 more pupils now than at the same time last year. The attendance, still mounting, is 1,031. Allegheny High courses are increased from 700 last year to 1,061 at present.

Night elementary schools closed include:

Morse, William H. McKelvey, Oliver, Washington and Manchester. Schools facing closed doors are Woods Run and Morrow.

The directors will further recommend, it was said, that residents of the district be given preference in the employment of labor, and professional services, the letting of contracts, and the purchase of material.

Directors will also suggest the appointment of a county commission on employment, to study methods of relieving unemployment used in other cities.

STRAY BULLET HITS WOMAN

Shot when a neighbor tried his markmanship with a .44 caliber revolver at a chicken coop, according to police, Mrs. Edna McElheny, 38, of 818 Broadhead road, Aliquippa, wife of J. W. McElheny, borough secretary of Aliquippa, was a patient in the Rochester General Hospital today.

Clark Moffett, 70, the neighbor, was lodged in the Aliquippa police station, pending the outcome of the woman's injury.

Mrs. McElheny was in the back yard of her home when Moffett, police said, tried out the weapon. A bullet penetrated both ends of the coop and struck her in the left breast. She was given first aid by a physician and rushed to the hospital, where it was said today the bullet had not penetrated the lung.

Today's question—Lord Castleross says every woman is a snob at heart. Do you agree with him?

SAMUEL JUBELIER, Squirrel Hill, assistant manager—I am no master of women's thoughts and emotions, but from personal experience I am of the opinion that every woman is not a snob at heart.

DICK POWELL, master of stage ceremonies—No, I don't agree with him. He is terribly unfair when he makes such a very selfish statement. Every woman is most certainly not a snob at heart.

Miss Koehler

MISS OLIVE KOEHLER, North Side, cashier—No, I don't agree with him. That is a characteristic and depends on the individual woman. All women are not snobs at heart.

JOHN DUDZIK, North Side, electrician—No, I don't agree with him when he says "every woman." There are some women who wouldn't be snobs if they could and could not be if they would.

John Dudzik

HENRY BRANTL, North Side, baker—No, Lord Castleross, I do not agree with you that all women are snobs at heart. Partially, you are right, for some women are just that, but when you say all, you are drawing too quick a conclusion.

"I am pleased to submit the name of Betty Eula Dyer for the Gloria Swanson-Sun-Telegraph Paris Tour or one of the Sun-Telegraph Bermuda trips. Charming girl and I hope that she will be a winner."

Pittsburghers who attended Loew's Penn Theater yesterday had their first glimpse of what the trip to Paris really means. In the spacious lobby of the theater there was placed on view a 15-foot model of one of the new ocean line steamships, trim and beautiful, perfect in reproduction and built at a cost of $50,000. It is on one of these liners, either the Paris or the Ile de France, that the girl who gets the Gloria Swanson-Sun-Telegraph award will make the trip.

It was on the liner Paris and in the city of Paris that much of Gloria Swanson's new and successful picture "What A Widow!" was filmed. "What A Widow!" will have its first showing at Loew's Penn Theater Friday.

It isn't too late for the girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity to file their nomination blanks if they want to go to Paris or Bermuda—all expenses paid, everything de luxe and extra money to spend.

The six lucky girls will leave Pittsburgh early in December. The Paris trip will require nearly a month and the Bermuda trips approximately two weeks.

If you are interested, you will find a nomination blank in the Sun-Telegraph today. If you are eligible, after reading the requirements as printed in the blank, fill in the blank and mail it today.

Paris bound! Bermuda bound! Let's go!

MISS HELEN PORTER — ANN KITTREDGE

VICTIM TO SEEK CHICAGO AID

Samuel Spitzer, Chicago broker, swindled out of $30,000 by a gang of confidence men who induced him to invest in a wire-tapping game to beat horse races, returned home yesterday after conferring with his attorney, Morris C. Canter.

Spitzer declared he would place his case in the hands of the Chicago police, and that he was confident the three swindlers will be captured and that he would get his money back.

LUCKY GIRL

want your family all over the place." Mary Paige would say. "You've married above you, as the saying is, and I'm not the one to drag you down. I wouldn't know how to talk to those society people and—"

"But, ma," Cathie explained, over and over. "I'm all alone most of the time, and anyway, they're not worth your little finger—all of them put together! Ma, I'm just the same! Having money hasn't made me different. Can't you see how I want you? Ma, please, please, come!"

"Well, we'll see. Maybe when I get me a new hat."

"It doesn't matter about your hat! But we'll get a new one today. We will just get in the car—"

"Now, Cathie, don't rush me. I'll come, all in good time!"

All in good time! And there it rested. Mary Paige never set foot in Cathie's house. Neither did Ruth.

So it was Jean who did all the family visiting, and in March even that stopped. Mr. Farnsworth sent her east to be tutored for a famous girl's school. The child was wild to go, and Mary Paige would not stand in her way, much as she would have liked to keep her home.

Jean left at dusk one windy day, with her new suitcase, her new clothes that Cathie chose so lovingly.

"I hope it's for the best," Mary Paige said.

Anxiety

Nervously Awaits Word From Gordon

"Well, you still have me," Ruth said brightly. "Cathie's marrying a millionaire certainly hasn't affected my life any! I'm still working for my living, and proud of my independence!"

Things like that, little things that Ruth let slip occasionally worried Cathie a little . . . you'd almost think that Ruth hated her for all she had been able to do for the family . . . but that was just Ruth's way . . . it didn't mean anything . . . Cathie managed to laugh.

The family's funny ways . . . Enid's snubs . . . Chester's meanness . . . even the dark and gloomy house had little effect on her these days. One fact blotted out all the others. Gordon Moore was coming to San Francisco. He would arrive any day now. There was a new irrigation project coming up. He and Farnsworth would plan it together. It would take weeks . . . perhaps months . . . they'd see each other often . . .

Cathie began looking for letters. He'd write her, of course. He'd want her to know of it in his own words. . . .

"Any mail for me, Marguerite?" Cathie asked the question, over and over.

As time grew shorter and the date of his coming drew nearer and nearer her whole being waited upon the postman. She was afraid to leave the house, lest a letter come in her absence.

The flower-petal look began to fade. Cathie was getting anxious.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Bud Aide At Tea

From now on days are going to be most satisfyingly busy for these newest members of the grown up social world, the debutantes. There are parties both at home and in the East to attend.

J., gave Saturday to present her daughter, Patricia Burke Ross. The guest of honor attended Miss Porter's School, where so many Pittsburgh girls go, and also studied abroad.

Virginia will make her debut at a tea her mother will give on November 5 at the Drake home.

Travellers Honor New President

The Travellers inducted their thirtieth president into office yesterday when they held a reception at the Congress of Clubs for Mrs. Chad H. Richards. Nearly 100 members and guests were present, and all the visitors gave the customary greetings from the clubs which they represented. Mrs. Richards was introduced by Mrs. Blanche Elton, second vice president, in the absence of the retiring president, Mrs. J. C. Schreiner, who is traveling in the West.

An enjoyable program which followed Mrs. Richards' inaugural address, included readings by Mrs. E. T. Crowder, one a tribute to the incoming executive and the other a humorous number in dialect. Miss Editha Weikal, who like Mrs. Crowder, is an affiliated member of the Travellers, contributed piano solos and Mrs. W. L. Stone, also of the affiliated membership, gave contralto solos. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Betty Stone.

Mrs. Richards and Mrs. R. W. Johnston, Congress president, presided at the tea table which was charmingly decorated in the club colors, purple and white, with asters in the center.

HOMESPUN ENSEMBLES APPROVED FOR TOWN AND COUNTRY WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Homespun yarns make pleasant reading for the woman who is addicted to this sturdy woolen which so well simulates the material which was spun by women who found in the loom a source of pleasure as well as domestic task. The suit or ensemble of homespun is having quite a success this season. It is eminently practical and when well handled it is exceedingly attractive. The ensemble that looks well in town and country is what is liked at the moment, for most of us enjoy week-ends in the country that is so gorgeous at this time of the year. We therefore want something to wear in which we can lunch in town, wear during the trip and look perfectly well dressed on our arrival. And the outfit that can answer each and all of these requirements is not so easy to discover, as no doubt many women have found out when planning to include one such outfit in their wardrobe.

SCHIAPARELLI, so famous for her sports and beach wear, is having a great success this autumn with her collection. She is an adept in creating informal clothes that are so beautifully tailored and detailed that they attain a desirable degree of formality that makes them part of any picture, whether it be an exterior, or an interior one. Those of you who are planning a practical ensemble for these lovely first days of autumn would do well to scrutinize carefully the sketches of a Schiaparelli ensemble shown. The coat is of that most popular material, gray homespun and has a knitted collar of gray wool with a cable pattern done in high relief with white wool. The sleeves are tucked at the top and bloused into a narrow cuff midway between elbow and wrist.

THE OTHER SKETCH is of the smart jumper and skirt which hides so demurely beneath the homespun coat. The jumper is a tucked-in model of handknit gray wool. Cable stitch collar and cuffs claim relationship with the coat trimming. Two-toned plaid homespun makes the skirt. This has a crossed-in-front belt which buckles behind.

SUES TO SHARE HUGE PROFIT

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (AP).—Charges that the president and directors betrayed the interests of stockholders and made a secret profit of $10,000,000 are made in a suit for receivership brought against the Celotex Company by William I. McEvridge as a stockholder.

The charges were promptly denied by President Basil G. Dahlberg who declared there was no basis for the charges and that the company was "very much solvent." The bill charges that Dahlberg made $5,000,000 through sale of land to the Celotex Company and that another $5,000,000 was made by the president and what was termed a hand-picked board of directors through sale of 82,000 shares of Celotex Corporation common stock. It alleges further that sugar lands in Porto Rica, Cuba and Louisiana were "unloaded" on the Celotex Company by Dahlberg.

GRUNDY'S AIDE HURT IN CRASH

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 24 (AP).—An automobile accident prevented Lenthon Taylor, of Washington, former secretary to the late Senator Penrose, and present secretary to Senator Grundy, from attending the unveiling of the Penrose statue at Harrisburg yesterday.

While the unveiling was taking place, Taylor, his 82-year-old mother and his sister were in a hospital here suffering from severe injuries.

The party was motoring to Harrisburg from Washington when their car approached a narrow bridge near here and Taylor jammed on the brakes to avoid a collision with a truck. The car skidded, left the road and crashed into a telephone pole.

Taylor suffered several rib fractures and his mother, Mrs. Josephine C. Taylor, received fractures of both legs. His sister, Miss Emma C. Taylor, suffered rib fractures. The condition of Mrs. Taylor was serious.

FOE OF NORRIS RECANTS

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 24 (AP).—Further truthful testimony was demanded of witnesses today in the senatorial investigation into the brief candidacy of the second George W. Norris for the Nebraska senatorship.

The warning from Chairman Gerald P. Nye came after two witnesses and the second Norris, himself, yesterday had given evidence refuting the former Broken Bow (Neb.) grocer's original contention that he entered the field against U. S. Senator George W. Norris of his own volition.

Miss Esther Aldon, former stenographer for Victor Seymour, of Lincoln, directing Republican activities in western states with headquarters in Denver, testified she had typewritten a campaign statement identified by the second Norris as his own, at Seymour's request.

FATHER SLAYS FIVE, SELF

YORK, Pa., Sept. 24 (AP).—After writing a note indicating he had made a death agreement with his family, Harry Dietrich, a farmer, is believed by police to have killed his wife and four children and then hanged himself at his farm near here. The tragedy is believed to have occurred Sunday, but the bodies were not found until yesterday.

As a coroner reconstructed the slayings, Dietrich, apparently maddened by financial worries, strangled the members of the family with binding twine, battered their heads with an axe, then went to the barn and hanged himself to a rafter. The coroner found a note saying:

"Financial worry. Burn at Strinestown. Tell Sol and Alfred to be good to mother. We are out of their way. Also Calvin Runkle. We decided to die together. I could not leave them alone."

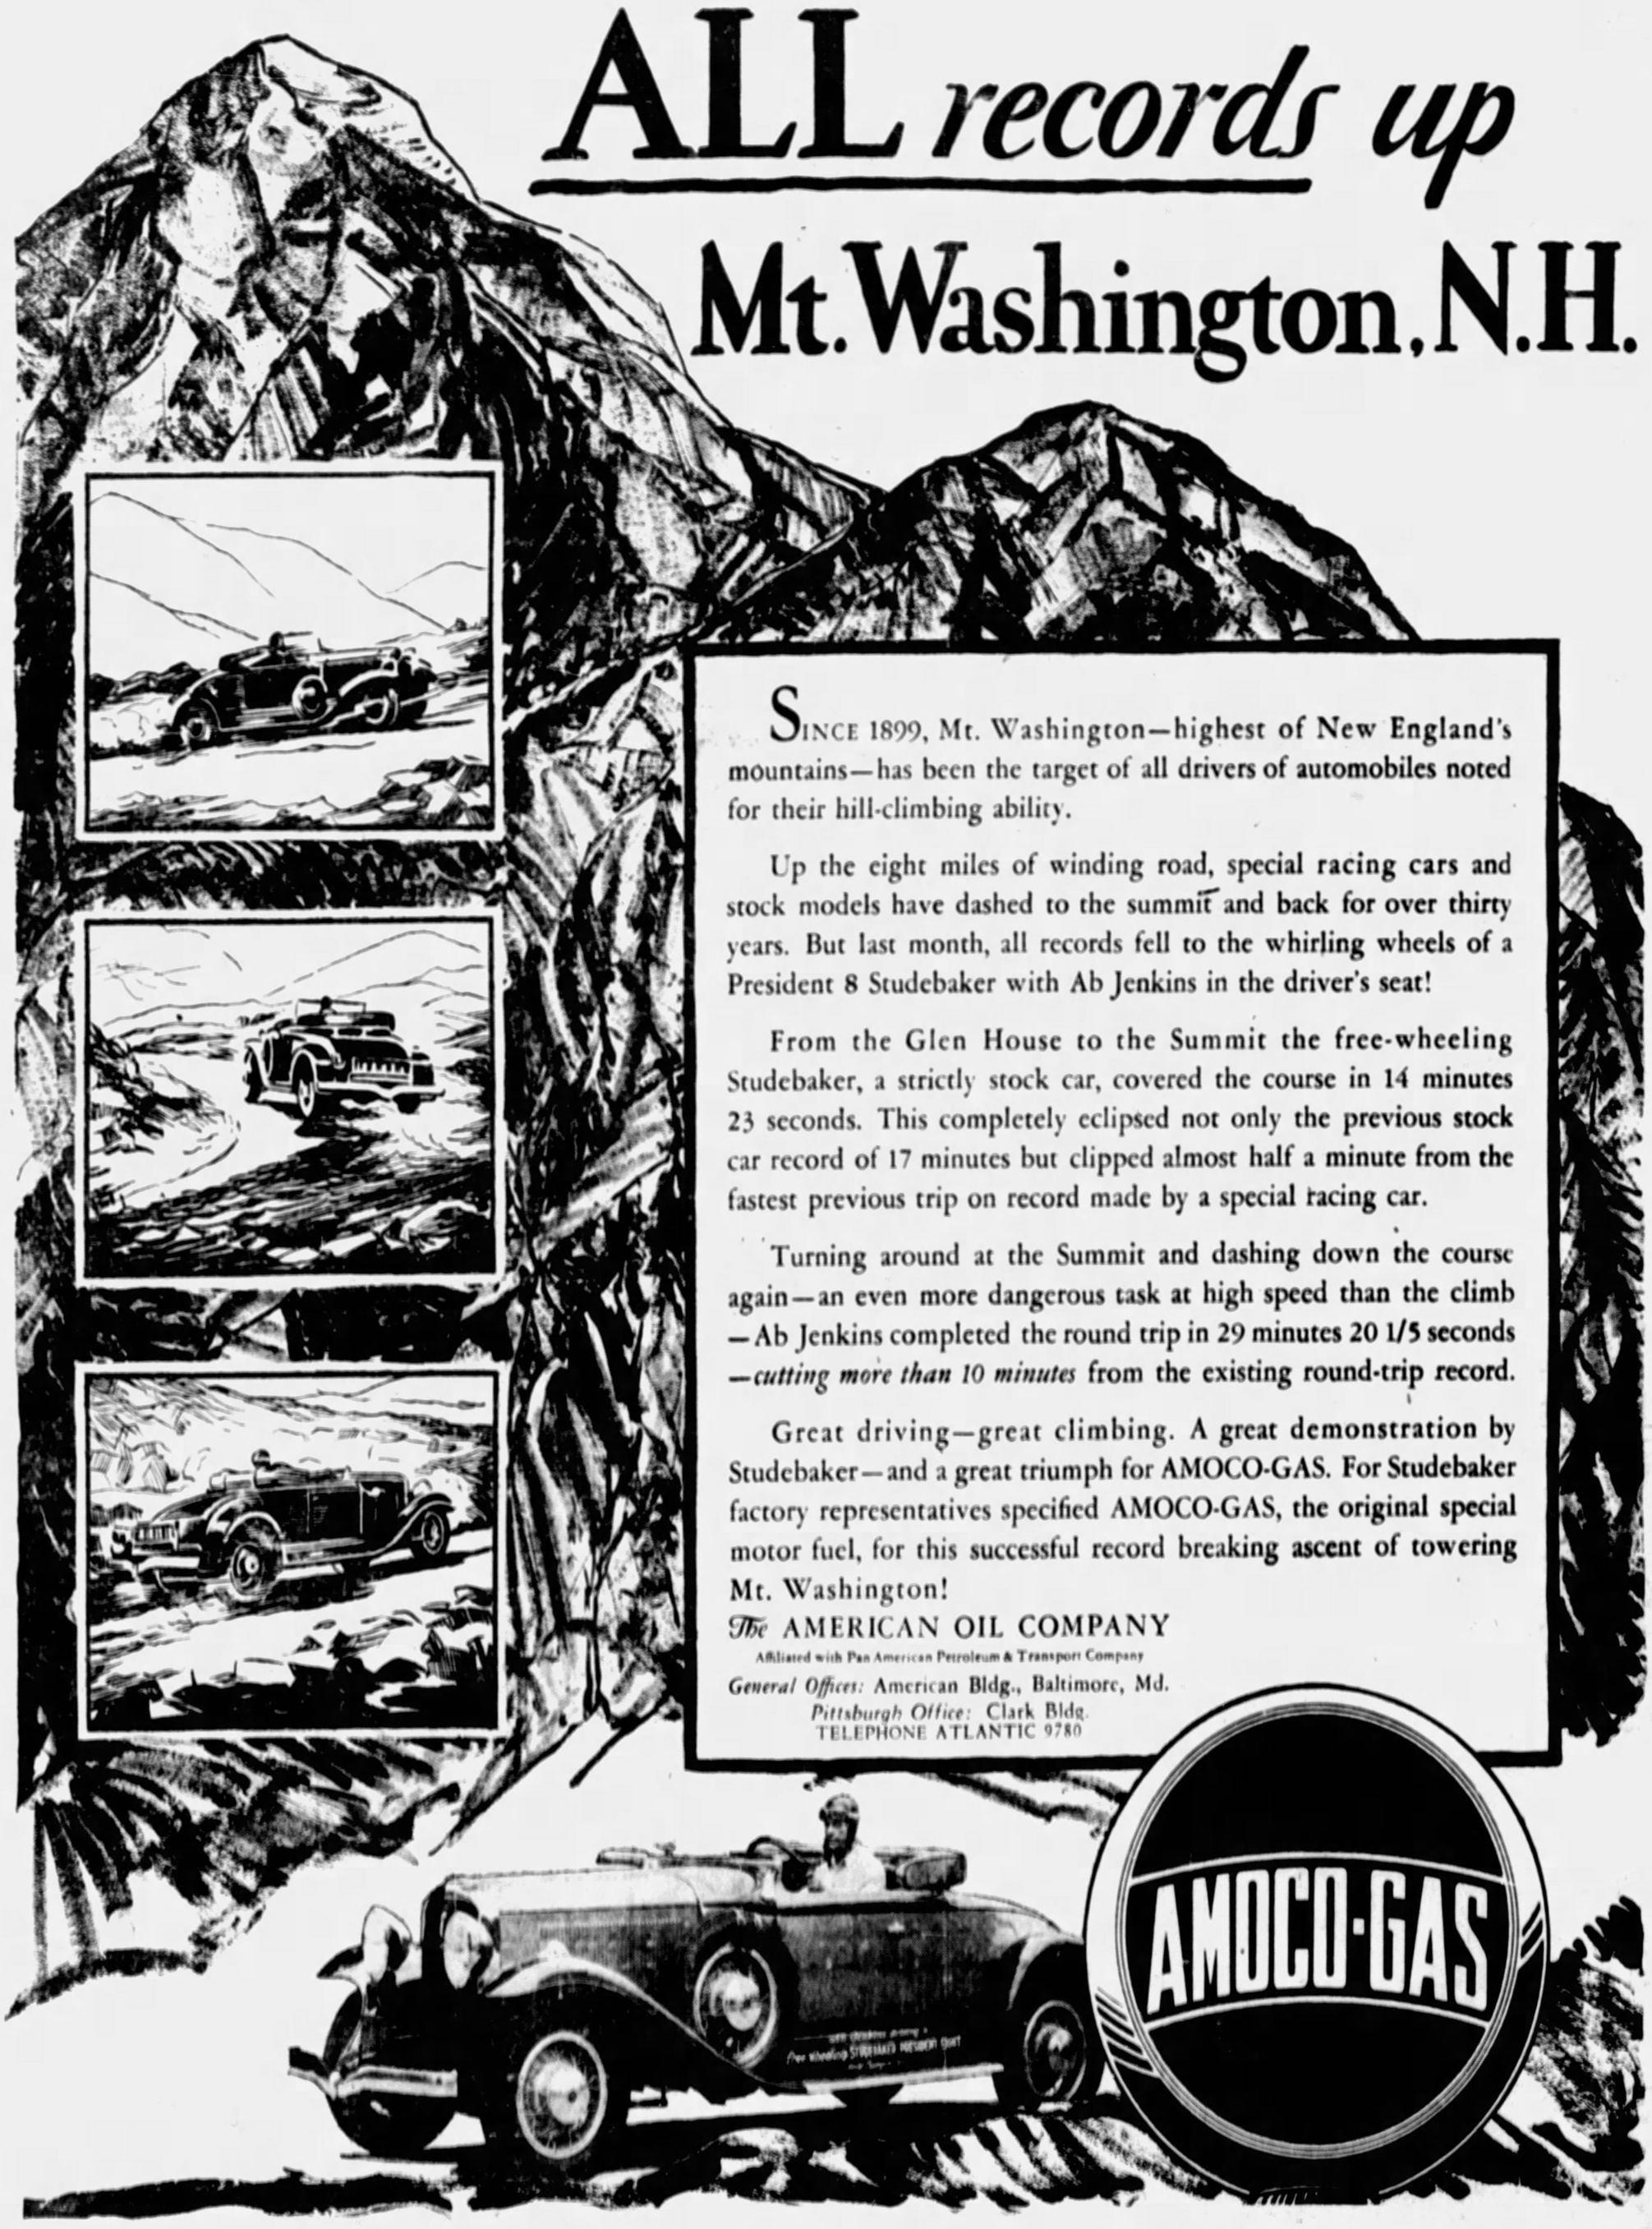
Free wheeling Studebaker using Amoco-Gas breaks ALL records up Mt. Washington, N.H.



SINCE 1899, Mt. Washington—highest of New England's mountains—has been the target of all drivers of automobiles noted for their hill-climbing ability.

Up the eight miles of winding road, special racing cars and stock models have dashed to the summit and back for over thirty years. But last month, all records fell to the whirling wheels of a President 8 Studebaker with Ab Jenkins in the driver's seat!

From the Glen House to the Summit the free-wheeling Studebaker, a strictly stock car, covered the course in 14 minutes 23 seconds. This completely eclipsed not only the previous stock car record of 17 minutes but clipped almost half a minute from the fastest previous trip on record made by a special racing car.

Turning around at the Summit and dashing down the course again—an even more dangerous task at high speed than the climb—Ab Jenkins completed the round trip in 29 minutes 20 1/5 seconds—cutting more than 10 minutes from the existing round-trip record.

Great driving—great climbing. A great demonstration by Studebaker—and a great triumph for AMOCO-GAS. For Studebaker factory representatives specified AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel, for this successful record breaking ascent of towering Mt. Washington!

SHARKEY APPEARS PROBABLE WINNER

THE MEETING OF Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo at the Yankee Stadium in New York tomorrow night appears to be fistic fandom's idea of nothing to get excited about, as no heavyweight bout in a long time in which a so-called top-liner has been a principal has caused so little commotion or stirred up so little interest. The promoters who wished the uncalled-for match on the public just to keep rival showmen in Chicago from putting on a more attractive Sharkey-Carnera fight, and who then tried to boost it along by arranging to give part of the proceeds to the Navy and Marine Memorial Association to help defray the cost of a memorial to be erected in Washington, are likely to be keenly disappointed when they count up the gate.

Jack Sharkey

For one thing, Sharkey's unhappy faculty of disappointing nearly every fight crowd that pays to see him in action keeps the affair from being a drawing card, and another drawback is that there was no demand for the match in the first place. So even though it will be the final outdoor show of the Eastern season, the attendance probably will be the lightest registered at any Sharkey fight in a long time.

ABOUT ALL THAT the promoters can hope to get out of it is some build-up stuff for the annual heavyweight show in Miami next February. The winner of the New York bout is to be sent against Young Stribling in Florida, and the victor on that occasion will be matched to meet Max Schmeling for the world championship in Gotham next summer.

The sponsors of the Sharkey-Campolo number probably figure it as a helpful advertising medium from two angles. They believe a victory for Sharkey will go far toward restoring confidence in him, reinstating him in public favor and making him a better card in Miami than he would be if he were to remain idle in the meantime. On the other hand, if Campolo wins, such a result will provide them with a new and acceptable opponent for Stribling, which Campolo would not be in his present ranking.

ON THE RECORDS of the two men and what is known of their relative ability, there appears to be nothing to it but a decisive victory for Sharkey, provided he shows even a reasonably close approach to his best form.

Of course, you can't feel sure about the sailor, for there is never any telling what he will do, no matter how soft an opponent he may be up against. But as this fight shapes up as practically his last opportunity to stay in the big money, he is likely to be on his good behavior. In that event he ought to win without trouble, as Campolo has never shown anything except size to recommend him as a championship possibility.

Victorio Campolo

IN THE LIGHT of his success, no one can question the ability of William Wrigley, Jr., as a business man, but being a good business man and being a good baseball man are different propositions. There are two or three magnates in the big leagues who are noted for business acumen but who have shown on numerous occasions that what they don't know about baseball would fill a Carnegie library. Possibly the future will show that Wrigley, or rather his staff of advisers, has made a misstep, such as some of the others have made from time to time in different baseball matters, in his surprising dismissal of a manager as successful as Joe McCarthy has been and in the appointing of Rogers Hornsby to succeed him.*

EVIDENTLY THE FANS knew Hornsby and baseball better than Wrigley knew either. When the purchase of Hornsby from the Braves was announced with a blare of trumpets, the first opinions expressed on all sides was that it would be only a matter of time until Rogers got himself appointed manager.

The bosses of the Cubs were quick to declare that there would be none of the Slattery-Hornsby business in Chicago. They said Rogers would be shown his place and made to stay in it, made to understand that he was there only to play ball and that McCarthy was to remain the sole director of the club—on the field. Well, you see who's going to be manager, don't you?

POSSIBLY WRIGLEY HAD his own reasons for deciding to part with McCarthy, even though most fans can't see any good baseball reason for the action, but followers of the game are waiting to be shown that he made the right move in selecting as his successor a man who was dropped by one club after another until he had been with no fewer than four of them within a space of four years.

William Wrigley, Jr.

McCarthy's baseball prestige hasn't suffered a bit by reason of his dismissal. He will be welcomed with open arms by the fans wherever he goes to a new job, whether it be in Pittsburgh or some other city, and probably will continue to prove that he is one of the game's best managers.

IT MIGHT BE interesting to know from what source Wrigley got the information that McCarthy gave faulty directions in instructing the Chicago hurlers what to pitch to Simmons and Cochrane in the 1929 world series. Or perhaps he just concluded the system was faulty after comparing it with the way the A's Ringers pitched to Hornsby. Blaming the loss of the world series on McCarthy and picking Hornsby as promising to get better results brings a laugh. If anybody did more to lose that series than Hornsby himself it is hard to recall him. Possibly one of the reasons for the Cubs' loss of four games out of five was the fact that Hornsby batted .238, struck out eight times in 21 times at bat, and knocked in a grand total of one run.*

NO MATTER HOW many home runs may be credited to Hack Wilson, prospective new four-base king of the big leagues, at the end of the season, the total will be one short of the number he actually made during 1930, according to information brought to Pittsburgh by members of the Cincinnati club.

The Reds report that during a game played in Cincinnati by the Cubs before the latter's final Eastern trip, Wilson socked a ball into the right-field bleachers and the leather bounded back onto the playing field. The umpires thought it had struck the screen in front of the bleachers and gave Wilson only a two-bagger. But several of the Reds admit that the ball cleared the top of the screen and rebounded to the field only after striking a row of seats, and that Hack should have been given a clean home run.

THE PIRATES GAVE some nourishment to a couple of famished pitching records when they lost both ends of a double-header to Jake May and Kenneth Ash, of the Reds. Ash had been credited with only one decision all season and had not started a game of his own until he faced the Bucs, all of his previous 14 slab appearances having been made in relief roles.

And, "believe it or not," the game in which May blanked the

ROBINS LOSE AGAIN, OUT OF RACE

Associated Press.

Only two clubs retain a mathematical chance of winning the National League pennant as the result of yesterday's two games, and the St. Louis Cardinals are further ahead than ever. By downing the Phillies, 19-16, in yesterday's slugfest, the Cards moved out three full games ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who were idle, and the Cubs have only four games in which to try to catch the leaders.

The Brooklyn Robins, losing an 8-to-2 decision to the New York Giants, were put completely out of the race with the loss of a full game.

They now are five games behind and have four to go. The Giants gained a virtual tie with the Robins for third place through their victory and trail by one point. The standing of the leaders:

PIRATES PLAY HOME FINAL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirates and Reds will close the local baseball season this afternoon with a single contest. Steve Swetonic or Remy Kremer may oppose Larry Benton on the mound. At the close of the farewell game, Manager Ens, of the Buccos, will lead his players to St. Louis, where they will make a determined stand against the Cardinals, who appear to be on the verge of winning the National League pennant.

The Buccos are slated to mix with the Redbirds in four battles, the first to be staged tomorrow. At the same time the runner-up Cubs will open a four-game set with the Reds in Chicago.

IMPORTANT SERIES

When the two important series start, the league leaders will enjoy an advantage of three full ball games, or the same margin of safety they have today. This means that the Cardinals, to win, would have to cop two of their games with the Buccos provided the Cubs take all four of their games with the Reds.

In the event that the Pirates take three out of four from the St. Louis fighters, the Cubs could force a deadlock by winning all of their games. Should the Freebooters clean up on the Cards, the Cubs could win the pennant by winning their four games.

Skipper Ens probably will have his best pitchers ready to shoot at the Cardinals in the four battles. Moreover, he will try to have Lloyd Waner back at his centerfield post. Lloyd has been rested since he injured his knee in Brooklyn Sunday.

BEATEN TWICE

The Buccos may have skylarked a bit yesterday as they took two trimmings from the Reds in a Forbes Field doubleheader. In any event, the Pirates were close to their best barnstorming form and were beaten 8 to 0 and 5 to 2.

The Pirates are all set to throw everything they have at the Red-

Another full list of scheduled soccer games will be played this week. The Central, Panhandle and Keystone League slates are listed above, but owing to many changes in the makeup of the Mon-Yough League, a new schedule has been drafted and will be announced tomorrow. It will be noted that the Keystone League also underwent a change, the withdrawal of the Heidelberg teams causing that loop to be drafted anew.

In the Central League, the battle of Lawrenceville will be staged at Leslie Park, where the Rovers and Celtics clash. A meeting between Jimmy Dunlop and the Green and White defense is always worth while.

Pierpoint Motors will travel to Crafton Heights, and the Sons of St. George eleven will hook up with Clan Douglas at the Westinghouse High School field. Union Switch goes to Crafton to open the league season at the Heights.

the 20th hole by W. Lawson Little, of San Francisco.

GUNN, DUNLAP LOSE

Another upset occurred when George T. Dunlap, Jr., the national intercollegiate champion, and a "seeded" entry, was put out by Jack Ahearn, of Hamburgwin, N. Y. Ahearn, who barely squeezed into the match play this morning by holing a 30-foot putt on the third play-off hole, won 3 and 1 from Dunlap.

Watts Gunn, of Pittsburgh, former Atlantan and Walker Cup star, was eliminated by Maurice McCarthy, of New York, 1 up, in a 19-hole match.

Johnny Goodman, the Omaha ace, who beat Bobby Jones last year and was favored to play the Georgian again tomorrow, met defeat at the home hole of the first round at the hands of Johnny McHugh, former California state champion.

George Voigt, of New York, another favorite, was hard-pressed eo defeat Lester Bolstad, of St. Louis, 2 and 1.

BOBBY MEETS HOBLITZEL

F. G. Hoblitzel, of Toronto, the sole remaining Canadian, turned up as the second round opponent for Jones. The stocky Dominion star beat Ellis Knowles, of New York, 3 and 1, to go into the second round.

John Lehman, Chicago, ran Phil Perkins, former British champion, out of the tournament by beating the latter, 3 up and 1 to play. Meantime Jess Sweetser, the former champion, won from Phillips Finlay by 2 and 1.

GUNN WINS IN PLAYOFF

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 24.—Watts Gunn, of the Oakmont Country Club, former Atlantan and Walker Cup star, was the only member of the Pittsburgh links delegation to the national amateur tournament at the Merion Cricket Club here to make the grade in the 36-hole qualifying test, concluded yesterday.

Gunn staged a sensational comeback, covering the last nine in 33, one under par, to card a 75 and a total of 155 that kept him in the tournament for a playoff this morning, which he won, only to be beaten in the first round of match play later, 1 up, 19 holes, by Maurice McCarthy, of New York. His card yesterday:

Out ..... 5 5 3 4 5 4 5 3 5—42
In ..... 5 4 4 5 4 4 5 3 4—33—75—155

Other Pittsburghers finished well back in the field. Their first and second-round scores and 36-hole totals follow:

Fred Brand, Jr., Shannopin ... 79-79—158
Carlos A. Fawcett, Oakmont ... 82-77—159

It isn't hard for Wrigley to send back all that series coin he collected in advance. When you control a couple of mints, even of they are only Spearmint and Doublemint, you can afford it, but that refund racket comes hard with Brooklyn. Over at the Flatbush offices the clerks are humming "I'm Cancelling Reservations With Tears In My Eyes." I hope my friends won't put the buzz on me for World Series ducats. I can get plenty for Ebbets Field, but none for St. Louis or Philadelphia.

ST. FRANCIS TESTS WARNER GRID SYSTEM

STRINGER, NEW COACH, BUILDS STRONG TEAM

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent

LORETTO, Pa., Sept. 24.—The Warner system of football as taught by Gene Stringer, former John Carroll University halfback star, successor to Bill Donahoe as head gridiron coach here, will be employed by the 1930 St. Francis varsity in a campaign of eight games this fall.

St. Francis, which has engineered a sudden rise in tri-state ranking following the arrival of shrewd Elmer Bailey as athletic director and which appears certain to climb even higher above the gridiron horizon, made a creditable showing under Donahoe last fall, winning four out of eight games, tying one and bowing one of the undefeated elevens of the East Western Maryland to a 7-0 score.

This year, under Stringer's guidance, the Red Flash eleven with a comparatively strong nucleus of veteran material and some fine looking freshmen prospects, will attack a difficult schedule, playing as its share of opponents Davis-Elkins, Gallaudet, Rider College, St. Bonaventure, Grove City, St. Vincent's and possibly Wash-Jeff.

FAVORS HARD WORK

The new coach, a tartar for condition and hard work, has put his squad through a gruelling preliminary training period and will continue the hard work until next week, when the season will be opened with Grove City. He has been paying strict attention to fundamentals, blocking, charging, tackling, kicking and passing.

With the veteran Bill Sullivan at an end, Coach Stringer is certain of one line bulwark of real class. Sullivan is a good kicker, can catch a pass and is a strong defensive player. Roskosa, Frank Saloney and Krats, holdovers from last year, and Cullen, Kelly, English and Small, are candidates for the other side of the line. Saloney and Roskosa are sizeable lads, who have had some experience and are leading in the battle for the position.

Valunas and Jurasko, the former a veteran, Steel Hacula and Ivory are tackle prospects. Valunas played sterling football last year, and may be counted on for more excellent duty this fall. Jurasko has shown great promise to date.

The new coach is spending extra time with his guards. The task of the guards in the Warner system is tough, what with pulling out of the line on the offense and getting into the interference. They can't be heavy and slow, and their lack of weight sometimes handicaps them on the defense.

TWO VETERAN GUARDS

Leap and Ingoldsby are the only veterans included among the guard list which consists of F. Saloney, Endich, Jones, Rillo and Andolina. No definite pair has been selected as yet for the jobs.

It may become necessary to convert a tackle or guard or even a back into a center. So far, Lammie and White, the latter a holdover from last year, are fighting it out for the job. Lammie, although only a freshman, has come along in fine style and appears to enjoy a slight edge to date.

St. Francis is well fixed for half and fullbacks, but the quarterback stock is very low. The veteran Billetdeaux, Wagner and Agypt are back seeking halfbacks' jobs. Ken Smith, of Uniontown; Owens, who played at Waynesburg last year, Hanna, Daschbach and Resnicki are included in the halfback quota.

Owens played some fine football for Waynesburg, his ball carrying in the Geneva game enabling Waynesbur to win. Smith, who played for the Pitt Freshmen last fall, is regarded as a back of promise. If Owens can develop drive and fight, and Smith plays up to standard, the Red Flash backfield will take on a formidable appearance.

Reducca is the lone quarterback candidate. He is a good blocking and interfering back, but needs experience and weight. Rudy Halpate, a splendid kicker and passer, as close a rival to Hood, of Pitt, as there is in the district, may come along and fill the quarterback post.

FULLBACK FIGHT KEEN

Don Echenrode, Casey and McKenzie, all veterans, are scrapping for the fullback job. They may have Halpate to consider, for he is certain to make a great bid for one backfield post.

Wagner, a veteran who plays either halfback or full and is a consistent punter, must be fitted into the scheme of things somewhere. He can kick under fire, no slight accomplishment, and a good kicker is a much-to-be-sought-after asset on any ball club.

The Saints open the season on October 4 at Grove City with the Crimson. The following week Rider College, of Brooklyn, will be met in a night game at Johnstown. Slippery Rock State Teachers will entertain the Red Flash at Slippery Rock on October 18. Bonaventure offers the opposition at Olean on October 25 and the Saints are dickering with Wash-Jeff for a game on November 1.

The annual game with St. Vincent is booked for Greensburg on Armistice Day. Davis-Elkins and St. Francis clash at Clarksburg on November 15, and the season ends November 21 with a night game against Gallaudet at Johnstown.

Jerry Ingoldsby is serving as assistant to Stringer, working principally with the linemen.

HOMEWOOD BOOKING

The Homewood football team is looking for a game abroad with a first class club Sunday. Manager Herman was tickled with the showing of the East Enders against the famous Aaron Awings. Hooks Carroll and his team held the Ohio cracks for three quarters, but finally wilted under the heat. Managers should call Churchill 9151, or wire 7353 Kelly street.

DUKES WORK FOR SECOND NIGHT BATTLE

SCRUBS MAKE IT TOUGH FOR PITT ELEVEN

The great floodlights of Forbes Field are expected to flash on tonight while Elmer Layden takes his Durable Dukes through their paces under the Kleigs in preparation for their second game of the season, with Slippery Rock State Teachers College on Friday night at Forbes Field.

Layden may change his mind, however, and then the Dukes will go through their regular grind on the campus training grounds this afternoon. That is how the program stood early this morning.

The Dukes will make every bit of their practice count this week in preparation for the Teachers since the eleven from up yonder, which trounced the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets in their season opener last Saturday, plays better football than any Slippery Rock eleven in years.

The search for a kicker and the development of better quarterbacking on the Bluff are the problems now occupying the Duke mentors. Larry (Red) Sullivan seems about the best prospect in Elmer Layden's bailiwick, with Bud Devinney and Joe McCarthy running him second and third despite their experience. McCarthy is a field general who can go on occasion, but Joe seems to be in a slump at present.

PITT VARSITY HIT

If the Pitt varsity finds the going as tough against Waynesburg as they did against the second team yesterday, they will more than have their hands full. The lowly scrubs smashed the varsity all over the lot, and when Jock Sutherland called time at the end of a lengthy scrimmage they escaped with a lucky one touchdown victory. It wasn't so lucky at that as Jimmy Clark went through center for about a 70-yard run to make the score. In all probability yesterday's scrimmage was the final one of the week.

Today sees the Panthers going through extensive signal drills, as the two coaches strive to perfect the plays to be used Saturday. The continued good playing of Eddie Hirschberg has brightened the hopes of the coaches.

Bucky Wagner and Jack Kelly, two little-noticed boys, have been showing a lot of stuff in the scrimmage sessions.

TECH BERTHS CLINCHED

Nine places in Carnegie Tech's starting lineup against the University of Buffalo Saturday have been clinched. According to Judge Steffen, the entire line has been chosen, and two of the backfield posts have been settled. With the exception of one man, it will be a veteran forward wall.

Ten Rosenzweig and Pete Flanagan will be the ends; Highberger and Fletcher will be the tackles. Capt. John Dreshar and Hooks Sample will play guards, and Alex Ducanis will be at center.

Of the backfield, Harry McCurdy is certain to be at quarterback and George Kavel is likewise sure to start at right halfback. The coaches' minds are not yet made up on left halfback and fullback.

Dutch Eyth has had the left halfback job all to himself for about 10 days while Johnny Graveno, the Cleveland speeder, has been nursing some injuries. But Graveno is back now, and there is a good chance he will get the call.

AMOS POLISHES TEAM

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 24.—Head Coach Bill Amos has started the work of polishing off his Washington and Jefferson College varsity football squad for the opening of the 1930 season with Bethany College gridders here Saturday. With Jap Douds, Deb Secrist, Don Lewis and Don Malcom missing from the fold, the W. & J. mentor has been confronted with the task of replacing these stalwart gridders.

Capt. Walter Levine, Lock Haven tackle, who is leading the Wash-Jeff eleven this year is in great shape and is looking forward to a great season. Head Coach Amos with Pete Henry, former all-American tackle at W. & J., who is assisting Amos, have rounded out a line that gives every indication of possessing plenty of power and drive. Kenneth McNeil and Wally Harris, veterans, are at the ends; Hugh Kelly, Curwensville athlete, is Capt. Levine's running mate at the other tackle; George Damas and Andy Cochrane, veterans, at guards, and Pat Rigney, center, compose the stocky forward wall of the Presidents.

CROWE SHIFTS BACKS

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 24.—Shifting his backs around in an attempt to find a speedy passing combination before the Bearcats open their home season Saturday against Westinghouse, Coach Crowe, of St. Vincent's, is devoting most of his time to the backs, and, from all indications, there will be a change in the lineup of the backfield when the Bearcats take to the field this week. In previous years the Bearcats were noted for their passing game, but thus far they have failed to give any assurance of adeptness along that line.

DIEDRICH INJURED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 24.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank Diedrich, of the Penn State football squad, suffered an injury to his right eye yesterday in scrimmage, and he will be on the bench Saturday when the Lions open their season. It will be the third time in as many years that Penn State has started with its captain out of the lineup.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK, MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 15.

Of the National League teams that flourished from 1891 to 1896, the Baltimore club easily topped them all.

Any time a knot of fans gathers and begins to appraise famous baseball teams of the past, they are not apt to omit Ed Hanlon's famous Orioles that dazzled the nation and captured pennants in 1894, 1895 and 1896.

Connie Mack

In my opinion, the Orioles should rank as one of the three most powerful teams in baseball for all time. The others are Frank Chance's Cubs from 1907 to 1910 and the Athletics from 1910 to 1914.

In later articles I will discuss these two last-named teams.

The Orioles introduced a new system of baseball, in which the main note was concentration on the offense at the expense of everything else.

They used the hit-and-run device, bunted to beat the bunt out by placing it, and originated a chop hit which made the ball spin and bound so many times that the infielder, even if he made a clean stop, seldom was able to get the ball to first in time to retire the batsman.

ORIOLES BRILLIANT

They resorted to every artifice to plague a pitcher. They fouled off good pitches purposely to make a base on balls possible and then stoically stood in the way of inside pitches so they could be hit with the ball and reach first in this manner.

The object of their attack was never to give a pitcher a minute's rest. They had such a varied and resourceful attack that they generally swamped him in the end.

If the pitcher was going well and was virtually unhittable, they often started a bunting attack that would so upset him that he would get off his stride and the winning runs would be scored.

The Orioles could do these things because they all were good hitters and fast on their feet, and, moreover, sharp-witted and quick to take advantage of any opening. They always were surcharged with enthusiasm and played at high pressure every split second of the game.

John McGraw, able manager of the present-day Giants, who ranks next to me for continuous service with one team as manager, always topped the batting order and his only object in life was to reach base. He generally got there, for he could hit, bunt and worry pitchers into passing him.

He was an adept in fouling off good pitches to get the fourth ball that walked him. Willie Keeler, who followed, generally bunted with McGraw on base and he was mighty difficult to retire, for not only did he know how to place his bunts, but he could reach first with the speed of a whippet.

KEELER GREAT BUNTER

For many years, he was admittedly the fastest sprinter in baseball.

Third in the order was Hugh Jennings, who afterward won distinction by piloting Detroit to three pennants in the American League. Jennings was another brainy man at the bat. He always ranked high as a hitter, and could bunt.

More than one year he led the National League in sacrifices by bunting with McGraw and Keeler on. Jennings had the heart of a lion and never would get out of the way of a bad pitch unless it might hit his head. He had a trick of running into pitches, and in those days there was no alternative but to award a batsman first base when he was struck.

Joe Kelley, a beefier man than the first three in the order, was the clean-up hitter, and it was up to him to put the wood against the ball, and he could do that.

Gleason was a fighting second baseman who also was a .300 per cent hitter and a smart baserunner. He always made a good man for a ball team because of his aggressiveness. As a second sacker he was absolutely immune to spikes and never would get out of the way of the most relentless slider.

Jack Doyle joined the Orioles after Gleason was traded to New York. He was a hard-hitting, fast-stepping first baseman. Brodie, and later Stenzel, completed the regulars.

PIRATES NO ORIOLES

All owners wanted their managers to follow the Baltimore style of play, but the other clubs did not have sufficient players fast and smart enough to do such things.

This recalls an incident that happened to me in my final season as manager of the Pirates. President Kerr had been duly intrigued by the wonderful deeds of the Orioles and he came to me and asked why his team couldn't play that kind of ball.

This made me smile, and I protested:

"Why, we haven't the kind of players to do such things. We have only two fast men on our team and not many of them can bunt."

Still President Kerr wasn't convinced. Seeing he was adament, I exclaimed:

"Well, I will try it this afternoon."

So I told my boys that we were going to do McGraws, Keelers and Jenningses that afternoon and that I wanted everybody on their toes, using the hit-and-run and bunting when I gave the sign.

They all laughed at me and I couldn't help smiling myself. In the first inning we put on the hit-and-run. The batsmen didn't get the sign from the men on first and the latter was caught 10 feet at second. We kept on this way, but never got anywhere. Some of our men couldn't bunt and popped up or were so slow that they easily were thrown out when they bunted correctly.

HANLON GREAT MANAGER

President Kerr never made any suggestions about the Baltimore style of play after that wretched afternoon.

Ed Hanlon, who managed the Orioles, was the man who inspired them to do these astounding things. He must receive full credit for building this super team.

Hanlon never tired of talking baseball to his players and he always gave them good advice.

A good second to the Orioles at this time was Frank Selee's Boston club. It won pennants in 1892 and 1893 and repeated later in the decade.

Sport Vignettes

Pitt fans should see some sweet running halfbacks in action in the opening game against Waynesburg next Saturday, judging from the form displayed by the candidates thus far . . . All of the first-stringers will be in action during the battle, and the critical observers will be able to see for themselves why Josh Williams and Whitey Walinchus, the veterans, have had to keep stepping with such ambitious youngsters as Heller, Brown and Reider dogging their tracks . . . Jack Kelly and Art Sekay are two others in the running for the halfback berths.

Frankie Van, the Cleveland referee, who wants to break into the local field, has handled some important bouts in his time, among them two between Harold Scarney and Gene Stanton and those between Billy Wallace and Joe Glick, Jack McVey and Osk Till, Joey Goodman and Jimmy Borde, Joey Goodman and Armando Shackles, Joey Goodman and Paul Allen, Johnny Risko and Emmett Rocco, Emmett Rocco and Frankie Simms, Emmett Rocco and Gene Stanton, Rosy Rosales and George Courtney, Rosy Rosales and Arvin Spence, Johnny Datto and Benny Gershe, Frankie Simms and Bob Moody, Frankie Simms and Gene Stanton and Frankie Simms and Tom Kirby. . . . A man of such experience and with a background as a boxer which included bouts with Johnny Dunn, Joey Thomas, Irish Johnny Curtin and Frankie Garcia, among others, could be well used in the present emergency, which finds Pittsburgh with few capable referees.

Appointment of Al Mamaux, former sweet singer of Dormont, to manage the Newark Bears in the International League next season is not surprising . . . He took over the reins last June, when Tris Speaker quit with the club in seventh place, and brought it home fifth, the best record of the Bears in three years, during one of which Walter Johnson was the pilot . . . These teachers colleges, formerly known as normal schools, are doing some fancy stepping out in football since they acquired their more dignified titles . . . Here we have Slippery Rock beating Waynesburg last Saturday, while West Chester Teachers, in the eastern end of the state, repeated its last season's victory over Drexel, 13-0, winning on a 75-yard run for a score on the first play from scrimmage and a 39-yard gallop on an intercepted pass in the final period.

Then there was the damsel who asked, when she heard that West Virginia's eleven was beating the Dukes, 7-0, "What inning is it?" . . . Somehow, the average innocent bystander as a feeling that Owner Wrigley, of the Cubs, is stepping out of the grease into the flame or cutting off his face to spite his nose, or something akin to those atrocities, in dropping Joe McCarthy as his pilot in favor of Rogers Hornsby. . . . But, then, it's Wrigley's club, and there is no law to prevent a clubowner from doing as he pleases in such matters, even if he is wrong. . . . Speaking of the world series, what we'd like to see is a mound duel between Lefty Grove and Lefty Bill Hallahan, two of the speediest southpaw chuckers of modern times. . . . Neil Rengel, fullback of the Davis & Elkins demons last fall, is filling the same post for the Frankford Yellow Jackets in the National Professional League this fall, and Pannacion, former Penn 'ate star, is playing right guard for the same eleven.—HARRY KECK.

LOCALS LEAD AT RIVERSIDE

PARKS, M'CALL, CROOKSTON TIE AT 70

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 24.—Faced with the necessity of bagging no higher than a 174 count to land even in the lowly sixth flight, a field of 200 contestants teed off in the final round of the 36-hole qualifying round in the annual Northwestern Pennsylvania championship tournament at the Riverside Golf Club here today.

So terrific was the scoring pace in the first 18 holes of the qualifier yesterday that only those with cards under 75 could feel certain of edging into the first flight of 16 players who will begin match play for the title tomorrow. When the last pair of golfers reached the home green last night just as darkness was settling over the course, it was found that 67 scores of 82 and under had been turned in, and of that number 36 were in the 70s.

REAL SCORING SPREE

Never before has the Riverside course witnessed such a scoring spree in the amateur event and yet despite the fact that the field is, without a doubt, the classiest that has ever competed in the tournament Riverside's par stood unmolested after the first day of the battle.

Two Pittsburghers and a Buffalonian set the pace in the opening round, turning in cards of 70, one stroke over regulation figures. They were Sam Parks, Jr., of Highland, one of the outstanding amateur golfers in Western Pennsylvania; James W. Crookston, of Stanton Heights, another West Penn luminary, and Guy McCall, of Buffalo, who is best remembered by Pittsburghers as the lad who made the error which ousted Carl Kaufmann from the national public links tournament at Jacksonville, Fla.

George McClure, of Chartiers Heights, defending champion, found himself six shots back of the leaders as he began his final round of the qualifier today, while Frank Nash, of the Highland Country Club, who is listed among the former holders of the Northwestern Pennsylvania title, was still further back after using 77 strokes on his first round yesterday.

TRAIL LEADERS

Two shots back of the trio of leaders were B. F. Kraffert, Jr., of the Titusville Country Club, and Harold Dickey, of the Wanango Country Club, who posted 72s for their first day's effort. One shot back of them came Arthur (Ducky) Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., Florida open champion, former North and South titleholder, and the winner of four out of five invitation tournaments in which he has participated this year.

Knox Young, of Highland, was a stroke back of Yates with a 74, while Howard Von Matre, Cambridge Springs youth, took a place among the leaders by shooting a 75 to enter a three-way tie with Alex Dempster, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Dr. Joe Stanger, of Highland. The cards of three leaders, compared with par of the course:

Out—Par	3	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—36
Parks	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—37
Crookston	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—37
McCall	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—37
In—Par	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—36—72
Parks	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—37—74
Crookston	4	5	4	3	5	4	5	3	4—37—74
McCall	5	4	5	4	5	4	5	3	4—39—76

CITY OFFICIALS WIN

The city defeated the county in their annual golf team match at the Westmoreland Country Club yesterday, the score being 50 to 48. Walter Phillips, of the city team, scored a 77 to return low gross.

Herb Canon shot an 80 to cop the Frank R. Phillips trophy in the Philadelphia Company tourney yesterday at the Wildwood Country Club. He succeeds Mike Galido as company champion. Winners of the other four divisions follow:

Second division, Fifth, 102; R. Rosenberg, 102.
Third division, Wilson Jess, 100; M. C. Schneider, 100; B. Horner, 110.
Fourth division, Earl Schwartz, 115; Sullivan, 115; George Fallon, 118.
Fifth division, W. McDonald, 124; O. W. Brown, 125; A. M. Dunlap, 126.

R. J. Clark and F. Kuh tied in the ladies' handicap with 76 but the latter won in a draw for the prize.

E. I. Barnard scored a hole in one on the No. 15, 190-yard hole at the South Hills Country Club yesterday while playing with John Smith and Jeff Wessel.

Long's Sport Comment

Rovers was the first won by Jake since May 26, or almost four months. He beat the Cubs on that date, 6 to 2. He never tasted victory in the meantime, though starting nine games and doing relief work in nine others. On only one occasion, in fact, did he even pitch a complete game, and that dated back to June 8.

Ervin Brame

THE PIRATES, AFTER knothing Chicago, New York and Brooklyn out of the pennant race in the order named, will have a chance to do the same to St. Louis in the closing four-game series just ahead, but with far less likelihood of accomplishing it, though Erwin Brame, Remy Kremer and the other pitchers are all set for the attempt. For to make it possible for Chicago to beat out St. Louis, it would be necessary for the Bucs to win all four games from the Cardinals, and for the Cubs at the same time to win all four of their contests in Chicago with the Reds. If the Pirates were to take three out of four in St. Louis, the Cubs could get only a tie by winning four straight from the Reds. Two more victories will put the Cards in, even if the Cubs win four in a row. One victory for St. Louis and one defeat for Chicago, or two defeats for Chicago would have the same effect. Chicago is now the only club that has even a mathematical chance to beat out the Redbirds. Yesterday's defeat at New York's hands killed Brooklyn's last possibility of getting even a tie.

birds just as they did against the other flag contenders.

On the other hand, the Cardinals could coast to the pennant on victory provided the Reds take the measure of the Bruins once in the four games. Two defeats would cost the Cubs the flag, even if the Pirates were to make a sweep in St. Louis.

Jake May, veteran southpaw, held the Pirates to three hits in the opener. In the afterpiece, the Pirates found another tartar in Kenneth Ash, who yielded only six safeties.

Boss Ens rested some of his first-string performers. Augustin played rightfield in both games and Charley Engle performed at second. George Grantham has a swollen thumb on his throwing hand.

Glenn Spencer found the Reds in a batting mood in the opener. Charley Wood pitched fine ball in spots of the second game, but the clever young lefthander was not in the form he displayed here in his other starts. It is likely that his throwing arm, struck by a pitched ball in New York, still bothered him.

Babe Ruth tells why the Athletics are in the world series again, in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 21.

Tipton, of Grinnell, eligible to receive a forward pass, touches the toss at the tips of his fingers, but muffs the ball. Fisher, of Kansas, playing on the defense, also touches the ball but is unable to hold on to it. Parish, of Grinnell, who originally was not eligible to receive the forward pass, grabs the leather before it strikes the ground and races across the Kansas goal line before being downed.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee rules that a touchdown has been made since it was a legally completed forward pass. The moment the pass was touched by a defensive man all players become eligible receivers.

Ask Employers to Guarantee Steady Jobs

By B. C. FORBES

FROM EVERY part of the country letters have come making this suggestion:

Every corporation and employer in a position to do so, should announce there will be no further reduction in working forces for the next six months or for the next year.

Mr. Forbes

While steady work for all cannot be guaranteed, employers are urged to announce that a minimum force of a certain number will be definitely retained.

J. T. Hargraves, well known in the financial world, writes:

"While there may be many firms who cannot afford to give their employes a six months' guarantee, there are many others who could. A column recommending this would help to spread the gospel."

E. J. Grant, oil worker, says:

"I submit, I believe, one of the main reasons or causes for our present depression. If the employer will remove, to the extent he can, the threat of unemployment that hangs over the heads of all workers, we will see the beginning of improved conditions generally over the country.

"Let the small employer assure those workers he feels he will keep employed regardless of conditions. Those he is doubtful about, let them know how they stand and what their position will be during the layoff.

"Big employers should adopt the seniority plan as in effect on railroads. There are millions of workers who are working today and who have worked under that threat who will never be laid off. Discharge 500 men in an organization of 10,000, and you throw the entire force in a state of uncertainty as to future employment. They at once start to curtail spending.

"I would very much like to know just how the present depression has affected the employes of Procter & Gamble in their spending habits. I don't believe they have changed much, as they work under a guarantee of 48 weeks' work a year.

"To sum up, millions of workers have curtailed their spending for the reason they had no assurance they would have steady work, but have worked and will continue to work."

HOW FAR IT is feasible to carry out this general idea each corporation or employer must decide. Very evident is it that there is a hungry desire among workers all over the country to be assured that they are not to be laid off.

Fear today is prosperity's worst enemy. Whatever can be done to combat it, should be done.

HERBERT F. JOHNSON, Jr., president of S. C. Johnson & Co., of Racine, Wis., has been able to keep that very large concern (making floor wax, enamels, lacquers, etc.) operating steadily for eight years without discharging one employe because of business depression. After experiencing the ups and downs common to most companies, an unemployment insurance plan was organized, jointly with the employes, in 1922. Since then all has gone smoothly under the following policy, as outlined by Mr. Johnson:

1.—Consistent advertising throughout the year to develop sales every month.

2.—Continuous aggressive merchandising, including special sale plans for dealers and salesmen's contests during usually depressed months.

3.—Development of new products and the training of employes so that they can shift from one job to another.

4.—Vacation periods for all employes during a usually depressed month.

5.—A general policy of fair dealing with all employes, giving them the benefit of their loyalty and productivity, including profit-sharing.

Imagine what a heaven America would be for workers if all employers had brains enough to provide steady jobs year-in, year-out!

As a start, every employer can at least set this up as his goal.

ONE RAY OF sunshine: The Detroit Aircraft Corporation booked more new business in the last ten days than in any similar period in its history.

THE PRESIDENT of one of the country's largest biscuit companies tells me:

"Our policy for the past few months has been to buy flour and sugar on a 'hand to mouth' basis.

'Our opinion is that present prices for wheat and sugar will not change much during the next few months, although there are some factors which indicate that sugar prices will stiffen a little between now and the first of the year."

One of these days it is entirely possible that we shall witness a buyers' stampede in various commodity and merchandise markets.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Waterway Cargoes Larger Than 1928

The number of tons of freight transported over ten important canals and rivers during the first seven months of 1930 is compared with the tonnage in the corresponding periods of 1929 and 1928. Three Canadian canals are included because a large percentage of the traffic is by American vessels. Sources: Panama Canal, U. S. War Department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

PANAMA CANAL
American Vessels Only

The quantity of freight carried on commercial vessels of the United States through the Panama Canal during the first seven months of 1930 is higher than generally supposed. It is 5.4% under 1929, but 2.3% over the excellent year of 1928.

SAULT STE. MARIE
Both American and Canadian Canals

These two waterways are charted separately because of their tremendous volume of traffic. Tonnage in the first seven months of this year was 21% less than in the corresponding period of 1929, but 4.5% more than in the same period of 1928.

7 OTHER WATERWAYS
Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers above Pittsburgh, Ohio River from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, Government barges on Mississippi River and Welland, St. Lawrence and Cape Cod Canals

Cargo traffic on these canals and rivers this year is only 2.8% under 1929, but 3.2% over 1928. On all ten canals and rivers on this chart, the 1930 traffic is 12.9% under 1929, but 3.7% over 1928.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Tumble — Lone Star Moves Higher

STOCK PRICES TAKE SUDDEN TUMBLE

Steel Breaks to New Low For Reaction—Vanadium Drops 15—Many Off 3 to 4

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP.)—Stock market bears demonstrated forcefully today that their claws were still sharp. A vigorous selling movement, launched just after noon when prices were working slowly upward in response to an improvement in steel production figures carried quotations down swiftly until yesterday's gains had been more than lost and several leaders including U. S. Steel had broken to new lows for the reaction.

The selling came unexpectedly. It coincided with renewed weakness in wheat and with publication of a statement that there was no prospect of an increased dividend or an extra on American Can. Circulation of a rumor that such a move was likely started short covering in the last hour yesterday but the withdrawal of this prop apparently led professional shorts to reconsider their position.

BANKS LIUIDATE

There were reports that banks especially country banks were liquidating collateral on security loans in response to pressure from high sources. The total of these lans stands at abut $8 000 000 000 and is oround $700 000 000 above the total a year ago.

Spectacular declines occurred in several stocks. Vanadium broke about 15 points and Air Reduction and Foster Wheeler between 9 and 10. Westinghouse and Auburn Auto dropped 5. U. S. Steel, American Can, Du Pont, North American, American Telephone, International Nickel, Hallerafter, Radio, Eastman, Kodak, American Water Works, American and Foreign Power, Anaconda and Allis-Chalmers lost 3 to 4. American Smelting, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse Pump, Case and Houston Oil bear 6 or more.

A 3 per cent rise in the Iron Age steel production index, bringing it to 61 per cent of theoretical capacity attracted attention especially as quarters which had been seeking relief from the dismal rumors and news of the last week. The trade paper said that improvement in iron and steel demand was sustained and that prices had stiffened, although future commitments were more largely responsible for the gain than were orders for current shipment. Railroads and automobile manufacturers continue to make scant inquiry.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN

Freight car loadings for the week ended September 13 showed a gain of 109 076 cars over the preceding week which had included the Labor Day period but the total was still the lowest for any corresponding week since 1922.

Reductions in gasoline prices, although doubtless reflecting "price wars" in numerous localities, were also interpreted as a means to stimulate consumption at a period when seasonal demand is tapering off. It is believed that refiners are anxious to see a large reduction in gasoline stocks by the end of the year on the theory that such steps would materially improve the outlook for 1931. There was a decline of 872 000 barrels in the week ended September 20.

Call money was easy at 2 per cent, with the usual concessions in the outsidem arket. Rates on some maturities of time money were further reduced.

Wheat Prices Spurt In Final Half Hour

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Wheat advanced violently in the last half hour of trading. The May position selling above 89 after touching 86⅝ cents early. The trade impression is that Russia has started to cover the short sales earlier in the day.

Loans on Cotton Will Be Increased

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of New Orleans states that intermediate credit banks of the South will increase by 10 per cent the amount they will loan on cotton warehouse receipts and agricultural paper.

Stock Exchange Topics

California Packing May Earn $5 a Share in Current Year.

While admitting the difficulty of predicting earnings of California Packing since so much depends upon conditions in the immediate future, some interests still believe the company can show in the neighborhood of $5 a share in the current year. There has been practically no outside interest in the stock for some time because leading observers have been advising customers to keep out of the issue until earnings show some definite sign of improving. This has not yet come in sight. A moderate amount of liquidation from time to time recently disclosed a rather limited market for the stock.

Every market interest at present is watching the action of United States Steel. This stock has always been considered the logical leader and its price movements often affect the entire list. Realizing this, bears have been pressing the stock for sale for some time, working on the theory that ability to break Steel common through nearby resistance points always brings selling into other issues, and gives them an opportunity to cover shorts all around.

Fluctuations in stocks are almost exclusively in the control of the traders. With these operators bearish it is not surprising to see lower prices. Rallies have not held, and those who covered shorts two weeks ago on the theory that a good upturn was in the making have been the most active sellers recently. There has been little resistance on the reactions, the scale buying orders in the market being for small lots and not sufficient to check pressure when the market was put to a test.

President Erskine estimates Pierce-Arrow Motor Car's net profit for the first nine months at $1,300,000 after charges and taxes, but before preferred dividends. This would compare with net profit of $2,456,673 after charges and taxes in the first nine months of 1929. There are outstanding 197,250 shares Pierce-Arrow "A" stock, all of which is owned by Studebaker Corporation.

The stock market developed good rallying powers from midmorning yesterday following a momentary sinking spell at the opening during which some of the leaders, including Steel common, had slipped off slightly to new lows for the movement. As the noon hour approached it looked as though a fairly substantial rebound was under way, but there were several factors which evidently served to dampen what little bullish sentiment existed and to inspire renewed sporadic selling on the bulges. Fresh weakness in wheat, corn and cotton, with the first and last mentioned commodities sinking to new lows for the season, coupled with heavy selling of the copper metal stocks, made the path of the market on the side of the advance extremely difficult of negotiation.

In reliable quarters, the opinion is held that the railroad stocks may be in, or at least approaching, an accumulation area. Car loadings are likely to increase between now and the end of the year, because the fall season always has shown improvement in freight traffic. However, the gains are not likely to be as large as some predicted a few months ago, because the business situation has not recorded the extent of change for the better which was looked for. Quite a number of market interests believe that buying the rails at this time would involve less risk than most industrials, however.

STEEL PRICES FIRMING UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Improvement in iron and steel demand, although not rapid, is nevertheless sustained. Although much of the betterment is represented by future commitments rather than orders for current shipment, aggregate specifications are averaging close to 15 per cent higher than in August and, for some steel, sales offices are running ahead of the volume of a year ago when business was on the decline.

The full extent of the gain in steel released has been obscured by the tardy response of ingot output to expanding rolling mill schedules. Current steel ingot output at 65 per cent compares with 58 per cent in the two previous weeks. Earlier in the month and probably also in August, raw steel production was a step ahead of finishing requirements. With this disparity corrected, further increases in finished steel business should find quicker reflection in steel furnace operations.

The growing interest in forward buying has had the effect of stiffening finished steel prices. Efforts of buyers to cover their requirements through the first quarter or first half of next year have met with little success since mills are disinclined to quote for deliveries beyond January 1. On fourth quarter business as well as orders for immediate shipment producers are insisting on better prices than were recently current. This is particularly true of black and blue annealed sheets on which price advances recently announced are becoming established market levels. Among the heavier rolled products bars are showing greater strength with 1.65 cents a pound, Pittsburgh representing an advance of $1 a ton more commonly quoted. In the East structural shapes are up $1 a ton to 1.70 cents a pound, Bethlehem

CONSUMERS STOCKS LOW

The gain in steel bookings has come largely without the aid of the automobile industry and the railroads two of the largest consumers. Considerable business that had been deferred during the summer is now coming into the market. Indications are that consumers' stocks in many cases had been so badly depleted that replenishment was imperative. Now that replacement buying has become general and the tone of prices is improving the incentive to hold stocks to the minimum is disappearing.

It is too early to estimate the actual gain in steel consumption. A number of miscellaneous lines, no doubt under seasonal stimulus, are more active among them the radio, stove and range, steel barrel and farm implement industries. The radiator business, which had been running 25 per cent behind the volume of 1929, has been only 15 per cent short of last year's record so far in September.

Forward demand for pig iron continues to expand and, while it is doubtless prompted by the belief that prices are low, its initial effect has been to bring out further breaks in the market.

AUTO SENTIMENT IMPROVED

Automobile output continues to run behind the poor performance of August and two of the largest motor car makers have reduced their steel releases. One of them still has large commitments due on third quarter contracts which were held up because of reduced operations. The others September steel specifications are the smallest in months. Nevertheless, a definite and unexpected upturn in retail orders has improved sentiment among motor car builders and this has apparently caused some of them to revise their schedules.

Declines in pig iron at Pittsburgh and at Birmingham for northern shipment bring the Iron Age composite price down to $16.46, a gross ton, the lowest figure since late in 1915. An advance on black sheets of $1 a ton raises the finished steel composite price from 2.142c to 2.149c a pound.

NEW YORK BANK DEAL DENIED

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 — (AP) — Reports that steps were being taken to merge the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company with another large New York bank were denied today by Walter E. Frew, chairman of the board, in a letter to stockholders.

Wall Street had heard that the Chase National Bank was seeking the Corn Exchange, which has a large system of branches in New York City, and that the negotiations had reached a rather definite stage.

A contemplated merger of Corn Exchange with National City Bank last summer reached the stage where the terms for the exchange of stock were announced, but the plan was abandoned after the October break in the security markets.

In Memoriam 1-B

In memory of my dear husband, Robert H. Leva, who fell asleep in Jesus, September 24, one year ago today.

There is a wife who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
And I think of you daily and hourly,
But try to be brave and content.
But the tears I shed in silence,
And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For only the home and I remember
Though all the world forgets.
Sadly missed by his loving wife,

ESTHER LEVA.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Infra Dig"

"Ooooo—see 'Good-looking' over there," Patty Holden whispered.

"Where?" Joan Arkell asked.

"Behind the desk."

Joan glanced around in the immense Hotel Ornyx office at the young man back of the cash register desk.

"Oh, the clerk," Joan said, disdainfully.

"He's handsome, just the same," Patty insisted.

"So are some chauffeurs and such——"

The girls joined Joan's parents and followed the bell-hop up to their rooms.

Joan had taken her chum, Patty, along with her when her people went to this noted South Carolina hotel for the early spring golf.

The young man who was clerking at this time was John Sherman. He had found time, busy as he was, to size up Joan and Patty. They were both unusually attractive girls.

Mr. Arkell had registered for the crowd. John wondered which of the girls was Miss Arkell and which Miss Holden. He found out that afternoon when Patty came in and got some mail for Miss Patricia Holden, leaving the Arkell mail in the box.

The next day Joan and Patty saw John on the links with a young man playing a spirited twosome.

"I must say they are democratic here, permitting hotel employes to play golf with the guests," Joan commented.

"It doesn't hurt us any—and he certainly is handsome," Patty said.

Joan and Patty played a fair game, but nothing at all like the expert game that Jack Sherman and his friend were playing, and it wasn't long before Jack politely asked permission to go through.

"Oh, I suppose so," Joan said, disdainfully.

"Certainly," Patty murmured, at the same time, and she couldn't resist giving Jack a rather coy little smile.

Excellent Golfer

Jack and his friend went ahead. Patty was lost in admiration of one of his terrific drives.

"He's wonderful—just look at that drive!" Patty exclaimed.

"Probably luck."

"What's the matter with you, Joan? It's no disgrace for a young man to be clerking in a swell hotel like this."

"Probably not, but it isn't much of a social achievement."

"It's more of a social achievement than Wally Evans has made, sponging off his mother and staying drunk most of the time," Patty reminded her.

Joan flushed. She had a weakness for Wally at that time because his mother was high, socially, and his sister was the wife of a noted titled Englishman.

"Wally is a gentleman, at least."

"Let's forget it," Patty suggested. As Joan's guest she couldn't very well quarrel with her, but she was inwardly amused. Patty knew that Joan's people were new-rich and that she should have said that clerking in a hotel was fully as gentlemanly an occupation as running a fish market, which is just what Silas Holden was doing five years before, when relatives left him an enormous and unexpected fortune.

They had a rather formal dance at the hotel on Thursday night.

Wally Evans and his mother and sister, who was the Duchess of Wrangley, had come down to the hotel. Joan was right in her element. The Duchess was very gracious to her, and Wally was fairly sober.

"Well, of all the nerve," Joan hissed to Patty, suddenly, "look!"

Patty looked but saw nothing unusual. She said so.

"There—dancing with that little widow. Our hotel clerk, if you please!"

"He dances divinely—he seems to do everything perfectly, and every time I see him he gets better looking. See the way his clothes set on him—perfection!"

Some time later, when Wally got around to dance with Joan again, she stiffened and almost lost step.

There was Patty Holden actually dancing with that hotel clerk!

After the dance Joan made her way over to where Jack Sherman had seated Patty. Joan was going to say something very sarcastic to Patty, for Mr. Sherman's benefit, but he had excused himself and gone before she got over there.

Refused Dance

"Patty—whatever are you thinking of—to dance with him?" Joan exclaimed.

"He asked me—he dances wonderfully, he talks so entertainingly and he hasn't any ancient and silly 'lines'," Patty declared in defense.

"But it doesn't look well. I suppose he told you all about the hotel business?"

"He didn't mention it—he's coming back here—if he asks me for another dance he'll get it—clerk or no clerk, he's simply wonderful!"

But John Sherman didn't ask Patty for a dance. He asked Joan. He asked her in a very gentlemanly manner and with a pleasant smile.

"No indeed," Joan said, icily.

John Sherman bowed gravely and turned away.

"You were rude—and why didn't you dance with him?" Patty asked.

"Infra dig," Joan exclaimed.

Young Mr. Sherman had paused to speak to someone right back of Joan. He turned and glanced at her in an amused manner.

"Oh, he heard you say that!" Patty exclaimed, in a hurt voice.

"He wouldn't know what it means," Joan answered with a supercilious laugh.

"He would, too—everybody knows that 'infra dig' means 'below one's dignity'—and from the way he looked at you I know he heard and understood."

"All right, then—it serves him right for being so presuming."

Patty danced with John Sherman several times that night.

She even played golf with him at six in the morning.

Then the Arkells left for home, taking Patty along with them.

When the Arkells went to Bar Harbor Patty had already left town for the Cape, to visit an aunt.

Joan put in a rather hectic summer. Wally went over to England with his titled sister and Joan was left to make such friends as she could with some of the rather exclusive people at the summer colony.

Caught in Fog

When the Hingham-Tuttles gave a big lawn fete on the spacious grounds of their 40-room "cottage" the Arkells were left out. Joan was extremely bitter, but she got into her jaunty little yachting costume and took her speed boat out.

"Don't go too far, Miss—there's a fog comin' in," the wharfman advised her as she took the boat out.

Joan was in no mood for advice.

She was planning big things, sulkily, planning some day to just cut those snooty Hingham-Tuttles dead.

She noticed a fog bank and turned in a wide circle to go back, but the bank of fog suddenly enveloped her.

She slowed up, idled her motor, and finally it stopped. She couldn't start it, for the ample reason that there was no gas in the tank.

Joan began to worry. She might be run down. It was ghastly, shut into the great mass of fog, and it was damp—everything fairly dripped. The nice wave set she started out with was ruined, and her hair became wet and stringy.

There seemed to be a strong ebb tide. When she realized this it worried her more, she might drift out to sea and be days before she was picked up—if she survived.

Then something loomed ahead of her—trees!

Before she could worry about rocks her craft got into some backwater, and the next thing she knew she was on a mud bank. She threw the anchor over into the mud, got out and made her way to the shore.

And then the fog banks lifted, the sun shone, and Joan saw ledges and cat spruce thickets. Probably the island had a fisherman on it, most of them did. She struggled through the thicket and heard voices—laughter.

One more shove ahead and she stepped from briars and dwarf spruces to a wide lawn.

There was a great swimming pool and beyond that a massive and beautiful summer home!

Joan decided to go and borrow a servant to bring gasoline. A servant came and before Joan could say anything he held up his hand.

"Private property, young woman, you'll 'ave to take the lower path back to the landing—cawn't you read signs?"

Before Joan could answer a young man in an immaculate yachting outfit approached. It was John Sherman.

Patty Explains

Patty Holden came right along back of him.

"It's all right, Parkers," Jack Sherman said to the servant. He turned to Joan with a kindly smile. "My grounds are always at the disposal of you natives," he said.

"Why—why good heavens—it is Joan!" Patty cried. "You've got so much mud on your face and——"

Joan looked at herself, mud and scratches, bedraggled hair and torn clothes.

"Ah, Miss Arkell," Jack said, smoothly, "I met you at the Hotel Ornyx. If it isn't too much 'infra dig' for you to accept my hospitality, I'll see that you get your scratches plastered up and dry clothes. One of my men will take your boat back and you can follow later on my yacht."

"Why—er—er—lovely," Joan managed to murmur.

Patty took her into the great house and up to her room to loan her some clothes.

Patty explained that she and her aunt were guests of Jack Sherman's father.

"This is Jack's own summer home," Patty explained. "His father owns that string of 50 hotels—Jack was subbing back of the counter for a college chum to arrive and take the job."

Patty made another explanation. She did it with two words as she pointed to a beautiful solitaire on her finger.

"We're engaged," she said.

She added, "I didn't consider it to be 'infra dig.'"

Aunt Bella—Since you seem to think you have such swell ideas, what do you think of the position of women in the United States of America?—Dubious.

Ans.—If you had enquired, Madam, if I did think about the position of women in the United States of America, I would have been only too glad to answer your question in the negative. But, since you ask, me what I think, I can only regard you as one of those silly persons who take entirely too much for granted. As a matter of fact, women give me a pain in any position. So you can run along now, we're not passing out samples today.

See Pennsylvania First; Peak Offers Wide View

Congressman Dyer of Missouri announces he will introduce a bill calling for a world-wide advertising campaign to induce people to "See America." As part of the program he indorses the Hearst newspapers' proposal for a transcontinental highway. Dyer's enthusiasm for the scenic beauties of America rests on a solid foundation. Americans should see their country.

Pennsylvanians can do no better than by seeing Pennsylvania first. They can see several hundred thousand acres in one sweep of the eye by visiting the summit of Negro Mountain in Somerset County, 3,213 feet above sea level and the highest point in the state.

The State Department of Forests and Waters has lately acquired the peak through purchase of a 5,000-acre tract for forest purposes, and has made some improvements for the convenience of visitors. A road has been built to the summit, and at the loftiest point a cabin with a large fireplace and a porch 10 feet wide has been erected, and a deep well drilled to provide drinking water. A small observation tower is to be built. The United States Geological Survey has installed a bronze marker attesting that the spot is the highest in Pennsylvania.

From the Negro Mountain forest fire observation tower, a mile distant, a view of 400,000 acres of forest and mountain land can be had extending into Maryland and West Virginia on the south.

Negro Mountain takes its name from a Negro slave, who was killed there about 1750 in an attack made by Indians on a party headed by Colonel Thomas Cresap.

Negro Mountain has been mentioned at some length because of the facilities that have just been furnished for visiting it comfortably. There are numerous other places in the state that are also interesting.

'Smoky' City No Longer Appropriate Nickname

Pittsburgh has been called the "Smoky City" for so many years that people unaware of the progress that has been made in abating the smoke nuisance and also unaware of the increase in the smoke nuisance in other cities continue to think of this as an especially smoky place. But the nickname is no longer deserved.

The statement of an aviation man that Pittsburgh needs airports on all sides because of smoke has brought from Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman the assertion that Pittsburgh has less smoke and has better visibility for flying than New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

Pittsburgh has taken the lead among the world's cities in combating smoke. Even Europeans seek instructions from our Bureau of Smoke Regulation in methods of abating the nuisance. That there is less smoke here than formerly is not merely a matter of conjecture or supposition. It can be and has been proved mathematically by measuring deposits of tar from the atmosphere and comparing them with the deposits of an earlier period. Tar represents black smoke.

There are seasons, to be sure, when, with wind absent, smoke and fog combine to make Pittsburgh a very disagreeable place. There is room for improvement at all seasons. But progress is being made, and so much has already been accomplished towards cleaning the atmosphere that when anyone speaks of Pittsburgh as an exceptionally smoky city the remark should be challenged.

Prison Terms Imposed For Conducting Lottery

The sentencing of two lottery men in Criminal Court to serve 60 days in jail reveals a somewhat different conception of the seriousness of the offense than that apparently entertained by Magistrate Charles Papale, of East End Police Court.

Judge Ray P. Sherwood, who sentenced the "numbers writers," felt that they had committed a crime that called for punishment, even though they were "small fry" in the clearing house lottery racket and had pleaded guilty.

Magistrate Papale had virtually been licensing the lottery men in his bailiwick by letting them off with payment of a fine—a fine so small that many a lottery man no doubt gets it back from his customers in a day or two. Papale is exceeding his authority, of course, in dismissing "numbers writers" with fines, since the law requires that persons accused of this offense shall be bound over for the grand jury.

Alderdice Proposal to Relieve Unemployment

Councilman Robert J. Alderdice is to be commended for moving to relieve unemployment in Pittsburgh. To provide work for some of the jobless men he proposes that the Department of Public Works shall itself make some of the street and sewer improvements that are usually let out to contractors. He suggests further that the laborers to be employed shall work in four-hour shifts, so that employment may be furnished to a large number.

This is a step in the right direction, and it is gratifying that Council has unanimously adopted Alderdice's resolution introducing the scheme.

The city can do far more than private contractors to relieve unemployment. For one thing it can make sure that none but Pittsburghers are employed on municipal jobs.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

How Dry I Was

The next election will be a terrific fight on prohibition, as usual.

Walter Winchell seemed to have thought we wrote a good squid when we said the voters were getting tired of wet-drys who changed sides like fleas in a dog fight.

We hereby enlarge that idea after giving the subject mature and overripe thought.

We are tired of politicians who change sides like fleas in a dog fight without getting hurt.

Senator Twibbister was a Dry last time. This time he is a Wet by the grace of Providence and the help of the rest of Rhode Island. He swept his district last time and this time he is going to sweep it back.

We don't say he is a chameleon. But there is certainly a lot of technicolor being used.

In the old days of Washington, Clay and Lincoln, a candidate made a statement. And stuck to it.

Now he makes a statement. And is stuck with it.

The oldtimers laid all their cards on the table.

They still lay their cards on the table. But the table has folding legs.

Everything was on the up-and-up like an asparagus patch. A good old statesman marched along the streets in a torchlight procession.

Do you see any candidates in a torchlight procession now?

No, Mrs. McCormick and Senator Nye are using flashlights. They are hiring detectives to watch each other through keyholes.

And we want to say that Senator Nye is foolish to hire a detective for that job.

People don't trust each other today. And it looks as if everybody was right.

We might say more about the prohibition problem arriving with the next election. But why pour water on a drowned mouse when you can use it to dilute Canadian booze?

And so far as party slates are figured this coming tournament, it looks as if the leaders will throw away the slate. And stick to the sponge.

(Copyright, 1930.)

Isn't It So?

Second thoughts are best only when they are on time.

The greatest hold-up of the age is the common safety pin.

Nowadays a man can't afford to have too many scratches around the keyhole of his front door.

It is better to stop just before you reach a railroad crossing than it is to "stop dead" trying to beat a train to it.

No man thoroughly understands his own incompetence until he has attempted to put up window curtains under his wife's direction. He never seems to get the hang of it.

SCIENTIFIC STUDY of GREENLAND

By Archibald Henderson

During the next two years a great scientific exploration and investigation of Greenland will focus the eyes of the world upon that bleak, inhospitable and perilous region. A party of 20 scientists, including geologists, meteorologists and engineers from the German Arronautical Research Bureau, will spend a year and a half in intensive investigations. No one has ever spent a winter on the inland ice of Greenland. The present party, equipped by the German Scientific Research Society, will establish three stations for wintering in Greenland, one on each edge of the ice field and one in the very center, on a line joining the other two stations.

The mysterious Greenland to be studied is a giant island girt by a great chain of irregular mountains some 6,000 feet high. The inside of the island is a mighty depression, in area four times the size of Germany. In the middle of this huge bowl the ice piles up to a height of more than 9,000 feet.

Greenland offers one huge puzzle to scientists, as well as countless unplumbed mysteries.

The mountain chain surrounding the vast interior saucer is broken at numerous places by fords, through which huge ice chunks in the form of glaciers are constantly pouring out into the surrounding seas. Some of these great ice blocks draw hundreds of feet of water, and their circumferences are measured in miles. These break up into the icebergs which are constantly encountered in lanes of ocean travel.

The great puzzle which scientists are now seeking to solve is the mode of renewal of this great interior ice cone. So vast is the amount of ice precipitated into the surrounding seas that no adequate computation of it is as yet possible. These great glaciers which are constantly forming and pushing their way to the sea illustrate a mysterious and baffling problem in growth and renewal.

Many phases of scientific research will be prosecuted in the course of this exploration. Valuable contributions to the science of meteorology may be expected as the result of a careful study of storm centers, air currents and temperature changes.

The findings in these respects may go a long way towards enlarging meteorological knowledge, and enabling meteorologists to supply adequate weather forecasts over longer periods of time.

Another important issue involves the pressing problem concerning finding way stations for trans-Atlantic flights. Greenland lies on the shortest path in airplane routes between Central Europe and Chicago. Capitalists are deeply interested nowadays in all intercontinental air routes. The determination of the ice fields as possibly affording landing stages for aircraft will constitute an important contribution to the great coming industry of intercontinental air travel and transport.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Which is the Saving Sex?

If you're a male, you'll say "Men, of course. Women have no sense for business. Never yet saw a woman who could manage money. Why, they're notoriously extravagant—throw away every dime a man makes on some fool do-dad."

If you're a man, that's what you'll say, for that's what men have been saying since time immemorial. And there was very little the Missus could say in reply. Of course there was plenty she wanted to say. For instance . . . if Dad was such a great manager, how come he brought home only $9 out of a $15 check? Well, he had to "treat the boys."

Treating the boys was a mysterious function which could not be gainsaid—according to Dad. Of course the Missus couldn't be expected to understand. What did women know about a man's life—he snorted contemptuously. And he snorted even more when the Missus told him how she'd manage if she had a job. A woman make money — save money? Ha, Ha!

But time turned the laugh on Dad. For 20 years Ma and the girls have been holding jobs and managing their money with increasing efficiency. And, incidentally, handling masculine complacency an awful wallop! For example, there was that recent incident in Manchester, England. Manchester wanted to borrow several millions and asked its substantial citizens to subscribe for bonds. Promptly they came across. But, to the amazement and secret chagrin of the Manchester males, half the subscribers were women—working women who had saved their pennies! And this in bonnie England, where females have had about as much financial standing as a woodtick.

Yes, gentlemen are certainly having to revise their notions. And some of them are pretty mad about it. Have you listened in on many of these modern marriages where the youngsters both work? Looking at the bride fluttering about, you'd swear she was nothing but a pink and white doll.

What a heavy load that sturdy, sensible young man, her husband, must have to carry. And the sturdy, sensible young man would agree with you!

In spite of all these modern equality theories he's just as sure as his grandfather was before him, that he's the Heavy Ballast in the matrimonial bark. But the truth is that the sturdy, sensible young man would probably not be eating nor sleeping indoors if it were not for the thriftiness of that little pink and white doll!

Theories to the contrary, man is not the Saving Sex and woman is. She may not hang up a heavy record in the departments of science or art, but when it comes to dollars and dimes the average young woman can outchipmunk the average young man any day in the week.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

In Chicago they got a lot of new improvements to take the place of cops. Seems like they can't afford to have a cop in every home and store, not all the time anyhow, and a man can't spend all his time standing around with a gun in his hand instead of waiting on the trade.

There was a awful polite fellow from Alabama went to Chicago and started a jewelry store, and sure enough, the third day in come a guy with a gun and a helper and started cleaning out the place. The Alabaman backed up against the wall with his hands up, and the bandit says, "Now, you stay there and mind your business, and if I see you tryin' to reach for a push button or a lever to call the cops, I'll lay you down, see?"

"Yes suh," says the Alabaman, and the bandits went ahead taking stuff out of the showcase.

"You shouldn't take that there tray out," says the Alabaman, "if you'll pardon my saying so suh," when the robbers lifted a big tray of diamonds out of the case.

"You keep out of this," says the one with the gat.

"Yes suh," says the Alabaman. And after a few minutes he says, "I only wished to say, suh, that it annoys the cops very much suh, when you lift that tray out, because it rings a big bell at police headquarters, and irritates the men. I think I see quite a lot of them coming now. Yes, here they are. Sorry, gents."

Few Are the Years

Few are the years and swift their wings, I know,
What matter, then, which road I choose to go?
If I find happiness in foolish things,
And if my pleasures flow from fitful springs,
Shall I repress a shallow, quick delight
To seek for other paths, less calm and bright?
Few are the years, and in my journeying
Shall I, for some vague promise, lightly fling
Away the hoarded riches in my hand
For what may be dream of some far land?
Few are the years, and yet the choice you make Endures beyond the thing you leave or take;
Beyond the joy that any choice can give,
Beyond the pain, for these are fugitive.
Few are the years, but when all time is done
The record of your choice will still live on.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Dog, horse, and pigeon are all highly specialized animals; and yet sufficient mutations have appeared in them in a short five or six thousand years to allow man to produce such extreme types as bulldog and daschshund, Percheron and racehorse, fantail and pouter. Variation thus may be abundant enough in specialized creatures.

H. G. Wells

In Nature, however, the very fact of high specilization handicaps many variations which might have been useful enough to a more all-round and generalized creature. Just because a horse is so well adapted to running, it is further removed from any possibility of becoming adapted to climbing, or flying, or burrowing; and a variation, say, toward more carnivorous teeth, which might have been profitable to an animal not yet wholly committed to one particular line, would in the horse, merely find itself in opposition to the majority of its other characters.

Natural Selection, the conservative, frowns on such innovation. But alter the tendency of selection, as man the radical does when he breeds his stock, and the versatility of the creatures is at once revealed.

The specialized animal is in its own way almost as perfectly adapted to its mode of life as is possible; if some other creature should find a better way, it is helpless.

Thus Natural Selection has relatively little power to modify highly specialized creatures; but this lies more in the nature of specialization itself than in any failure of the specialized organism to produce mutations as fast as more generalized types.

But some kinds of animals and plants do seem to have a smaller capacity for variation than others. Almost every species of duck, for instance, is relatively very constant; even when its geographical range is a wide one, few or no variations are to be found.

Wrens, titmice and sparrows, on the other hand, are much more variable; each widespread species is divisible into a number of distinct sub-species, which usually grade into each other on the borders of their ranges. The same is to be seen in plants. If examples are needed, the wild pansy will serve, with its dozens of varieties, in flower-shape and flower-pattern.

On the other hand, however, that beautiful Alpine plant, the eight-petalled Dryas, is always very much the same, whether on the Alps or the tops of Scotch mountains, on the Great Divide in Colorado or at sea level in Spitsbergen, nor does the ubiquitous bracken fern show any noticeable variation from England to its antipodes.

Limitation is argued from such facts as the restriction of color or pattern in various groups of animals and plants.

Woodpeckers run to reds, blacks and whites, with occasional outbursts into green, yellow or brown; but blue and its combinations seem to be unknown among them. Gulls, on the other hand, show almost exclusively a combination of white with grey-blue or black; reds, yellows or greens are never found in their plumage.

Among plants, the tendency of composites, like dandelion and daisies, to have either yellow or white flowers is familiar.

But such facts may be misleading. The prevalent colors may provide some advantage we do not yet understand; or their prevalence may mean only that they constitute the path of least resistance, not that variation cannot produce other colors.

The Pierine butterflies, or "Whites," give us a useful warning in this respect. As their popular name implies, the prevailing color is white, usually combined with black; yellow, orange and greenish are also not uncommon; we might well suppose that their variation was restricted to these color themes.

But in South America a number of Pierines have become mimetic; they mimic butterflies of the Heliconiid family. And among these mimics we find colors and patterns wholly unlike anything found elsewhere among the Whites. Thus an undoubted tendency to keep to certain colors need not prevent others being produced if need arises.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Neighborhood saloons with the swing doors, mirrors in curlicued frostiness, intimate back rooms and other old time trappings are as plentiful along the lower East Side as luxuriant whiskers. On such streets as Forsythe, Allen, Mulberry and Eldridge there is one or more to the block.

Their easy camaraderie is playing havoc with push-the-button-and-ask-for-Louis basement places uptown. Downtown there is no peep hole scrutiny. Customers step in and right up to the bar where old time barkeeps with gates-ajar collars and shirt stud "sparklers" inquire: "Name the poison, gents?"

They have the informality of the Paris bistro. Mustaches dip into foaming mugs, ladies rest tootsies on brass rails and there is the cluckety-cluck of the dice box. Some have four bartenders. At the end of the bar, too, is the familiar twirling caster with cloves, orange peel, cinamon bark and coffee.

The rattle of cocktail shakers and the plink of touching glasses can be heard in the street. Camouflage is utterly abandoned. In some places it is possible to see under the door the half-legged line-up at the bar. South of Canal street, the wide open bar has the flourish of 20 years ago.

The saloons operate with a "dump supply." Liquors are in pitchers so—at the look-out's warning buzz—it may be quickly poured into waiting receptacles next door. The supply is thus not lost in a raid and padlocking evidence is frustrated.

There are employees, derbied gentlemen remindful of former bar flies, who keep supplies at proper quantity. They act as runners and when a special supply runs low, go several blocks away for a single bottle of the required stuff. Some have caches as far away as an innocent Bronx flat.

The only difference from before-prohibition saloons is that tables for serving food are scattered about the barroom. Meals are ridiculously low priced but those who come only for food are soon spotted. Next time they are gruffly informed all tables are reserved.

While New York has 30,000 speakeasies to supplant 16,000 licensed saloons, the strain on the speakeasy patron begins to tell. There is no suggestion of merriment. People eat and drink in silence, sitting on the edge of chairs.

* * *

They were mourning the removal of a beloved member of the Players to far away Brooklyn. "Into each life some Brooklyn must fall," sighed Oliver Herford, last of the Victorian jesters.

There was a lugubrious lilt, too, yesterday to a flossy Park avenue cafe menu. In all the stately Frenched-up items they simply had to bust right out with it. They were serving: "Black bean soup!"

* * *

At another table was one of those omniscient salad dressing experts with not only the widest aeroplane shoulders on record but his ears suggested he might take off any moment. He expanded magnificently on his creations. But off salad dressings he was another he-Gertrude Stein.

A gentleman, giving many dinners, invites only five—just enough to fill his Rolls. He arrives at the appointed cafe in a dilapidated taxi. This doubtless gives him a feeling of martyrdom.

* * *

And another wealthy eccentric has a peanut roaster in his bachelor pent house. He does not care for peanuts, but loves the fragrant roasting smell. As who doesn't!

I am an eccentric with an ignoble lech to pour ice water from huge pitchers on people in evening dress. A grand spot would be the parapet of a pent house on the Metropolitan opera house. There goes Mrs. Vanderget! One, two, three-swish! zowie! skush! Brrr-r-r! Home, James!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you begin to think there is nothing new in your job and it is getting monotonous it is time to prod yourself and wake up to its possibilities.

As soon as you lose interest you are inviting another to take your place.

Your firm can find a man who would like the job and find a chance for expansion in your environment.

Perhaps you have ceased to think in the right light.

To you it has become a place merely to make enough for a living.

Naturally, if this is all it is to you, you have become automatic.

How long is it since you had an original thought about your work?

It is many months, isn't it, since you expended any energy trying to meet its every day demands?

Of course if you have become mechanical you won't enjoy your work.

But you can think back when you were much elated that you had made some discovery in your line—different and new to your method of production.

If you put the same enthusiasm back of your efforts today you might get a lot more pleasure out of work and take it beyond the dead line of mere going back and forth movement.

There is always a new and better way and up to you to find it before someone else gets your job and shows himself a better man.
